RTA tax OKd; new services seen

by LYNN ASINOF

New transportation programs for the suburbs are expected to nearly double as a result of a 5 per cent gasoline tax approved Thursday by the Regional Transportation Authority.

In a compromise agreement, suburban board member D. Daniel Baldino of Evanston voted for the controversial gas tax, but only after he added $4.9 million to the 1977-78 budget for new suburban bus, rail and transit programs.

Only $6 million had been intended for these new services before Baldino increased this amount to $11 million.

HE ALSO added $465,000 to the budget for programs similar to Dial-a-Ride and the subscription bus service planned in Schaumburg in the coming year.

The five Chicago board members agreed to Baldino's stipulations in exchange for his vote on the gas tax.

Baldino provided the crucial sixth vote needed to pass the gas tax, which will add an estimated 2.8 cents to the pump price of a gallon of gasoline in the six-county area. The tax is expected to go into effect Oct. 1 and will produce an estimated $55 million the first year.

Baldino ended a two-year stalemate over the gas tax, saying the only alternative was an austerity budget that required drastic service cutbacks and fare hikes. "The auserity budget wasn't an answer to the problems," he said. "That's no way to run a government."

AS A GUARANTEE that suburban service programs will be implemented, Baldino demanded a two-year cutoff on the tax. If the board does not reapprove the tax, it will expire on Oct. 31, 1979.

Area residents react to new tax — Page 3

Despite the service increases, the other three suburban members remainded firm in their opposition to the gas tax.

Gene Leonard of Oak Forest warned that the gas tax may trigger "a strong counter-reaction in Springfield in the near future."

"There will be legislators waiting to dismantle the RTA," Leonard said, noting the RTA will need to seek additional funding powers from the legislature in about two years.

The two other suburban board members, Jerry D. Boose of St. Charles and Richard Newland of Waukegan, did not attend the meeting but voiced their opposition in a prepared statement.

THE RTA'S new $237 million budget for 1977-78 was approved 6 to 1 as part of the gas tax compromise. It includes $100,000 for a series of studies to determine what kind of transportation is needed in the suburbs. The RTA's fiscal year starts today.

Baldino said he expects the new service programs to emphasize special transportation needs, a departure from the regional bus routes that has characterized RTA's suburban pro-

Police hold slim hope for girl's safety

SARASOTA, Fla. (UPI) — Police said Thursday night they had been able to do little but hang on to "that slim hope" that 15-year-old Charlotte Grosse, abducted from a tent in a Girl Scout campout, would be released unharmed.

Twenty-four hours after she called her father to tell him she was unhurt and would be set free, Sheriff's Cpl. William Stookey said investigators were "working with whatever they find. They have found very little.

"Everyone is hanging on to that slim hope that she will be released unharmed," Stookey said. Asked to explain his use of the phrase "slim hope," Stookey said statistics show on "a national scale that the longer the time goes the less the chances are" of a kidnap victim being released unharmed.

CHARLOTTE, abducted before dawn Wednesday, called her father at 10:15 p.m. Wednesday, told him she was unharmed and would soon be released, probably at a telephone booth. She has not been heard from since.

Authorities issued a composite photograph believed to resemble the abductor after "a believed possible sighting" Wednesday night, apparently around the time the girl called home.

At first Stookey declined to discuss the sighting, but late Thursday he said the girl was apparently seen with the man. She was dragged away wearing only a Mickey Mouse T-shirt and underpants, but Stookey said the witness reported she was dressed in what "we believe are dark jeans. The person couldn't make out a Mickey Mouse T-shirt so we assume she is wearing something else. She wasn't wearing shoes."

The composite showed a man with dark, stringy hair, a thin face, about six feet tall, weighing about 170 pounds with a dark complexion.

Charlotte was abducted from a tent where she was camping with her 14-year-old sister Eleanor and Virginia Wallace, 15.

Virginia Wallace said Thursday that they heard rustling in the underbrush

Cruise missile replaces B1

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter's decision to stop B1 bomber production boosts the strategic importance of the cruise missile — a small, pilotless jet that already is complicating U.S.-Soviet arms talks even though it is still in the testing phase.

At his morning news conference Thursday, Carter said the B1 decision was "one of the most difficult decisions that I've ever made." He added the nation now will rely instead on the cruise missile, a weapon the Russians do not have.

The cruise missile is one of two new weapons that will be available to U.S. strategic planners in the first half of the 1980s. The other is the Navy's Trident submarine, which will come into the fleet in 1979.

TWO VERSIONS of the cruise are under development — the 21-foot cigar shaped "Tomahawk," originally designed to be fired from submarines, and the Air Force's "ALCM," designed to be launched from airplanes.

Highly accurate, they use radar to stay on course and find their way to targets in the Soviet Union by built-in computers programmed with a "map" of the terrain below.

Cruise missiles are relatively inexpensive compared to the B1 — about $1 million each, against the estimated $101.7 million for each of the warplanes.

The combined Navy and Air Force program, now targeted for 3,592 missiles, might cost around $5.1 billion total, although additional airplanes to launch them would be extra.

ONE OF THE roadblocks to progress in the current U.S.-Soviet strategic arms limitation talks has been disagreement over whether the cruise missile should be regarded as a strategic weapon and subjected to the limitations of the prospective SALT II treaty.

The Carter administration offered only to accept some limitations on the range of the cruise missiles as part of the "deep cut" proposal rejected by the Soviets in March.

Village opts out of plans for pipeline to O'Hare

by RENA WISH COHEN

Only five of the eight Northwest suburban communities that had considered building a pipeline to O'Hare Airport to obtain Lake Michigan water met today's deadline to participate in the planning stages of the project.

Palatine, Buffalo Grove and Arlington Heights have informed SHARE + 3, a group of which all were members, that they cannot commit themselves to the project without further exploration of alternative methods of receiving the lake water they have been allocated by the state.

The decisions came in response to a July 1 deadline set by SHARE + 3, asking all eight member municipalities whether they supported the concept of a joint water transmission system between their communities and Chicago.

SCHAUMBURG, Hoffman Estates, Rolling Meadows, Elk Grove Village and Mount Prospect have decided to stick with SHARE + 3 through the planning stages of the O'Hare pipeline project. The five will split the costs of legal, fiscal and engineering studies for the pipeline.

Charles A. Willis, Elk Grove village manager and chairman of the SHARE + 3 executive committee, said he did not know how the shrinking of the group from eight to five would affect the cost of the project, estimated at a minimum $42 million.

"It will affect it, but how much or in what direction we won't know until we do detailed engineering studies."

The cost of rights-of-way, legal fees and construction of the pipeline to each community had been estimated at a minimum of $2.6 million for Palatine, to $11.8 million for Schaumburg. Willis said the elimination of several communities would cut down on the length of the pipeline and the size of storage reservoirs, pumps and pumping facilities, but he could not estimate whether the cost to each community would decrease or increase.

THE THREE COMMUNITIES that declined to commit themselves to the venture could rejoin at a later date, Willis said, but they would have to pay their share of any expenses in-

Saga of Mary Hartman's suburban life is at its end

Byline report

Diane Mermigas

Louise Lasser

Some suburbanites will be losing their best friend tonight.

That neurotic housewife with the red, braided pigtails has seen the last case of waxy build-up on her kitchen floor.

Mary Hartman is bidding adieu to the suburban experience and her husband today at 10 p.m. on Channel 32 and, sources say she may very well leave the backward little town of Fernwood, Ohio, on the arm of her lover, Sgt. Foley.

ALTHOUGH THE night-time serial of 18 months is coming to a premature end because of falling ratings and a phsycially exhausted leading lady (Louise Lasser), "'Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman" has left a lasting impression on its viewers.

Because "Mary Hartman" opened up the American conscience, worked its way into our bloodstreams and had us looking at ourselves as we never had before, it has interested many university psychologists and professors of mass communications.

Two college professors who intend to keep the "Mary Hartman" phenomenon alive in the interest of researching human behavior are Mary B. Cassata, a mass communications professor at the State University of New York at Buffalo, and Kenneth Haun, an experimental psychologist at Monmouth College in Long Branch, N. J.

The two are asking for a $500,000 private grant that will help them begin a five-year study of daytime soap operas and their night-time parodies, like "Mary Hartman," and the audience reaction to them.

"THERE'S NO DOUBT about it. 'Mary Hartman' has had the

Man arrested on sale of explosives

A Barrington man was charged Thursday with the sale of explosives in a crackdown by authorities on illegal fireworks. Charged was Thomas L. Wojcik, 23, of 1197 Northwest Hwy., Barrington, an electronics salesman, whom authorities said was selling fireworks near suburban high schools. Authorities said they confiscated several thousand dollars of cherry bombs, M-100s and M-80s from Wojcik's home and a van full of smaller fireworks.

Authorities arrested Wojcik Wednesday night in his van at Ill. Rte. 83 and Hintz Road, Wheeling Township, after he allegedly sold fireworks to undercover federal agents. Wojcik was charged with dealing in explosives without a license and with the unlawful storage of explosives without a license and with the unlawful posting $2,000 bond.

The arrest was a cooperative effort by the U.S. Customs Service, the U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms and the county sheriff's police.

17 mos. after father dies— baby expected

LONDON (UPI) — For new Zealand-born cartoonist Kim Casali, "Love Is" expecting the birth of her late husband Roberto's child next week — 17 months after he died of cancer.

The baby from the past will be born thanks to a deep-freeze sperm bank and artificial insemination.

Kim Grove was working in Los Angeles when she met Italian Roberto Casali in February 1967, fell in love and sent him a stream of letters, signing off with a drawing of two tiny figures captioned with a few words of affection.

Kim Casali

ROBERTO SHOWED the drawings to an American newspaper and the now world famous cartoon series "Love Is" was born.

Together they built up a multimillion dollar business from the cartoon that is known to newspaper readers in 60 countries.

They settled in Weybridge, England and had two of the three children they planned before tragedy struck.

Roberto was found to be suffering from incurrable cancer and Kim persuaded Roberto to contribute to a deep-freeze sperm bank to continue their love.

ROBERTO DIED IN February 1976. But thanks to artificial insemination Kim, now 35, is expecting his baby shortly.

"The baby will be Roberto's last gift to me," she told reporters Wednesday. "I shall be able to remember him by it forever."

The couple had two sons — Dario, 5, and Stefano, 3, before Roberto died.

"I have wanted to have a large family ever since we were first married. Roberto and I were very anxious to provide a brother or sister for our two sons," she said.

New gas tax no pleasure

Several northwest suburban motorists reacted with disdain Thursday to news the Regional Transportation Authority had adopted a 5 per cent tax on gasoline, but the drivers said paying a few extra cents each time they fill up isn't going to make them drive any less.

"It (the tax can't cut back my driving," said Gertrude Hinz, of 735 N. Chestnut Ave., Arlington Heights, "I have to go to work.

"I don't like it. I don't ride the bus and I have to drive to work. I really don't get any advantages from it."

WHILE STEVE Crank of Palatine said he uses the Chicago and North Western Ry. to commute to and from work, he still opposes the RTA TAX.

"I'm never in favor of taxes," Crank said. "I don't like it one bit."

"The ones that are forced to drive will still continue to drive," Crank said. "It's a rather unfair arrangement of things. It's certainly not going to discourage my driving."

Vick Hight, 315 W. Prospect Ave., Mount Prospect, said though he opposed the tax. "It's such a small increase, you won't notice it at first. And you still have to go out and shop and work," he said.

SERVICE STATION operators also greeted the new tax negatively, but said it probably would not hurt business.

"It's legal, but it seems like every time they're turning for more money they're turning to gasoline consumers," said Roger Grandt, manager of Grandt's Shell, Northwest Highway and Belmont Avenue, Arlington Heights.

"When they (customers add up all the taxes, people blame the service station people for it, but we don't have anything to do with it," Grandt said. "I don't think it's right. No way."

"Everywhere they can add taxes, they're adding it to the people," he said. "But really, the gas consumer is paying an awful lot for taxes already."

WAYNE BUSSE, owner of the Busse Marathon station, Golf and Mount Prospect roads, Des Plaines, said he opposed the tax increase.

"The motorist blames one person (for higher pump prices-," Busse said. "The guy he buys the gas from."

"I don't think much of it (RTA) at all," Busse said. "Why can't they make it self-supporting? I can't see why they can't make it pay for itself."

Asked whether he could absorb the tax and keep his pump prices down, Busse said, "How could I absorb it? I'm working on 3 cents a gallon — that's what my margin is now."

Jim McNulty, attendant at Jim's Union 76 at Arlington Heights and Golf roads, Arlington Heights, said, "The average person is paying as high as 75 cents a gallon. If it keeps on growing I'm going to start riding a bicycle."

RTA board member Leo Cusick, center, and Nicholas Bosen, right, listen while the gas tax is approved.

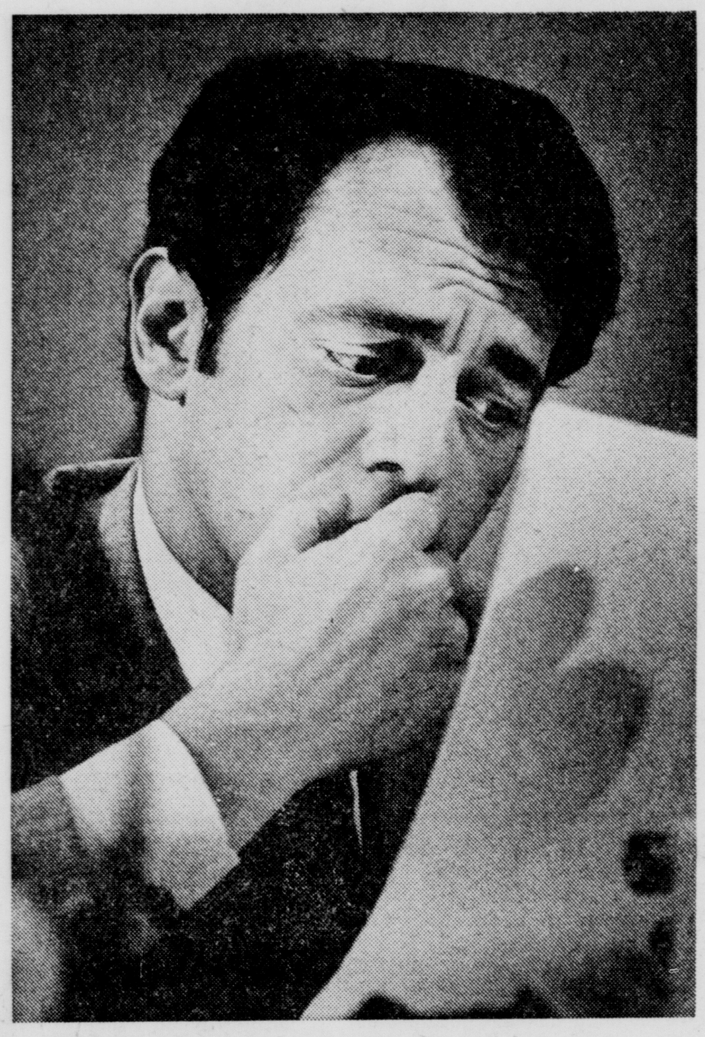
gram. He said some services could be implemented quickly, such as the expansion of subsidized senior citizen taxi programs. A detailed service program will be worked out by the RTA in the next few months.

The new service will be geared to areas that currently do not have public transportation, he said. Among the programs in the budget are a feeder bus service to train stations from Rolling Meadows, Palatine and Elk Grove Village; a bus route to Harper College in Palatine and construction of a bus and rail transportation center in Des Plaines.

THE GAS TAX is expected to be challenged in court. Unsuccessful Chicago mayoral candidate Anthony Martin-Trigona said he will file suit Tuesday or Wednesday, challenging the right of RTA board member Patrick O'Malley to vote for the tax.



D. Daniel Baldino: a boon for suburbs?

NORTHWEST SUBURBANITES voiced their complaints about the RTA's 5 per cent tax on gasoline. Gertrude Hinz, of Arlington Heights, far left, says she must drive to work anyway and would derive no benefits from the tax, Wayne Busse, above, owner of the Busse Marathon station, Des Plaines, says station managers will get the blame for higher pump prices, and asks why the RTA can't pay its own way. Jim McNulty, left, an attendant at Jim's Union '76 in Arlington Heights, vows he'll ride a bicycle if gas prices rise much higher.

Author of 'Pucci letter' breaks up Columbo court

by DAVE IBATA

Prosecutors Thursday produced the anonymous author of a letter that accused a Chicago man of killing the Columbo family of Elk Grove Village: a 75-year-old Chicago woman with a keen imagination.

Marceita Genoar, a surprise witness for the state in the final day of testimony in the murder trial of Patricia Columbo and Frank DeLuca, admitted she wrote the letter as a hoax to get even with her neighbor, Joseph Pucci. The case will go to the jury today.

Miss Genoar's letter read, "Joseph Pucci was overheard talking to two well-known 'hit men' on Taylor Street. He said he had something to settle with Frank Columbo of Elk Grove and he was going to take care of it."

THE LETTER HINTED Pucci, and not Miss Columbo, 21, and DeLuca, 39, murdered her parents, Frank and Mary Columbo, and her 13-year-old brother Michael, May 4, 1976.

Miss Genoar's testimony brought laughter from attorneys, jurors and spectators while she spoke without a hint of remorse about setting up her hated neighbor for police.

She said, simply, "I made it up."

Elk Grove Village police received Miss Genoar's anonymous letter May 13, 1976.

Judge R. Eugene Pincham covered his face with a handkerchief as he tried to control himself, while even DeLuca and his attorneys, who had based part of their defense on the letter, joined in the laughter.

THE LETTER, which also accused Pucci of arson, narcotics traffic, sale of stolen property and another unsolved murder, earlier was cited by DeLuca's lawyers as an example of police incompetence.

Toomin and Bloom say police failed to follow up the "Pucci letter" because of their eagerness to "frame" DeLuca.

They indicated an investigation into the letter would have showed Pucci had friends in organized crime.

However, Pucci is only a tool and die worker at the M&A Machine Shop in Chicago who had the misfortune to raise Miss Genoar's ire, prosecutors said.

AFTER THE LETTER was made public, Miss Genoar said, "He (Pucci) was very harassed and very nervous, and that's exactly what I wanted."

Dep. Chief William Kohnke of the Elk Grove Village police said his investigators worked more than a year to trace the Pucci letter back to Miss Genoar. They and Terry Sullivan, assistant state's attorney, confronted her June 21 at her home on Chicago's Near West Side.

Prosecutors said they found her house, where she and four generations of her family have lived since 1903, partially burned down. They said she makes ends meet by making and selling shampoo, and has a fondness for a drink consisting of lemon and cranberry juice and port wine.

Prosecutors say they talked with Miss Genoar four hours before she finally admitted she wrote the letters and agreed to testify for the state as a rebuttal witness.

After Miss Genoar testified she wrote crank letters, she added, "I hope I have the opportunity to tell why I wrote these letters. Otherwise, people will think I'm crazy."

Toomin asked her to explain.

MISS GENOAR said Pucci had burned down four garages on the 1500 block of W. Jackson Boulevard, including her own, in an attempt to scare away older residents so he could buy their houses.

However, she said, "We're tough. We've been up and down, up and down in that neighborhood, and we don't scare easily."

She said after reading in newspapers that police were hunting for leads to killers in the Columbo murders, she wrote the letter to get even with Pucci.

Miss Genoar testified as one of the last witnesses in the Columbo-DeLuca trail.

Closing arguments will be made at 9 a.m. today in Pincham's courtroom at the Cook County Criminal Courts Building, 26th Street and California Avenue, Chicago.

Panel finishes work on energy bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Ways and Means Committee completed action Thursday on President Carter's energy tax package, approving a bill projected to save less energy than Carter asked but not the gutted program that some had feared.

Although the committee during weeks of work killed Carter's gas tax and his rebate for energy efficient cars, it did pass a tax on gas guzzling cars, tax credits for home insulation and solar energy, a tax to push industries and utilities away from oil and gas toward coal, and a major tax on oil that will raise the price of energy for everyone but rebate it evenly to the public.

"The plan that emerges is not only a more practical design for energy savings, but also carries a better guarantee for enactment," said chairman Al Ullman, D-Ore., after the committee adjourned for the week-long July 4 recess.

"WE HAVE SENT A clear message to OPEC and the industrial world that the United States is unwilling to suffer uncertain supplies that threaten economic growth and national security," Ullman said.

According to the committee staff, the ways and means bill would save the equivalent of 2,779,000 barrels per day of oil while Carter's plan was projected to save 4,712,000 barrels.

The gap actually is smaller, the staff said, because some of Carter's projections were found to be overstated.

The committee estimated each American will be paying $22 to $28 more for energy and various products that depended heavily on it, in the first year of operation of the bill. By the third year, the added cost per capita will be around $75, the staff estimated.

"EVERY AMERICAN will be much more conscious of the cost of energy," Ullman said.

In terms of Treasury revenue, the bill would lose $1 billion in fiscal 1978, largely because the new tax on crude oil would be rebated to the public at about $22 for each adult through the income tax and Social Security systems.

In later years, from 1979 through 1985, the bill is projected to raise taxes by $54.3 billion. But that money is certain to be spent either in further rebates or in tax "reform."

The most significant difference between Carter and the committee was the gas tax, a politically unpopular proposal that never stood a chance in Congress.

"NO MATTER HOW you hammer, a round peg won't go into a square hole," said Ullman, acknowledging the political problems with the original bill.

But nonetheless, said Ullman, "the nation has receivedthe first signal that Congress is dead serious about saving energy."

The House Commerce Committee, which is considering the nontax aspects of the Carter plan, adjourned with much of its work ahead, including a possible fight over lifting price regulations from natural gas. The Carter plan to expand controls won by one vote in the committee Wednesday, but could come up again.

Both the Ways and Means and the Commerce bills will be combined in mid-July by an ad hoc energy committee.

WAYS AND MEANS Thursday approved a version of Carter's tax on use of oil and gas by utilities, designed to encourage them to convert to coal.

Illinois briefs

Dems sidetrack House crime bill

In an 11th hour move, the Illinois House Thursday sidetracked the most highly prized plank of Gov. James R. Thompson's "get tough on crime package;" a proposal to create a new class of felony crimes. Democrats fought attempts to approve an amended bill to create "class x" felonies punishable by mandatory life prison sentences for persons convicted of certain heinous crimes. Late in the evening, Thompson emerged from a meeting and told The Herald he felt confident he had the votes to pass the bill as amended and avoid a joint House-Senate conference committee.

However Democrats objected to the use of an amendment and in an extraordinary move House Speaker William Redmond, D-Bensenville, ruled the amendment was not germane at about 11:30 p.m., forcing the bill into a conference committee. The move put off action on the class X bill until past the legislature's midnight deadline. The delay means that 107 votes, rather than the normal 89 will be needed to enact the legislation. Thompson's controversial package includes mandatory six year to life sentences for persons convicted of certain heinous crimes, sets new rules for plea bargaining and establishes a special commission to study determine sentencing.

Veto Laetrile bill: FDA chief

Donald Kennedy, head of the Federal Food and Drug Administration, Thursday wrote Gov. James R. Thompson urging him to veto a bill permitting the use of Laetrille by terminal cancer patients. "Should Illinois legalize Laetrile," Kennedy wrote, "a great number of cancer victims in the state could be irreparably harmed, both by spending large sums of money for this drug and foregoing known effective treatments that are now available for many forms of cancer. I hope that Illinois would not legitimize this exploitation of a tragic desease," Kennedy said. "I would hope Illinois would not rely on the doctrine of caveat emptor (let the buyer beware) to protect its citizens from consumer fraud and health risks."

The bill, H1200 by Rep. Donald Totten, R-Hoffman Estates, passed the legislature overwhelmingly. It allows doctors to prescribe the controversial apricot derivative for cancer patients without hope of recovery. The state Dept. of Public Health would monitor its manufacture and distribution within the state. However, Kennedy said, "It's shipment from or into Illinois is now illegal under federal law and passage of state legislation would not alter this situation.

Workmen's comp bill signed

Gov. James R. Thompson Thursday signed a compromise measure cutting slightly the generous workmen's compensation benefits enacted in 1975. "This is the best bill that could be achieved this session," Thompson said. "In signing it, I wish to make it clear that this administration does not regard the subject of workmen's compensation as a closed one." Thompson said he soon plans to appoint a Governor's Council on Jobs and the Economy which will study benefits for the jobless and workers hurt on the job over the summer. "I will look at their work and then decide if further steps need to be taken in fall."

A key feature of S1019 is the shift from the weekly manufacturing wage to the average weekly wage, which is lower, in computing workmen's compensation payments. Business spokesmen have pressed for benefit cuts for two years, arguing their workmen's compensation insurance rates have soared and cost jobs. Thompson said a Pennsylvania firm interested in moving to Illinois balked because insurance would be $90,000 more than in Iowa. Labor spokesmen say insurance companies have taken advantage of the higher benefits to boost their insurance rates, contending claims alone have not been great enough to justify the high rates.

Metropolitan briefs

Attorney Walker to run ads in paper

Former Gov. Daniel Walker will be among the first to take advantage of lawyers' newly won right to advertise their services, Walker aides said Thursday. Starting in weekend editions, eight Illinois newspapers will carry distinguished ads with black borders on the top and bottom, proclaiming:

The Dan Walker Law Office

"Has been established by former Governor Walker in Eight Cities in Illinois.

"The United States Supreme Court has decided that for the first time lawyers may advertise in newspapers, within certain limitations. The Supreme Court reasoned, and we agree, that legal services should be available to more people at a reasonable cost.

"We offer a broad range of legal services to people and businesses across the state."

VA guilty of 'stupidity': judge

A federal judge said he would like to put Veterans Administration officials in prison along with the man he sentenced Thursday for bilking the VA out of $700,000. In sentencing Percy Copeland, the president of a South Side barber college to one year in prison, U.S. District Court Judge Frank J. McGarr said the VA itself is guilty of "stupidity and negligence" for failing to adequately monitor its programs. "If the government had the wisdom and insight to indict the Veterans Administration, I'd send them to the penitentiary to join Mr. Copeland," McGarr said.

Man charged in fires in Sweden

The operator of a suburban exporting firm was arrested Thursday in connection with warehouse fires that caused $2.5 million damage in Sweden. Jan A. Assarsson, 33, head of U.S. Exporters, Inc., Kenilworth is charged in Sweden with gross arson and attempted gross fraud. He turned himself in to federal authorities and faces extradition. The charges were filed in connection with a February, 1975 fire that caused $2.5 million damages at Malmo, Sweden. Assarson stored art reproductions in the warehouse and it was believed by federal authorities the fires were set to collect insurance benefits. Assarsson was described as a Swedish citizen who has been living in the United States since 1969.

Carter wants to talk to Brezhnev

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Denying that he has soured U.S.-Soviet relations through his stress on human rights, President Carter said Thursday he would "welcome a chance this year" to talk things over with Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev.

Carter said he felt no "fear or frustration or concern" about relations with the Russians despite Moscow's hostile reaction to Carter's drumbeat of attention on human rights — and on how Russia treats dissenters.

Nor has the Russian reaction spilled over into efforts to build a safer world," Carter said.

FAR-REACHING and difficult talks on banning nucler tests, demilitarizing the Indian Ocean and cutting production of conventional weapons are progressing smoothly, he said.

Even if he had anticipated the depth of Moscow's reaction, Carter said, he would have gone ahead with the human rights campaign.

At a nationally televised news conference during which he announced his decision not to fund the B1 bomber, Carter declined to confirm he is arranging to meet with Brezhnev in Alaska in August. No time or site for a summit has been fixed, he said.

But he said he thought it would be useful "to get to know one another."

THIS MADE IT seem likely that a meeting will occur — the first since 1974 between the newly elevated Brezhnev and an American president.

In Moscow, Tass said it was "the U.S. side" which first raised the question of a meeting between Brezhnev and "James Carter." The discussions are merely "preliminary," Tass said.

"I don't agree there are growing difficulties between ourselves and the Soviet Union," Carter told a questioner at a news conference.

On other matters, Carter called for an end to U.S. statements which have stirred both sides in the Mideast, angering first one side, then another.

MORE TALK ON the specific elements of a possible peace agreement should await the arrival of Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin in three weeks, he said.

Carter said his discussion of a Palestinian homeland, his sale of further arms to Israel and his administration's call for Israeli withdrawls from captured Arab land has managed to cause both sides to consider each other's views.

But he said he was not selling Israel down the river, as a questioner suggested. He said he has told the Arabs that the United States would not abandon Israel.

And he said he still has "high hopes" that a peace agreement could be reached this year.

Career also sidestepped the question about whether the United States would be willing to give up its defense treaty with Taiwan if that is Peking's price for full diplomatic relations. He noted that some countries which have diplomatic relations with China trade with Taiwan.

Area resident wins Herald contest

Dennis Doehny of Mount Prospect is the winner of The Herald's recent Six Flags contest.

The object of the week-long contest was to form as many words as possible from the letters in the phrase, "Screamin' Eagle at Six Flags." Doehny submitted 4,734 words; using the 1976 edition of Webster's New Collegiate Dictionary, the judges verified 4,186 of these words.

The contest attracted 437 entrants of whom five entered more than 4,000 words. Most contestants submitted between 1,000 and 2,000 words.

Many entries were a culmination of family effort, neighbor rivalry and neglected housework. The sheer volume of entries and the need to verify words delayed announcement of a winner and brought numerous calls to The Herald switchboard, said Linda Fischer, promotion manager.

For his winning effort, Doehny will receive a weekend for four at Six Flags over Mid-America near St. Louis.

Village holding back funds: parks

Arlington Heights Park District officials say the village is withholding funds it collects for park development under the land dedication ordinance.

Parks Director Thomas Thornton and commissioners contend the village owes the district $3,655 collected under the law, which requires developers to donate 10 per cent of their land or an equivalent amount of money for parks and schools.

But Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson said he has no record the park district is entitled to the funds and Village Pres. James T. Ryan said he is not aware of a conflict.

"I DON'T THINK the nonpayment is deliberate," Thornton said. "I just think the trustees aren't aware of the problem. But that doesn't mean there isn't a problem."

What concerns park officials and commissioners most is what they see as a lack of procedure for the park district to collect money accumulated in the fund by the village.

As building permits are issued for construction, the village collects the funds from developers. But park district personnel say they have no way of finding out how much money is paid and when.

"We don't know whether we should check with them periodically to see if there is any new building planned and money in the fund or what," Thornton said.

"As long as we put the pressure on we get the money," Jacqueline J. Gruenewald, park board president, said. "But we want a better relationship than that. Eventually we should get to the point where we don't have to go through the protocol of writing letters every time we want our money. That is our goal."

RYAN SAID A procedure already exists for informing the park district of new building developments. "Our procedure is having a park district person on the plan commission.

But the park district representative, Comr. Kathryn Graham, said, "That arrangement depends on my being there and that isn't enough.

"The system works fine up to a point where the developer pays the village its money," she said. "Then there's no procedure for us to get it. We just want a procedure established now so we won't have trouble when the big developments that are planned come along."

Problems with payment of land dedication money are not new. In 1975, Kay Muller, then vice president of the park board, charged Hanson with distorting the records of the dedication fund and with negotiating with developers without conferring with park officials. Hanson denied the accusations.

But soon after, the village board approved payment of $34,382.53 in the fund to the park district, a move aimed at reconciling differences between the two boards.

"It's a question of communication," Mrs. Gruenewald said. "We're doing as much as we can without stepping on toes. But we are letting the village know we're going to follow through on this."

Village out of O'Hare pipeline plans

curred to date, plus the additional cost of reworking engineering studies to reflect their participation in the project.

Both Palatine and Buffalo Grove had asked SHARE + 3 to extend the July 1 deadline for a commitment, and Arlington Heights had joined in their request for a joint discussion among all communities of alternative methods of bringing lake water to the area.

"What we've been operating with is that we were going to O'Hare, come hell or high water, and other questions haven't been answered," Palatine Village Pres. Robert J. Guss said. "It's like buying a car without knowing the terms of the bank loan."

Guss said Palatine was concerned with three major issues: whether the communities will be at the mercy of Chicago water rates; whether there can be a joint method of financing the pipeline, instead of SHARE's suggestion that each municipality select its own method; and whether the project will be eligible for state and federal funds.

"I think we're raising some legitimate questions that (the five communities) aren't asking," Guss said. "We're taking the brunt of the punishment because we're the bad guys and asking the questions, but it is the responsibility of the village board to be sure we don't cause the village to strap ourselves financially forever."

PALATINE, Buffalo Grove and Arlington Heights have said they are not closing the door on SHARE + 3, but merely trying to keep their options open. Some of those options are:

- Building a pipeline from the Northwest suburbs directly to Lake Michigan. This plan has been advocated for 20 years, by an organization called DAMP, consisting of Des Plaines, Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Palatine. The pipeline would cost more to build but would skirt the City of Chicago and its water rates.
- For Buffalo Grove, purchasing water from Highland Park. Buffalo Grove officials have argued this solution could be implemented more quickly and economically than the O'Hare pipeline, which is not expected to be completed until the early 1980s. Buffalo Grove would not have to invest in expensive improvements to its water system that would be necessary with the SHARE + 3 alternative.

1,100 homes lose power during storm

Approximately 1,100 homes in two sections of Arlington Heights were without electricity for about an hour Thursday morning when lightning blew out fuses in nearby lines.

About 1,000 customers in the vicinity of Northwest Highway and Wilke Road were without power from 7:15 to 8:15 a.m., Gordon Baer, district superintendent for Commonwealth Edison, said.

And about 100 homes near Raleigh Street and the Ill. Rte. 53 Frontage Road on the Northwest side of town were blacked out from 7:20 to 8:20 a.m., Baer said.

Correction

Miner Junior High School, 1101 E. Miner St., is not scheduled to close in 1978 as stated in a picture caption in Thursday's Herald.

Roosevelt University of Chicago has expressed an interest in leasing either Miner or Thomas Junior High School after the next school year but Arlington Heights Dist. 25 has not decided which school will be closed.

Landscape awards

Members of the Arlington Beautification Council are accepting nominations for this year's landscaping awards until July 9.

Residents may make nominations by calling Lynnea Semasko at 253-3540. Private residences are excluded from the contest.

Winners will be selected July 26 and each will receive a plaque. Last year more than 20 businesses and apartment complexes were honored.

Concert, fireworks today at Fest '77

A country/rock concert by Palm followed by a mini fireworks display highlight today's Festival '77 activities.

The concert is from 8 to 11 p.m. at Recreation Park, 500 E. Miner St.

Charlotte Grosse's suspected abductor

around the campsite all night. Charlotte, she said, "was really bad, really jumpy. I don't think she slept at all."

She said the three girls stayed up late playing cards and listening to the radio, and mentioned the murder of three Girl Scouts at a campsite in Oklahoma two weeks ago.

VIRGINIA SAID she tried to calm Charlotte over the noises outside the tent. She told her that "nobody in their right mind would be out there at 4 a.m. why don't we just try to fall asleep."

But just before dawn, she said, Charlotte awoke the other two girls to tell them "It's back!"

At that moment, she said, the mosquito netting at the rear of the tent was ripped apart and a dark figure burst into the tent, grabbing Charlotte by her waist-length brown hair.

"Oh my God, it's got her!" Eleanor screamed.

"Please," Charlotte cried, "Don't take me," as the man dragged her away.

In a nearby tent, the noise awoke Teresa and Lisa Kelly. "The screams, the screams," said Lisa Thursday. "I'll never forget them. They were so terrible."

Nurse case jurors await transcripts

The jury in the trial of two Filipino nurses accused of poisoning Veterans Administration hospital patients halted deliberations Thursday after asking for transcripts of testimony from a key prosecution witness. Sources said the nine women and three men wanted to review statements by nursing assistant Lula Balls, a government witness in the three-month federal Court trial of Filipina Narciso, 31, and Leonora Perez, 33. The woman testified regarding one poisoning count against Miss Narciso.

The defendant left patient Mark Hogan alone and asked Miss Balls to watch him. Moments later Hogan suffered a mysterious breathing failure. The significance of the jury's action was not clear. Judge Philip Pratt said he would answer the transcript request Friday. The panel started deliberations Wednesday and continued Thursday until early evening, when jurors went to a downtown hotel for the night.

NAACP chief eyes politicians

The incoming leader of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People said Thursday blacks will "shake up this country from top to bottom" to defeat politicians thwarting gains made in civil rights. Benjamin L. Hooks, who will succeed Roy Wilkins as executive director Aug. 1, spoke at the 68th annual convention of the civil rights organization. "In the South we used to have the expression that if there is one rascal in office and one running for office, we'd vote for the one who was out, no matter how bad he was, just to shake it up," Hooks said. "If we have to shake up this country from top to bottom, we're capable of doing it and we don't mind doing it."

He told reporters some liberal politicians are turning their backs to the civil rights movement and the country appears to be in a conservative mood. "I detect a worsening sign," Hooks said. "Many of us felt that with an overwhelmingly Democratic Congress and a Democratic president who owed his election to a monolithic black vote, we would be moving ahead at a faster rate than we are. "If they can't be responsible to the poor and disadvantaged of this country, then we will try to meet them at the ballot box and get somebody in who will be."

Carter talks with Wood, Welch

President Carter Thursday interviewed the first two of the five finalists for FBI director — U.S. Circuit Judge Harlington Wood Jr., Chicago, and FBI career agent Neil Welch, Philadelphia. Attorney General Griffin Bell interviewed both men in advance of their meetings with Carter. "It was very cordial, a business-like meetting," Wood told reporters after a 25-minute session with Carter in the White House Oval Office. He refused to elaborate further. Welch also turned aside reporters' questions after his interview in the Oval Office. Carter had not instructed him to remain silent, he said, "I'm just naturally quiet."

Victory for teen contraceptives

A 15-year-old girl who does not want to tell her parents about seeking contraceptives has won a victory in federal court. The 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled in a 2-1 decision that the girl be represented in the case by a guardian without the knowledge of the parents. In the majority opinion, Judge William H. Webster said the girl's "interest in privacy must outweigh any desire to accommodate parental concerns." The girl, identified in court papers Wednesday only as M.S., was unable to obtain contraceptives at the Pennington County, S.D., Health Department's family planning clinic without approval of her parents. She filed a class-action suit which charged the clinic's policy infringes on all minors in Pennington County who have been denied contraceptives.

same phenomenal effect on viewers that daytime soap opera has had over the years," Ms. Cassata said during a recent telephone interview.

What started out as a soap opera spoof developed into a biting, all-too-realistic look at the anxieties of suburban life, she said.

"Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman" was such an unrestrained, barefaced look at modern America that its creator, Norman Lear, could not sell the program to any of the three major networks.

After syndicating the weeknight serial to about 100 television stations, the half-hour comedy took the country by storm and proved that bold, innovative programming was possible without network influence.

"There has been nothing else like it," Ms. Cassata said. It was an unethical, immoral show that defied all previous network standards and practices. "Mary Hartman" was in a class by itself, offering situations and experiences that were one viewer's chuckle, another viewer's cringe.

"Because it was so different and so popular at first, we want to find out what the social impact of the show has been," she said. So, Ms. Cassatta and Haun plan to survey 20,000 Americans in their study to find out what attracts them to daytime soap opera and to their nighttime parodies.

"MARY HARTMAN" AND the soaps are complete opposites, she said.

"One offers a very serious view of daily life where an intimate relationship is developed between the viewer and the characters. The other is a spoof where the viewer becomes more wrapped up in the bizarre incidents of the show than in the characters," she said.

Many viewers were drawn to "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman" after it premiered in January 1976 because they were never sure what wierd happenings they could expect from Mary and her friends, Ms. Cassata said.

One night viewers would watch as funeral services were held in Mary's immaculate kitchen for a sports coach who had drowned in a bowl of chicken soup. Another night Mary was forced to deal with the irregular behavior of her grandfather, who was a compulsive exhibitionist known as the "Fernwood flasher."

Another night Mary was kidnaped by a mass murderer, only after having watched her husband carry on an extramarital affair, over which she had a nervous breakdown.

"It wasn't just the suburban housewife getting hooked on 'Mary Hartman.' But, it was the intellectual, the professional, the blue-collar worker — everyone," Ms. Cassata said. "It was anyone who was interested in the zaniness and commentary on our lives that the show provided."

"VERY SADLY, FOR many people, a great deal of the underlying theme in the show has been very real. Mary Hartman made us realize that we are ruled by television advertisements and other forces in our society that dictate to us how we should look and act, and what we should buy," she said.

"Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman" had another plus going for it, and that was it never steered clear of the important issues. It dealt with the politics of a union through the eyes of Mary's husband, Tom. It dealt with the women's movement through a woman who came to Fernwood to promote equal rights for women in the bedroom.

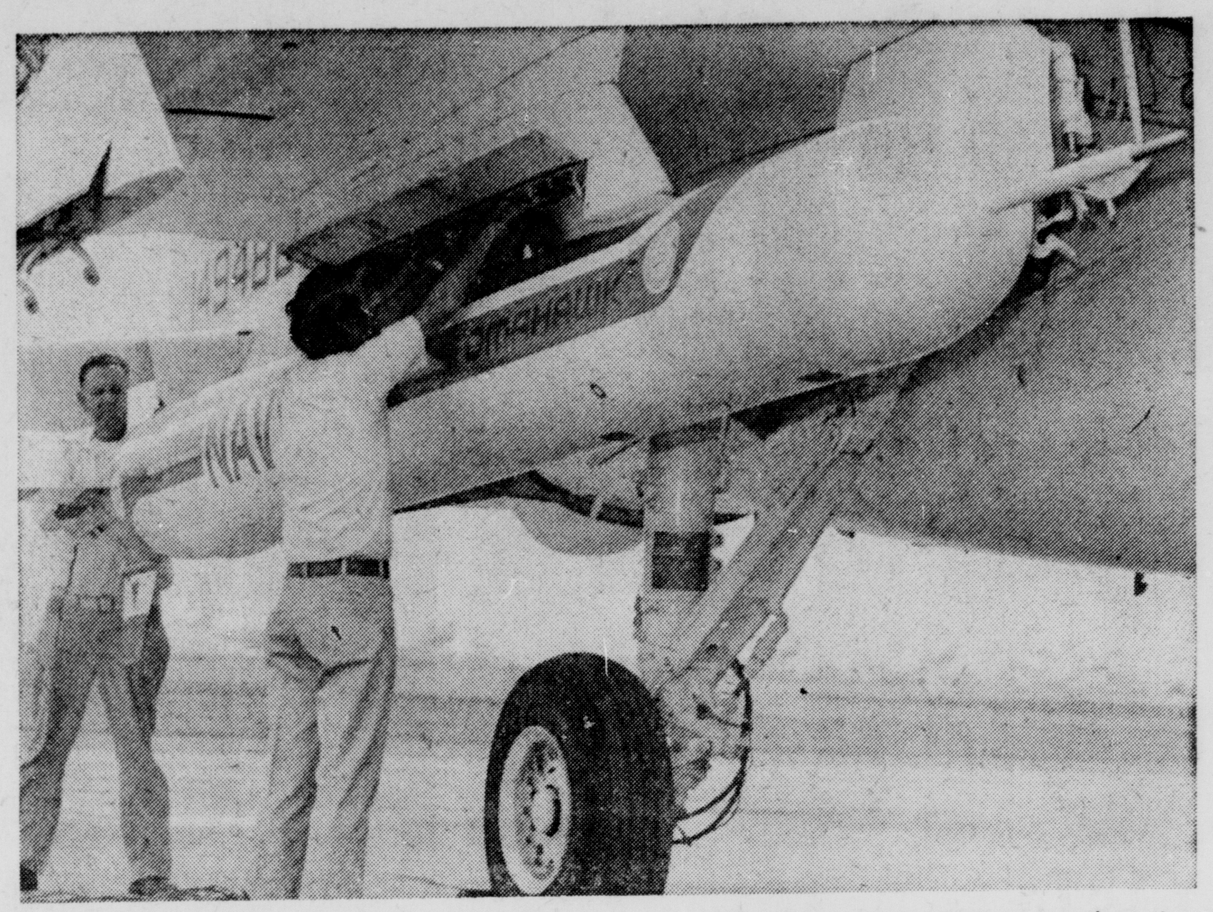
It dealt with a wife beating through Garth Gimble, who beat his wife regularly before she allegedly beat him to death with a Christmas tree.

The show might have approached the most serious of issues in a ridiculous manner, but it approached them none the less, Ms. Cassata said.

Why "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman" has been a short-lived success is quite another thing, however. It was a unique look at ourselves that viewers grew weary of quickly.

While daytime viewers remain loyal for years to the tedious trivia of everyday life portrayed in soap operas, they can lose themselves and their problems in these characters because they are real, Ms. Cassata said.

"In the case of 'Mary Hartman,' we can only laugh at what is a spoof on reality. Instead of providing viewers with a model to follow, like soap opera characters do, 'Mary Hartman' offered them ridiculousness," Ms. Cassata said. "It didn't last because somewhere along the line people just stopped laughing."



THE TOMAHAWK, designed and built by General Dynamics in San Diego, is the cruise missile President Carter said he wants to see developed in place of the B1 bomber. Convair said full production of the missile, which has been tested 22 times since General Dynamics developed the concept in 1972, could mean 2,000 new jobs in San Diego.

'Inevitable confrontation' set up by bomber rejection

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate conservatives, outraged over President Carter's decision not to deploy the B1 bomber, indicated Thursday they may press ahead in an effort to fund the aircraft and force a veto confrontation with the White House.

Liberals and political action groups hailed Carter's decision.

"Three cheers for the President!" said Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho. "We can now avoid squandering $100 billion on a 20th Century version of the Spanish armada."

SEN GEORGE McGovern, D-S.D., a longtime foe of the bomber, interrupted debate on a child nutrition bill on the Senate floor to say he was "deeply gratified."

But Rep. Saumel Stratton, D-N.Y., called the scrapping of more than 12 years of research "a very serious mistake," and Rep. Robert Dornan, R-Calif., said, "They are breaking open the vodka bottles in Moscow."

Dornan said the decision would cost 68,000 jobs in California, where B1 builder Rockwell International is located.

Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., senior Republican on the Senate Armed Services Committee, challenged Carter's assertion that cruise missiles can substitute for manned bombers.

TOWER SAID Congress may not "accept a cutback of the B1 bomber funds" already approved and, "in that regard the B1 issue remains very much alive."

Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker told a news conference: "I think that to forego B1 bomber production is to forego production of the only new weapon we have, and without knowing what we are going to get from the Russians.

"I think the B1 ought to be put into production at about the level Congress suggested."

The House has appropriated $1.4 billion for the first five $100 million planes and the Senate Appropriations Committee also has approved money for the B1, setting the stage for a battle before the full Senate.

"THE PRESIDENT'S decision sets up an inevitable confrontation between Congress and the White House," predicted Rep. James Jones, D-Okla. "I plan to do all I can to reverse the President's decision."

Sen. John Culver, D-Iowa, called the decision "the most constructive and courageous decision on military spending in our time." He said he would introduce an amendment to delete the B1 funding in the Senate.

Top Democrats rose to the support of the President, including Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd, who called the B1 "too great a gamble" for the cost.

But Donald Rumsfeld, who as secretary of defense under Gerald Ford ordered production of first models, said, "I know of no facts that have changed since my decision was made."

Former President Gerald Ford said the decision to cancel the B1 bomber was a mistake. "I strongly disagree with the president's decision," Ford told newsmen.

"It is a very risky gamble. He is relying on a B52 that is 20 years or more old, an aircraft that was developed in the 1950s. "He is also gambling on a cruise missile system that is still in the research and development stages," Ford said. "In my opinion it is too big a gamble and too much of a risk when you rely on a nearly obsolescent weapons system, the B52, and an as yet unproven cruise missile."

Cruise missile now tops in arms race

prehensive settlement, those matters are still open for discussion," he said.

Along with the bombers and missile submarines, the third leg of the American strategic "Triad" defense concept is its intercontinental ballistic missile force.

CARTER IS PLANNING to end further production of the present Minuteman III ICBM and has decided to go slowly in developing the next generation, known as the MX.

The MX, originally planned by the Air Force for deployment in the mid-1980s at a cost of $30 billion or more, would be based in underground tunnels and move through them to fool Soviet targeters.

Harper board wrapup

Auditors hired for administration

The auditing firm of Tadlock Associates Inc., of Los Altos, Calif., has been selected by the Harper College Board of Trustees to audit the college's administrative structure.

At a special meeting Wednesday, the board agreed to budget $10,000 for the study, to be completed within 60 days after the firm's representatives meet with the Harper board and administration early this month.

Board chairwoman Shirley Munson said the firm's first step will be to examine administrative effectiveness, and identify strengths and weaknesses, both those that can be remedied in a short time and those requiring long-range attention.

Mrs. Munson said the $10,000 fee is "like peanuts. It will be a very preliminary analysis. Not much depth is available at that price."

Although nearly every other division within Harper has been audited, it is the first time in the school's 12-year history that the administrative structure will be reviewed.

Administrators' salaries hiked

The board approved salary increases for administrators and set aside funds to increase administrative salary ranges and for merit raises.

The salary ranges were adjusted upward 3 per cent, making base and maximum salaries higher in each range, Mrs. Munson said.

An amount of $47,000 was set aside for these raises, and each administrator may receive an increase of up to 5 per cent, based on an evaluation by a supervisory rating team through College Pres. Robert Lahti's office.

The board also made available $10,000 for merit pay increases, to be distributed based on evaluation, she said.

Administrators will receive the same fringe benefits given Harper faculty members next year, Mrs. Munson said. The package, which will cost an estimated $5,060, includes medical and dental coverage and life insurance.

Mrs. Munson said an itemized list of administrative salaries will not be available until 1977-78 administrative contracts are signed.

House unseats Breslin for residency 'violation'

by STEVE BROWN
Of our Springfield bureau

SPRINGFIELD — State Rep. Peg McDonnell Breslin went home early Thursday night. She was not playing hookey from the last day of the legislative session — 91 of her colleagues voted to unseat her.

For the first time in 18 years, a sitting member of the Illinois House was removed as the result of an election contest.

Her crime? Mrs. Breslin, a Democrat, was elected to represent a district in Ottawa, but she had lived in Chicago practically until the time she filed her nominating petitions.

She beat 10 candidates in a primary election and won one of the three seats from the 38th Legislative District.

NOT ONLY WAS IT the first ouster in 18 years, the three-hour debate, on the issue probably eliminated any chance of the legislature breaking a 20-year tradition of missing its June 30 adjournment deadline.

Mrs. Breslin sat quietly in her blue padded high-backed chair with the state seal hitting her at the shoulders. Occasionally she would whisper to her seatmate Ray Christensen, D-Morris.

The vote, 91-74, to unseat her split parties and geographical coalitions that usually rule the legislature.

SHE STARTED THE proceedings with her hands gripping the arms of the swivel chair, turning slightly to listen to her supporters argue that her "intent" was to return to Ottawa, where she was born and raised but left to attend college, work and get married.

Others, including State Rep. Richard Mugalian, D-Palatine, and State Rep. Edward Bluthardt, R-Schiller Park, argued she had not met the residency requirement of living in her district two years before the November election.

They were certain because Mrs. Breslin voted in the primary and general elections in Chicago in 1975. She listed her Fullerton Parkway address in the city when she filed her income tax returns.

At the end, her supporters tried desperately to get three people to change their minds and vote to keep her. But they failed.

MRS. BRESLIN ROSE and said she thanked 'former fellow colleagues" as a packed gallery that had been as still as the legislators craned their necks over railings to look at the woman who rose above her desk, piled high with bill books, to speak one final time.

She said she enjoyed her six months in the House, she thanked them for teaching her the legislative process and noted that she had passed six bills during the session.

"I am not bitter, life is too short to be bitter," she said during brief remarks.

She stood to leave and in congruently her colleagues, even those who had said she was not eligible to sit with them, gave her a standing ovation.

HOUSE SPEAKER William Redmond, D-Bensenville, was agitated with the outcome. He ousted photographers because they tried to get some pictures without his permission.

Later Redmond only would say it was the "first time Democrats had voted to throw out Democrats."

He turned and walked away. Mrs. Breslin ducked into a side office, friends rushed in and turned everybody else away. The lawmakers would have to go back and finish the work of the session.

Mrs. Breslin, private citizen, could go back home, wherever that might be.

H.C. PADDOCK. 1852 - 1935

Pennant fever's a great disease

If you're 30ish or so, you can't keep from wondering why this couldn't have happened to the Cubs while you were growing up.

In those days the Chicago Cubs had a roster filled with paunchy, balding players on the final gasps of their careers and a corps of bright eyed kids who moved overnight from academia onto the playing field.

Big name players like Bob Buhl and Lew Burdette, known for their standout days with Milwaukee, and Don Zimmer, a former Dodger regular, played for the Cubs in their twilight years.

They had guys like Andre Rodgers, a former cricket player, as the team's shortstop. They once even used a left handed catcher in a game because they ran out of right handed ones.

Regardless, they were the North Side heroes. The problem was that their greatest hope was not to leap into first place but somehow to leap out of last. And sure enough, every once in awhile, a rival would end up below them in the standings.

You knew they couldn't win very often, but you rooted anyway.

And as the year of 1977 opened to the baseball season, you couldn't help but hark back to the hapless days of the Cubs.

After all, the 1977 Cubs had traded away their star player who led the league in batting for the last two seasons. They had traded Rick Monday, who became a national hero last year by rescuing the American flag when a rowdy jumped on the playing field and attempted to burn it.

The lineup featured several players whose limited careers were heaped in anonymity. They hired a senior citizen manager to run the band of youngsters, and he spent most of spring training spoofing the press rather than analyzing the play of his team.

The summer of '77 was expected to be a carbon copy of the horrendous days gone by. But today, the Cubs are the best team in baseball and the old propensity to lose has become the routine of winning. They're beating everybody.

The other day, they were two dozen games over a 500 win-loss percentage, and they hadn't lost a game in nine days.

You turn to the sports pages these days not to see whether they won but by how much. And that's a fan's euphoric dream.

It has been 32 years since the Cubs last won a pennant, and the law of averages tells us that failure can't last forever.

So relax and enjoy it. Pinch yourself if you want, but so far they're for real.

Freebies should all end

The Prospect Heights Park District is considering a change in its policy of free park privileges that is a small, inadequate step away from past practice.

The board has delayed until July 12 action on a proposal which would change the board's policy of giving free lifetime use of park facilities to former park commissioners and their families.

The proposed policy would limit free park privileges for former commissioners to a period of time equal to that they served the board.

In other words, a commissioner who served four years on the park board would be able to use park programs free for an additional four years. So would his family.

That change would be an improvement over the perpetual free use the park district presently grants former commissioners, but it is far short of the policy the district should have.

What the Prospect Heights Park District ought to do is to abolish its policy of granting free park privileges to both present and former board members. The freebies, though legal, are bad public policy because they put park commissioners in a special class, separate from the general public.

A Herald survey of park district practices earlier this year found that a number of park districts have policies which give free privileges to board members. Others, however, have banned the practice. Prospect Heights should join those who have banned freebies.

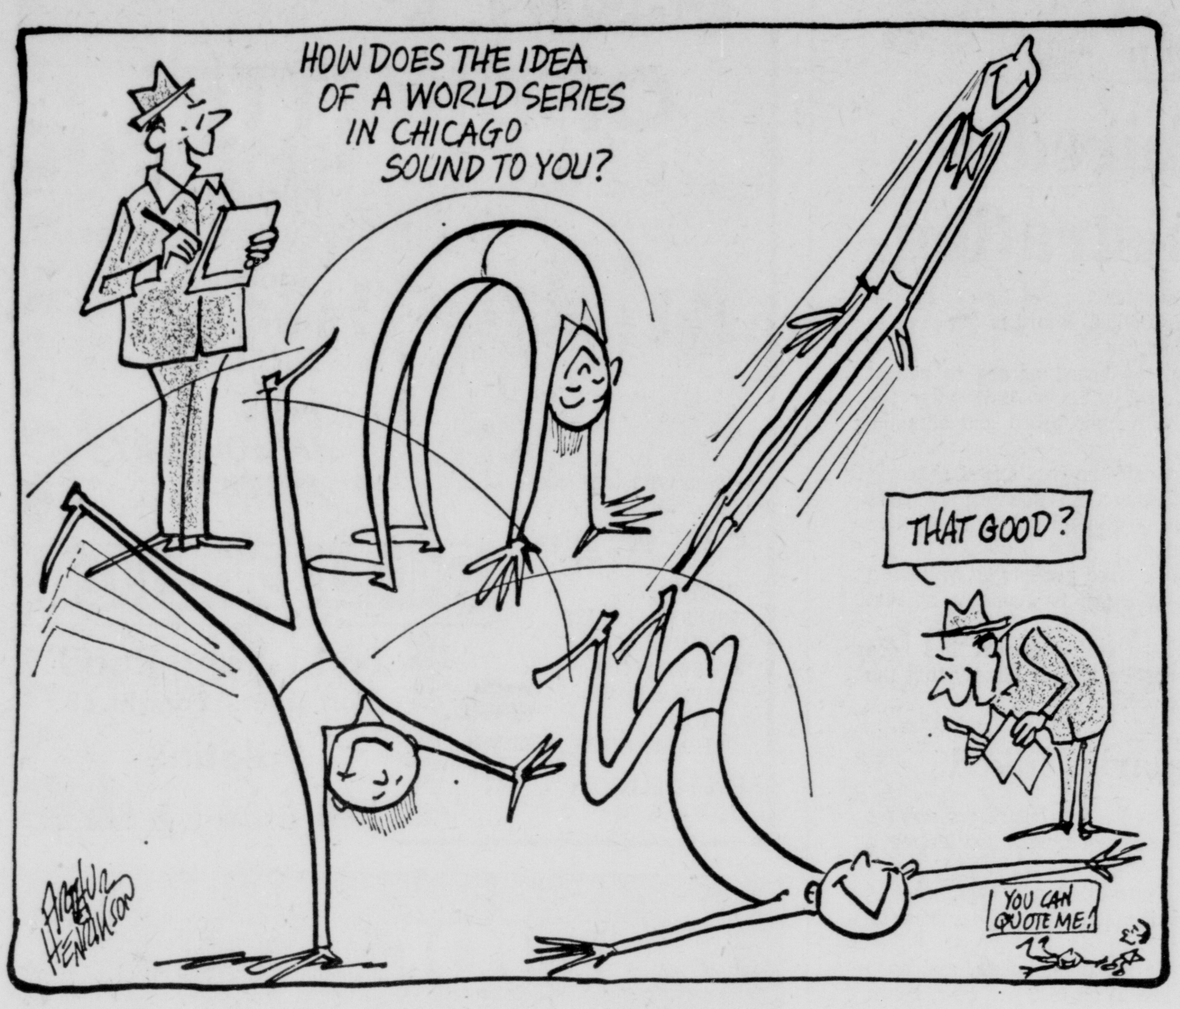
"The thing that bothers me most about growing old is the probability of becoming an unemployed teenager!"



Interview with L. D. (Longsuffrin Diedinwool) Fan.

It's God's revenge

Getting back at the back

Jim Bishop

The human back is, to my way of thinking, the most poorly organized part of human anatomy. Anyone can say a kind word for the heart, which will pump for 70, 80 or even 90 years without stopping. Or the brain which consists of three pounds of multi-million circuits and a storage memory.

The liver is a huge chemical factory which can be abused with the wrong solids and liquids for decades before it malfunctions. Even the plumbing system has a certain gravitational grandeur.

But the back — bah. What is it? A faceless, formless conglomerate of strap muscles held together by a necklace of beads called a spine, in which countless nerves emerge like an upside-down tree.

IT'S NOT EXCITING to look at. Women often bare them in the evening, but I never saw a man snort at shoulder blades. Piano movers have strong backs. So do wrestlers and football players. A lady could win a prize for a beautiful front, but you couldn't win bus fare for a gorgeous back.

I have a strong back. It comes from early years of working on an ice wagon and a milk truck. I was underpaid and overfed. In the nude I looked like a two-legged mule. Never, never did a date say "Hey, Jim, may I rub your back?"

In the autumn of 1963, President Kennedy and I talked of backs. He too was anti. He got steroid shots to ease the pain. He had a ruptured disc and wore a leather harness at all times.

HE THOUGHT the back was God's way of getting even. He had two discs fused. Kennedy wouldn't use the word pain. He called it discomfort, something he picked up from his surgeon.

When my back "goes out," which is about every four or five years, it does a handsome job of leaving the premises. If I ever become sufficiently well known to sponsor a disease, like those rich comics, I'm going to be known as the back man. Our slogan will be: "We're Behind Everybody."

THE LOWER-LEFT portion of my back went out yesterday. I swung a two iron in some rough. I could feel it as plainly as though I caught five fingers in the door of a bank vault. There were a series of small lightning bolts, followed by big ones which ran down the back of the leg.

There is nothing vague or diffuse about such a pain. It's there. It's alive. It's loud. Walking off the golf course I looked like a bobby pin with hair.

There are milions of you out there who are fellow sufferers, I know. My bed has more wood in it than Amy Carter's tree hut. I have less fun in mine than she does in hers. My wife, who also has a back pain, gave me two of each of the pills she had.

THEY DO NOTHING for pain, but they sure unscrew the head. For a couple of hours I wasn't sure whether I was Don Juan or Leonardo da Vinci. Of course I consulted my doctor.

Consulting means that two of us get to talk. I showed him where the pain was and he said, "Ah-ha!" This is hardly elaborate dialogue, but it proved that both of us knew where the action was.

He wrote a prescription and gave me a dissertation on his sinus and back-drip. You can guess which one gave the other $20. "Take a rest," he said. That's great, but from what?

A negligence lawyer once told me that back injuries are the most difficult to disprove. Whether it's whiplash or a wrenched muscle or tendon, it will now show up on X-rays.

NO MATTER where I try for a little shot of sympathy, the listener has a worse back. He never endures a pain — "it's sheer agony." He has given up on his doctor or all doctors. Worse, his physician has a bad back.

So, when anyone asks why I limp, I say it's an old war wound. Like malaria, it never goes away for long. This gets me by all except the wiseguys who ask "What war?"

As I write this, my wife is yanking chunks of hair from her scalp. Why I do not know. I didn't use the phone for more than a few minutes. I called two golf buddies — Ben Silberman and Sidney Schulman — to tell them I had wrenched my back.

They clucked with sympathy and asked what time tomorrow. All I said was make it an hour later, I need the rest . . .

Who should manage blind trusts?

Martha Angle and Robert Walters

In Washington

(Last of Two Related Columns)

Only three weeks after integrity-minded Jimmy Carter was sworn in as president, his staff proudly announced that virtually all of his personal assets were being placed in trust for the duration of his tenure in the White House.

The purpose of that action was to allow Carter to "be isolated from those of his assets most likely to be affected by actions of the federal government and it's agencies" — but that's easier said than done.

Despite the fact that countless government officials have relied upon similar arrangements, ostensibly to shield themselves from conflict of interest, there is no federal law or uniform set of regulations which provide guidelines for such trusts.

AS A RESULT, there are almost as many varieties of trusts as there are people who establish them. The Senate Governmental Affairs Committee now is in the process of drafting the first legislation ever to cover that sensitive area, and one of the most important provisions under consideration could cause problems for Carter.

That proposal would require that the trustee selected to administer an officeholder's assets should be an individual or institution qualified to maintain a truly arm's-length relationship with the beneficiary.

In most cases, the restriction would disqualify as administrator any man or woman who previously had been a personal friend or business associate of the public official.

During recent hearings, Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., chairman of the committee, posed the ethical problem in these terms:

"DO ANY QUESTIONS arise when a man employs a trustee who had been his personal attorney for many, many years or close friend for many, many years? Would not this arouse a question and suspicion?"

In Carter's case, the man who precisely fits that definition is Charles H. Kirbo, an Atlanta attorney who has done legal work for the President in the past and who is widely regarded as one of Carter's most trusted personal advisors.

The same Charles H. Kirbo also is the sole administrator of the trust established to isolate Carter from any potential conflict of interest.

Asked about that relationship on the day the Carter trust was revealed to the public, Robert J. Lipshutz, counsel to the president, insisted that "The basic element of integrity of the people who are involved" would preclude any improper collusion between Carter and Kirbo. "That is not the intent or the character of the people we are dealing with," added Lipshutz.

CARTER ISN'T the first president to select a longtime personal friend and business associate as administrator of a supposedly independent trust. President Lyndon E. Johnson placed most of his assets in a trust managed by A. W. Moursund, a banker and lawyer from Johnson's home town who in prior years had been both Johnson's friend and financial partner.

Similarly, Carter's Director of the Office of Management and Budget, Thomas B. (Bert) Lance, has selected an old friend, Dalton, Ga. businessman Thomas Mitchell, as administrator of a trust containing more than $5.6 million worth of stock, most of it in Georgia banks, as well as other assets.

Alan K. Campbell, chairman of the Civil Service Commission, told Ribicoff's committee that the Carter administration opposes as "too limited" a prohibition against personal friends and advisors as trust administrators. In fact, said Campbell, the public official ought to look for someone "in whom he has complete trust" to handle his finances.

But even if trustees Kirbo, Moursund and Mitchell are presumed to be men of great character and integrity, the nagging question remains: Would any of them risk their friend's personal fortunes in favor of a vaguely defined "public interest?"

Trial stories draw critics

What sort of professionalism do you attribute to your reporter for the Columbo murder trial, Dave Ibata? I'm truly tired of reading about sweet Patty's angelic face and perfectly arched eyebrows — and of poor Frank DeLuca and his love affairs at Walgreens, and of their ill-fated love affair.

Am I, having read less sympathetic accounts in other papers, supposed to foreget about the pornographic pictures of Patty with DeLuca's dog? Am I to forget the filthy mouth she used to the police? I'm not able to wonder about DeLuca's family of five children and his wife (called ignorant by Ibata) who have lived in the shadow of his previous extra-marital affairs and now horrified by the most vicious and ugly crime to haunt our suburbs.

I have a right, as a reader of public news, to see the facts which are being presented to the jury — and to watch their decision. I want to know the evidence in favor of and against Columbo and DeLuca. I do not want to know of their undying love, nor of her wardrobe. Your articles sound as if you're competing with the paperback novels on the newsstand — certainly not excellence in journalism.

I KNOW IT is one's privilege to choose not to read articles that displease. However, we all are aware of the influence the news media has on many Americans. So, if you're paying for something to read, you'd better well know what kind of news they are printing.

Specifically, I am referring to the half page article by Dave Ibata about Patricia Columbo's "lonely birthday!" Doesn't anyone in the media have the nerve or good sense to put her in the class she belongs? Why don't they say she is a spoiled, ruthless, immoral person and should be classed as such? Who really cares if she has lost her appetite, has a lonely birthday and has 100 changes of clothes?

On Nazi march

It was with interest that I read your editorial regarding the proposed Nazi march in Skokie. I've been trying to sort out my feelings and thoughts on the march and "Herr Frank Collin" . . .

An interesting sidelight to the infamous Collin's story is that his father was a Jew, born in Germany, who spent several months in the Dachau prison camp before being released in 1938 and coming to Chicago. His father was Max Simon Cohn, but changed his name in court to Collin. Frank's mother was a Roman Catholic. Very interesting, to say the least, especially since the Nazis lost no love on the Jews or Catholics. When the Nazi national organization found out about Frank's "tainted background," they tossed him out, but he still loves to click his heels and tongue here in Chicago.

Getting back to the proposed march . . . It seems to me that the Jews are in a "no-win" position. Should the Jewish people forego the Fourth of July holiday and stay silent, behind closed doors? Or, should they protest with an anti-Nazi march and run the risk of violence occurring on both sides? I think that either way, they'll be "damned if they do and damned if they don't"!!

If they stay silent, a large majority of people will say, "Well, what else did you expect; they've always been cowards — Hitler's troops marched them into prison camps and gas chambers and they didn't fight back. Nazis march in Skokie and again they hide in fear." On the other side of the coin, if they protest and violence occurs, a large majority of people will say, "So the Arab-Israeli battle isn't enough for them, huh? Now they have to cause trouble here, and even get the black gangs stirred up in the process."

So, either way, the Jews lose . . . "Damned if they do and damned if they don't" by the bigots and the large majority of non-thinking people. I don't know what's going to happen on the Fourth of July in Skokie — but this I do know . . . There will be no Independence Day in Skokie, or elsewhere, in the heart of any Jew or thinking person.

Carter serves only himself, public interest as president

by JOSEPH C. HARSCH

According to the current issue of the Atlantic Monthly magazine, President Jimmy Carter is emerging as a Rockefeller Republican. He has been called less complimentary things in other periodicals. But most observers writing about him these days seem to have noticed that he is neither the soft-money populist nor the New Deal spender, which a lot of people seemed to assume he would be during last year's presidential election campaign.

I think I was the first columnist to examine the theory that he would not, as a President, be hostile to the interests of the business community. Indeed, immediately after the election I suggested the possibility that American conservatives probably would get more of what they think they want from a Carter administration than they probably would have had from a Ford administration. With that background, I feel entitled to suggest now that there is no accurate label for the Carter position to be found in the existing American political vocabulary.

THE LABEL OF Rockefeller Republican is ingenious and there is something to it, but not enough to be conclusive. He is not the aristocrat enjoying playing politics like a Franklin Delano Roosevelt. He is not a Woodrow Wilson idealist. Someone called him the most conservative Democrat since Grover Cleveland. Well, Harry S. Truman could be fairly conservative about a lot of things.

NONE OF THESE attempts to identify Carter in historical terms is satisfying. The reason, I think, is because Carter is making a new record and will come to be known by his own name as the label. He is himself. He is unlike any of his predecessors. We will learn what he is by his actions from day to day. Eventually when someone says another person is a Carter Democrat, we will all know what is meant.

So far, a Carter Democrat is a man who withholds making known his position on some particular issue until a decision has to be made and then it is made according to what seems to be the most practical and sensible course at the moment. It can be called pragmatic politics. It takes account of political as well as substantive realities. But it can rise above the pragmatic.

Dean Acheson used to assure Harry Truman that if one does "the right thing" one will be surprised how often it turns out to be successful and popular. Truman frequently did the right thing no matter how unpopular its prospects at the moment seemed to be. Truman had a remarkably successful record with Congress, and ultimately with public opinion. He did a lot of right things in his time at the White House.

IT SEEMS TO me that when it comes to such things as those dams so dear to the hearts of congressmen, Carter did the right thing. And it seems now that he is going to win out to the extent of restraining at least in part the old logrolling of Congress on any traditional "pork barrel" type of project.

Carter can't always win when trying to do the right thing. There are political realities. But he is certainly trying to curb wasteful spending by Congress. He is trying to move in the right direction on welfare reform. He is being practical rather than ideological about such matters as busing.

He is plainly aware of the increasing danger of inflation and is moving to curb it about as fast as is realistically possible. He has disappointed organized labor, where it probably should be disappointed, but not more so than he has disappointed the oil companies on the subject of energy.

The one clear message which comes out of all this is that Carter cannot accurately be labeled a man of the right, left or center. But he can be labeled as a man who is groping for the decision that will serve the general interest rather than the special interest.

THERE IS A general interest in every decision a president makes. The general interest sometimes overlaps with the special interests of special groups. One way to run the government of the United States is to cater to the interests of enough special groups to command a working majority in the Congress.

Carter is not doing that. He is forced at times to bow to the power of some one or another special interest. But it seems to me that by and large his record shows an effort to search for the decision that serves the general interest of the entire American community.

No one can possibly know whether he will continue to seek the policy or the decision that serves the general interest. No one can know how successful he will be if he continues along this course. But it is the best course for a president. It is what all presidents ought to do. It is what not all have done.

ERA opponents acted disgusting

As an attendee of the Illinois International Women's Year Conference in Normal, I was appalled by the physical violence visited upon a facilitator by a burly male organizer of Eagle Forum. I was disgusted by the verbal abuse suffered by the chairmen and parlimentarian, and the fake voting cards brought in by people opposed to the Equal Rights Amendment. I am ashamed of the ignorant women who have criticized the members of the planning committee for supporting ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment. These women support ERA because they have experienced the oppression that accompanies sexism, racism, and anti-Semitism. While rightwing women are entitled to let someone else do their thinking for them, the paecious arguments against ERA cannot go unchallenged. Having tired of the discredited potty excuse, the reactionaries have now focused on the "big lie" of homophobia, starring Anita Bryant as the newest darling of the know-nothings.

During the suffrage movement in which women spent sixty years working to gain the right to vote, laws against wife-beating were passed in most of the states. It seems that despite these laws, woman abuse is widespread and unpunished.

Pornography humiliates and degrades women. Second-class citizenship for women makes porn profitable to sellers and acceptable to purchasers of this material. Censorship of porn will not make it unprofitable. Social unacceptability of sexist attitudes will.

Old Glory lowered, SEATO dies

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — The Southeast Asia Treaty Organization, born 23 years ago from the fears of the Cold War, died quietly Thursday, unmourned.

The Stars and Stripes was the first of the flags lowered for the last time from SEATO headquarters Thursday afternoon. Nobody played taps and there were no officials present, except SEATO employes whose regular duty it has been since 1954 to raise and lower the flags at the Bangkok headquarters.

From Hanoi, Vietnam said the end of SEATO showed "the bankruptcy of a reactionary strategy mastermined by the United States in this region."

BECAUSE OF SEATO, founded at the instigation of the United States and including such farflung partners as Britain, France, Pakistan, the Philippines, Australia, New Zealand and Thailand, the tide of communism in Asia was staunched for perhaps a decade.

AN EMPLOYE OF the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization in Bangkok struggles under the weight of the eight-member country flags after their final lowering at Bangkok headquarters. SEATO Council of Ministers announced the phaseout of the anti-Communist organization in a press statement Thursday.

This was the strategy of the late Sec. of State John Foster Dulles, who repeatedly insisted that the allies "stem the tide of communism" in Asia.

His was a "policy of containment" — another of his pet slogans — against the threat from mainland China.

SEATO WAS technically a creature of Article Four of the Manila Pact.

Article Four was invoked by the United States and Saigon governments to get other member nations committed to the Vietnam War. Beneath what came to be called the "umbrella clause." Article Four included the Indochinese states of Cambodia, Vietnam and Laos.

Using arguments of Dulles, former Sec. of State Dean Rusk in 1964 convinced other member nations to send troops to Vietnam. Australia, New Zealand, the Philippines and Thailand all sent troops in proportion to their armed forces.

IN 1962, Thai Foreign Minister Thanat Khoman and Rusk used the SEATO pact to establish U.S. bases in Thailand. Eventually there were seven such bases housing 48,000 U.S. servicemen.

The bases were used to launch air raids over Vietnam.

But dissention began to tear away at the seams of SEATO within a few short, years.

In 1967, Pakistan withdrew in a huff because SEATO would not back up Karachi's fight against East Pakistan. Karachi lost and East Pakistan eventually became the modern state of Bangladesh.

FRANCE, in 1971, became disillusioned with the Vietnam War and withdrew its pledge of troops, although Paris continued to give money and technical advisers to SEATO.

And finally, the fall of Indochina to Communist troops sealed its fate.

An epitaph on SEATO that was printed in the official Nhan Dan daily newspaper in Vietnam Thursday would have saddened Dulles and Rusk.

It read: "The complete victories of the peoples of Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia over the U.S. aggressors and their stooges in 1975 were the decisive blow that sent SEATO to its grave."

Political pact sparks wave of terror in Italy

ROME (UPI) — A night of bombings and shootings from Sicily to the Dolomites Thursday followed an agreement by Italy's six major political parties to join together to crack down on political terrorism.

The hitherto feuding Christian Democrats, Communists, Socialists, Social Democrats, Republicans and Liberals all agreed on a program to try to halt political violence as well as to curb rampant inflation and unemployment. Only the neo-Fascists refused to support the agreement.

Until now, Christian Democratic Premier Giulio Andreotti has ruled under a deal in which the Communists and Socialists, who hold the balance of power, agreed to abstain in parliamentary votes.

UNDER THE NEW program of minimum support, the Christian Democrats refused to allow the Communists seats in the cabinet and the Communists refused any deal on freezing wages.

Had the Communists entered the government, Italy's future in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization would have been in question despite Communist leader Enrico Berlinguer's oft-stated vow to remain independent from Moscow and stay in the Atlantic alliance until a mutual balanced disarmament with the Warsaw Pact nations.

Several of the previously bickering parties claimed benefit from the deal.

THE CHRISTIAN Democrats claim they won by fighting off a demand by Communist leader Enrico Berlinguer to get seats in the government in exchange for his support.

Berlinguer demanded "a government of democratic unity in which the Communist party would have a share." But he said the agreement was a step forward to eventual Communist power-sharing.

No sooner had the agreement been reached Wednesday night when a wave of terrorism broke out from Catania in Sicily to Pordenone in the northeast.

Terrorists killed a night watchman, shot and wounded two Fiat executives, blew up three railroad cars loaded with electrical appliances at Pordenone, blasted a Spoleto prison wall, sprayed a police station with gunfire in Catania, wrecked a Rome high school, bombed a Bologna municipal office, blew up a car and tossed firebombs into the Rome homes of suspected rightwingers.

Relief fails as Cubs lose 2-1

ST. LOUIS — Cubs relief pitching failed to hold the lead here Thursday night leading to a 2-1 victory for the St. Louis Cardinals. The loss for the Cubs marks only the second time they have lost two straight since May.

A one-out, bases-loaded infield grounder by Ken Reitz scored Tony Scott with the winning run off pitcher Paul Reuschel in the bottom of the ninth. The Cubs' Keith Hernandez was responsible for filling the bases, as the left-hander yielded singles to Scott and Keith Hernandez before intentionally walking Ted Simmons.

A fifth-inning home run by Steve Ontiveros off Cards' starter Bob Forsch looked as if it might hold up, as Steve Renko, getting his first start of the season, held the hosts scoreless through six innings.

RENKO TIRED in the seventh and gave way to Bruce Sutter, who retired the side that inning but was touched for the tying run in the eighth. After Doug Rader singled with one out in the eighth, Lou Brock tripled to center to drive in Mike Phillips, pinch-running for Rader.

Brock was thrown out at the plate trying for a home run in the park. It was the fleet outfielder's only hit in the game billed "Lou Brock Night" in St. Louis.

Rawly Eastwick was credited with the victory, his first since coming to St. Louis, after the former Cincinnati Red retired the final Cub in the top of the ninth. Hernandez got the loss, his third.

The Cubs managed just three hits against Cardinal pitching. Ivan DeJesus singled to lead off the game, but was stranded at second. After Ontiveros' homer in the fifth, the only other hit was by Manny Trillo in the ninth.

THE CUBS WILL play St. Louis, one of their closest foes in the National League East race, nine times in 12 days. Three more game are scheduled to be played in St. Louis this weekend on Friday, Saturday and Sunday. The Cards come to Wrigley Field for a five game series the following weekend.

Renko looked strong in his start, allowing three hits and striking out six. It was the big right-hander's first start since September 1, 1976. He was on the disabled list from April 28 to June 1 this season after he underwent surgery to remove a nodule found on his thyroid.

Forsch was nearly as effective as Renko, lasting eight innings before leaving for a pinch hitter. Al Hrabosky pitched two-thirds of an inning in the Cubs' ninth before Eastwick retired the side with men on first and third bases.

BROCK'S TRY for a home run in the park produced the most humorous moment of the night. Trying to elude catcher Steve Swisher's desperate lunge to tag him, Brock leaped over and missed home plate. By the time he could reverse direction and try to come back to tag the plate, Swisher blocked his way with the ball.

Brock tried for several seconds to fake his way past Swisher, who eventually applied the tag.

SLOPPY TRACK conditions fail to prevent Ole Rumor from racing to an impressive victory in the third race Thursday afternoon at Arlington Park. The heavy rain helped bring some surprises over the nine-race card, but Ole Rumor paid only $6.80. See complete Thursday results and Ray Hallett's selections for today's races on page 2.

Experience shows on Herald all-star team

Here they are. The diamonds in the rough that were rough on the diamonds. Presenting the Herald's 7th annual All-Area Baseball Team.

Power, speed, pitching and defense are all standard equipment on this dream team. But perhaps the biggest asset on the club is experience. Eleven players are competition-hardened seniors.

College and pro scouts established headquarters in the Northwest suburbs and feasted on the showcase performers that include:

- Honorary captain Mike Marshall, one of the most talented home-grown athletes and complete baseball players, is miraculously only a junior.

- Bill Bilsley of Rolling Meadows who had a hit in his bat almost every other time he stepped to the plate.

- Peoria All-Star participants Rob Earhart and Bob Zuccarini, both from highly-successful Maine West.

Mid-Suburban League champion Buffalo Grove paced the selections with three choices while Maine West and Prospect each placed a pair of players on the club.

Forest View, Rolling Meadows, Conant, Palatine and Wheeling are all represented by one All-Area player.

In addition to the Dynamic Dozen, Herald sportswriters also named a 12-man Honorable Mention Team that features a pair of hard-hitting sophomores.

Meet the Herald's 7th All-Area Baseball stars:

MIKE MARSHAL
Player of The Year

PHIL CZOSNYKA

Buffalo Grove

The pitching of Phil Czosnyka was one of the main reasons Buffalo Grove's team ERA of 1.88 was best in the Mid-Suburban League. Czosnyka contributed an 0.73 mark to the team figure as he won five league games without a loss.

In almost 29 innings of work, he allowed only three runs. Czosnyka's pace-setting marks earned him a place on the all-conference team this year.

JIM McDONALD

Prospect

As Prospect's ace hurler, Jim McDonald turned in some of the most impressive stats in the Mid-Suburban League. His conference record was 5-0 to go along with an earned-run-average of 1.47 as he allowed only nine batters. He was also selected to the earned runs in 43 innings of work.

McDonald struck out 35 conference all-conference team for helping his team take first place in the MSL South with a 14-4 mark.

ROB EARHART

Maine West

Rob Earhart is celebrating his second, consecutive year on The Herald's All-Area team. He compiled impressive statistics at two positions, pitcher and outfielder. As a pitcher, the senior lefthander won nine games and lost only two. That record also includes 73 strikeouts, 14 walks and a 0.89 earned-run average. In three years of varsity baseball competition, Earhart's record was 25-3.

Besides pitching, Rob also played rightfield, batting .315. He'll attend Mississippi State this fall.

BILL BILSLEY

Rolling Meadows

The Mid-Suburban League's premier hitter, Bilsley cracked 24 hits in 53 trips for a phenomenal .453 average while guiding the Mustangs to a contending 12-6 record.

Included among the rips were four doubles, two triples and three homers which planted him third in the league's slugging department at a booming .717 mark. "The finest natu-

Home runs are special in any game

Bob Frisk
Sports Editor

The pitcher stares in hard, as if he is about to deliver a great sermon instead of a curve on the outside.

The batter waits. He waves his bat back and forth.

"There's a long drive . . ."

The crack of the bat tells the story. Home run! What a beautiful sight.

During the first two decades of the century hitting was a lesser art in a game that honored pitching and low scores.

THE CHANGE in baseball was dramatic as a gentleman named Babe Ruth appeared on the scene. It was not a gradual revolution but sudden and cataclysmic.

There is no hard evidence they pepped up the ball, but the figures leap out at you. There is overwhelming circumstantial evidence.

The owners weren't dumb. They saw the attendance figures. They understood what was happening.

The fans in the 1920s could not begin to appreciate the austere beauty of a well-pitched game, but they thrilled vicariously to the surging power of a Ruthian home run.

THERE'S ALWAYS been something special about the home run, and that's why it is astonishing to read about a professional softball league that actually wants to cut down on the homers. It boggles the mind that the home run would be looked upon as something evil.

Sure, it's softball, but this is still the home run they're talking about, the ultimate offensive weapon.

"It really gets to be a little boring," said Milt Pappas, field manager of the Chicago Storm in the American Professional Slo-Pitch Softball League. Pappas had just seen his club hit 19 home runs in a seven-inning game.

THERE IS talk of adjusting the arc of the pitched ball, tossing out the limitations that currently exist in the professional league. That obviously would help the pitcher.

"I know what we can do, but not this year, and that would be to move the fences back," said Frank Mariani, general manager of the Storm. The stadium fences are 292 feet down the foul lines.

The idea of re-designing playing fields by either bringing in the fences or cutting down on their height is nothing new to Chicago, but it does show the impact of the home run and how clubs try to work around it.

The fences rate almost annual consideration at Comiskey Park where the White Sox brass try to give their team an advantage for the 81 home games. Bring them in? Move them back?

THE SOX shuddered over their pitching staff this season (as they should have) but had no idea what kind of hitters they would field. They didn't move the fences in, much to the chagrin of Richie Zisk.

It's interesting how dimensional alterations have been made in big league ball parks and almost invariably the original contour was restored after the opposition began slamming more home runs than the good guys.

The White Sox tried to give specific aid to Al Simmons, after acquiring him in the fall of 1932. Simmons, after hitting 35 for the A's in 1932, found the shortened Comiskey Park fence no help as he dropped to 14, 18 and 16 homers over the next three years.

The classical case was the Sox in 1949 when Frank Lane, then general manager, decided to give his punchless team a lift.

AFTER WATCHING his puny hitters try to reach the Comiskey Park walls, Lane had a temporary wire fence constructed to reduce the foul line distances to 330 feet.

Lane made the changes in early June and the first team in town was Washington, which didn't have any more power than the White Sox. But, in three games, there were 14 home runs, most of them by the Senators.

Even Floyd Baker, a notorious banjo-hitter, lifted a drive over the new fence for the first homer of his career. That was enough for Lane, since the next invaders were the Yankees.

During the night Lane called Leo Dillon, the Comiskey Park superintendent, and ordered the fence ripped out. It was gone by the time the Yankees arrived.

LANE'S FENCE accomplished one thing. It put a new rule in the book. No longer can a change be made during the season. The distances in effect at the start of the year must remain in effect.

When the Pirates had both Hank Greenberg and Ralph Kiner in 1947, they shortened the left field fence from 356 to 335 by erecting a bullpen across the area.

It was called Greenberg Gardens and Hank, then 36, hit 25 homers that season and Kiner 51. It became known as Kiner's Korner.

With the decline of Kiner in the mid-1950s the bullpen was removed again.

SOME FANS say they favor a triple up the alley as the most exciting hit because there is action everywhere, but the home run is still that majestic stroke that lifts a crowd, a team.

They can legislate all they want and re-design the playing fields, but there is still nothing quite like a ball sailing in a high arching parabola over a distant fence.

Allowance feature today

Ten 3-year-old fillies, nine of which are nominated to the July 9 $40,000 added Smart Deb Handicap, have been named to contest Friday's $12,000 allowance feature, dubbed the Smart Deb Prep, at Arlington.

Splendid Size, three-for-three in 1977, will be trying the grass for the first time, and her ability to go the route distance, one mile here, will be tested for the initial time. Spendid Size has won twice at six furlongs and another at six and one-half.

Two couplings are among Friday's hopefuls. From the powerful Weipert barn comes Great Miracle and Rich Soil, and the always dangerous Bob Holthus named Native Blossom and Proper Princess.

Propagator, Ludova and Saxon's Secret will be making their first Chicago appearances. Propagator won two in a row at Pimlico in May, both times at 8½ furlongs, one of which was on the grass. The Grover Delp trainee thus rates much consideration in this spot.

Like Ducks and Cent Anny complete the field.

CHILD STAR. Greta Andersen, an Olympic gold medal swimming winner in 1948, beams her approval as star student, eight-month-old Frederick Garcia, swims on his back in Los Alamitos, Calif. Garcia is the youngest ever to pass the water safety beginner's test in California.

Faces Connors next

Borg takes classic duel

WIMBLEDON (UPI) — Sweden's Bjorn Borg outlasted New Yorker Vitas Gerulaitis 6-4, 3-6, 6-3, 3-6, 8-6 in a three hour center court duel Thursday that will go down as one of the greates in Wimbledon's 100-year history and set up the predicted final with top seed Jimmy Connors Saturday.

Connors, stretched to four increasingly difficult sets by 18-year-old John McEnroe, defeated the Douglaston, N.Y., amateur 6-3, 6-3, 4-6, 6-4 in the first semifinal.

But the tension developed in the Connors-McEnroe match was soon eclipsed by the superb sequel served up by two players at the peak of their form.

THE 15,000 crowd, realizing they would be lucky to see another such classic match, cheered both players off the court and British television delayed its main news program to show viewers the enthralling climax.

Borg now the first set with a single service break in the opening game and Gerulaitis, seeded eighth, replied in the second set by breaking Borg in the sixth game to even it up.

They traded the third and fourth sets in similar manner and the final set began with a stream of inch-perfect lobs, scorching passing shots, deadly volleying and specatular retrieves that were emotionally draining to watch.

GERULAITIS APPEARED to have the edge when he broke Borg's service to love to go 3-2 up with a succession of textbook volleys.

"I was really worried when he had that break in the fifth set because if he had held his service it would have been all over I think," said Borg afterwards.

But the Swede dug deep into his reserves and when Gerulaitis was leading 40-30 produced two backhands that he will remember for a long time.

"If he had won that point he would have won the match but I broke back on some very good backhands," Borg said.

IT WAS TO BE the turning point of the match.

It went to 6-6 on service and then 7-6 to the Swede to make Gerulaitis serve for the third time to stay alive.

The blond New Yorker, one of the very few men who can match Borg for speed around the court, went 15-40 down. On the first match point, both players moved up to the net and Borg's volley was met by Gerulaitis, whose reflex forehand just dropped wide.

"I have never played that well over five sets," said Gerulaitis. "It hurt me not to win and get into the finals. Two years ago I wouldn't have minded."

BORG SAID HE looked forward to meeting Connors in Saturday's centennial final, particularly after beating the Belleville Ill., left-hander in Florida earlier this year.

"I am really looking forward to meeting Jimmy, especially here at Wimbledon. I have a good chance."

Connors will have to raise his game to stay with Borg Saturday if his match against McEnroe was anything to go by.

Connors' volleying was anything but sharp and McEnroe, the youngest player to get into the men's semi-finals and the only one to do it after coming through the qualifying tournament, made the top seed fight for every point.

CONNORS BEGAN with something of a tennis lesson for McEnroe, who clearly was not used to handling such hard and precise returns. But he learned quickly and in the third set was reading his opponent's game perfectly.

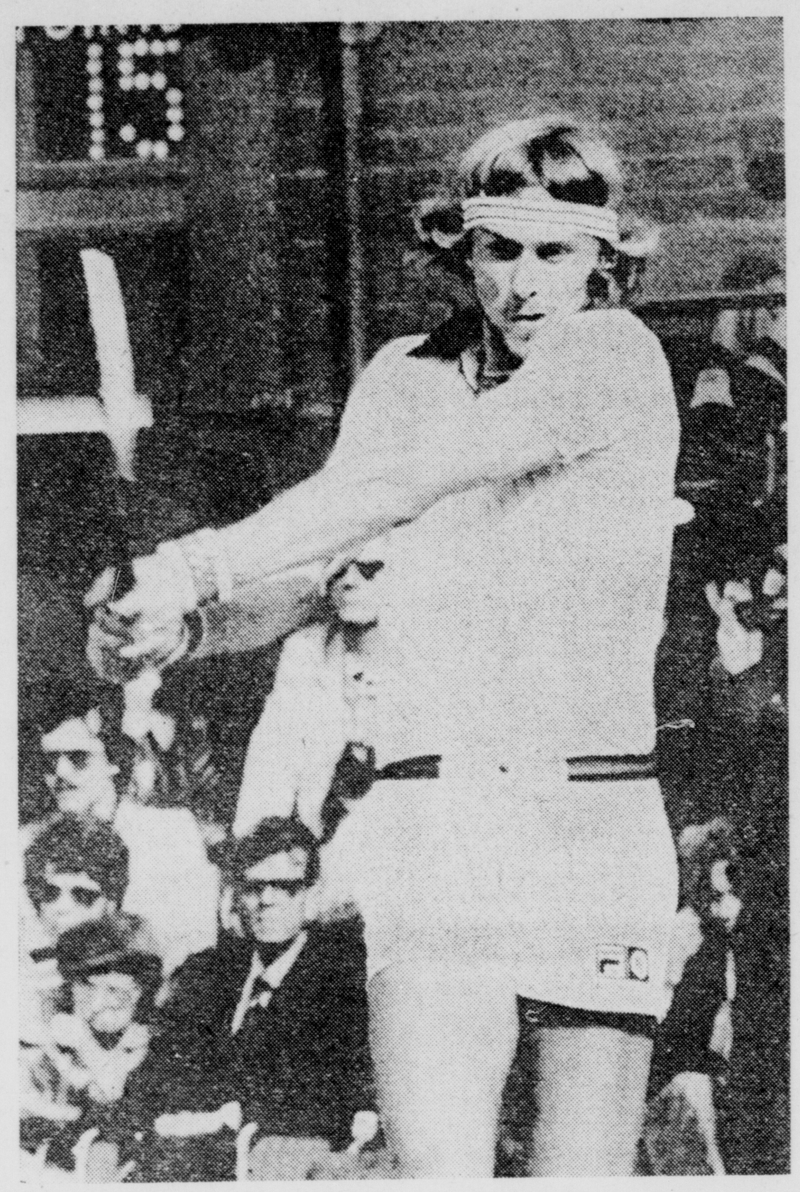
He seemed encouraged by Connors' errors and in the third set where there were 10 service breaks, got the crucial one with three perfect backhand passes that gave him the set.

Connors looked ruffled but his usual guts and determination, which help him win even when he plays badly, came in during the final set when he broke through in the seventh game and sat on the lead to win.

"HE'S PRETTY difficult to play," conceded Connors of his rival who as an amateur was not able to collect his $6,800 loser's purse. "He tries for shots from impossible positions and sometimes he makes them. He has a good future if he works at it."

The men's doubles final will be an all-Australian affair. Ross Case and Geoff Masters easily beat Briton Mark Cox and Cliff Drysdale of South Africa 6-1, 6-4, 6-1 but John Alexander and Phil Dent only just squeaked by Australian Bob Carmichael and California Brian Teacher 8-9, 6-1, 9-7, 2-6, 6-4.

Billie Jean King's search for a record 20th overall title continued when she and Dent teamed up to reach the semifinals of the mixed doubles with a 6-3, 1-6, 9-7 win against Raz and Kerry Reid.



BJORN BORG, Swedish holder of the men's singles title, slams ball back to Vitas Gerulaitis during their semi-final match Thursday at Wimbledon. Borg won a three-hour marathon, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3, 3-6, 8-6.

Hunter's Irish football playing days could end

SOUTH BEND, Ind., (UPI) — Notre Dame football star Al Hunter is considering court action over his suspension from the fall semester for violating university rules, his attorney said Thursday.

Robert Stephan said Hunter, who last season became the first Irish ballcarrier to gain more than 1,000 yards, would make a statement next Wednesday or Thursday.

"He is considering some litigation," Stephen said. "Until then, I rather not comment further."

HUNTER WAS accused of visiting the room of a female student during "after hours." He was cleared of the charges in a university judicial hearing but that ruling was overturned.

The ruling was found faulty by an appeals board convened in early June by James Roemer, Notre Dame's dean of students. The appeals board ruling to suspend Hunter was confirmed by the Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh, Notre Dame's president.

Thus, officials said, the only recourse still open to Hunter is through the courts.

Hunter and five other Notre Dame football players were suspended for a dormitory rules violation in 1974. All sat out that season on probation.

NCAA RULES stipulate a player may have only four years eligibility in a five-year period. By being barred from the Irish this fall, Hunter would exhaust his athletic eligibility.

Hunter gained 1,053 yards in 233 carries last season and had another 102 yards in the 20-9 Gator Bowl triumph over Penn State.

Three ways we can save you money on auto insurance

Good students seem to do a lot of things differently. One of them is drive better, or maybe they just spend more time studying and less time on the road . . . but good students are involved in fewer accidents. So, at American Family they pay less for their auto insurance.

2 car families

Two cars. The same family. If both cars are insured by the same company, the paperwork and service should be a lot easier and more efficient . . . so your insurance should cost less. At least, that's the way we operate! We give two car families a discount on their auto insurance.

low mileage

If you're a low mileage driver, it stands to reason that you should pay less for your insurance. And you will . . . if you go with American Family. We save low mileage drivers money on auto insurance.

Of course, these are only three ways we can save you money on your auto insurance. There are more. Why not call us today and see how much money we can save you.

House speeds probe into TV-sports link

WASHINGTON — A House subcommittee Thursday announced a stepped up investigation into whether television networks have begun to "control" the sports events they broadcast.

Rep. Lionel Van Deerlin, D-Calif., chairman of the Commerce subcommittee on communications, said the panel will look into:

"Alleged improprieties" relating to ABC's involvement in promotion of the U. S. Boxing Championships; CBS' "winner take all" tennis matches in which, Van Deerlin said, players were paid win or lose; NBC's contractual arrangements to broadcast the 1980 Olympics from Moscow.

"In general, we will try to determine whether the networks have become so involved with arranging, promoting and scheduling sports events that they, in effect, have come to control those events," Ban Deerlin told a news conference. "In other words," he said, "is the public seeing an independent event covered by electronic journalists or an event staged for and controlled by television?"

He said the panel also would investigate: contracts between the NCAA and networks for the coverage of collegiate sports. He said these result in some games going uncovered; network broadcast practices involving the National Football League, National Basketball Association, National Hockey League and professional baseball, particularly provisions for exclusive telecasts; exclusive contracts between networks and athletes.

Colleges fight for tax-exempt status

WASHINGON — Three major universities and the Cotton Bowl Association told the Internal Revenue Service Thursday they could not afford a challenge to the tax-exempt status of the income their athletic programs receive from radio and television.

If the IRS follows through on a threat to tax radio-TV money as unrelated business income, colleges and universities across the nation could be faced with a reported $150 million bill for back taxes and interest.

In addition, the schools would have to pay nearly one-half of their future radio-TV income in taxes, a development which college sports officials say would "lead to the destruction of intercollegiate athletics."

Sheldon Cohen, a former IRS commissioner now representing the Cotton Bowl as an attorney, and representatives from TCU, SMU and Kansas discussed the potential ruling for three hours with a battery of IRS attorneys and administrators behind closed doors at IRS national headquarters.

Rain delays Greater Milwaukee Open

MILWAUKEE — With the course swept by heavy rain just after daybreak and little hope of a letup, officials cancelled today's opening round of the 10th annual Greater Milwaukee Open golf tournament.

The field will play 18 holes today and Friday and 36 on Sunday, officials said.

Lee Trevino was on the telephone when he heard the crackling boom of thunder and lighting.

"I calmly hung up and got under the bed," said Trevino, who had a brush with lightning at the Western Open two years ago in Chicago. Trevino and his fellow pros didn't want anything to do with the 7,010 yard Tuckaway Country Club course on a rainy day.

New college conference announced

CHARLESTON — Formation of a new athletic conference including Eastern Illinois University, Western Illinois University and four other schools was announced Thursday, an EIU spokesman said.

The Mid-Continent Athletic Association includes, in addition to the Illinois schools, the University of Akron (Ohio), the University of Northern Iowa, Northern Michigan University and Youngstown State (Ohio) University.

The conference has been in the planning stages for 30 months, the spokesman said, and conference competition is to begin in the fall of 1978.

Search for prized filly moving slow

FRANKFORT, Ky. — State police and the FBI said late Thursday that there has been little movement in the search for the stolen Fanfreluche, a former North American filly champion in foal to superstud Secretariat March 10.

The prized filly was stolen from Claiborne Farm, northeast of Lexington in Kentucky's central Bluegrass horse country last weekend, and she has not been seen since.

Phils bombard Pirates, 8-1

From Herald Wire Services

NL baseball

Mike Schmidt's 14th homer of the month tied a National League record and paced an 11-hit attack Thursday night to spark the Phillies to an 8-1 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates in Philadelphia.

Steve Carlton gave up six hits and struck out eight in notching his 10th win against four losses.

The Phillies jumped on loser Odell Jones for four runs in the first inning. Bake McBride tripled and scored on Larry Bowa's single. Bowa went to third on a single by Schmidt and scored on Greg Luzinski's sacrifice fly. Garry Maddox followed one out later with a two-run homer.

The Pirates scored in the third on Phil Garner's homer. But the Phillies came back with two in their half of the inning on RBI singles by Luzinski and Tim McCarver. Schmidt's homer in the fourth, a two-run shot, was his 21st of the season. He tied a league record set by Ralph Kiner who hit 14 homers in June 1947.

IN CINCINNATI — Dan Driessen rapped three singles and George Foster added a single and a double as the two teamed to drive home six runs and lead the Reds to a rain-delayed 11-5 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

Woodie Fryman, with relief help from Joe Henderson and Dale Murray, gained his fourth victory against five losses.

The Reds took a 1-0 lead in the first inning off loser Ed Halicki, 7-7, when Joe Morgan walked, stole second and scored on Driessen's single.

A walk to Morgan, singles by Driessen, Foster, Cesar Geronimo and Rick Auerbach gave the Reds a 4-0 lead in the third inning and they went ahead, 6-0, in the fourth when Foster followed walks to Ken Griffey and Morgan with a double. Driessen's third single scored Morgan to increase the lead.

IN ATLANTA, Darrel Chaney drilled a one-out single in the bottom of the ninth inning to score Jeff Burroughs with the winning run and give the Braves a 5-4 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

The Braves tied the score at 4-4 when Gary Matthews led off the ninth with a homer off reliever Charlie Hough. Burroughs then drew a walk off and Biff Pocoroba followed with a double sending Burroughs to third. Chaney followed with his run-scoring single, which gave Phil Niekro his seventh victory against nine losses.

IN MONTREAL, pinch-hitter Mike Vail scored Lee Mazzilli from third base on a fielder's choice in the ninth inning to give the New York Mets a 4-3 victory over the Expos that moved them out of last place in the National League East.

Mazzilli led off the ninth with a double and advanced on Joel Youngblood's sacrifice. Vail's slow roller was fielded by third baseman Wayne Garrett but Mazzilli scored as Garrett threw Vail out at first.

The Mets had tied the score in the seventh when losing pitcher Steve Rogers, 9-7, walked Bruce Boisclair with the bases loaded to force in Mazzilli. Reliever Bob Apodaca earned the victory.

SPECIAL MOMENT. Seven-year-old David Haller of Milford, Mich., a March of Dimes poster child, talks with his idol, Mark "The Bird" Fidrych of the Detroit Tigers. Fidrych has been honored for his volunteer efforts with the March of Dimes. David's father, William Haller, looks on.

No reason for booing says 'Bird'

DETROIT (UPI) — Mark Fidrych has a favor he'd like to ask 51,745 fans: Don't boo the manager.

"The Bird" was critical of but not upset with his audience after they cheered practically his every move in his sixth straight victory, a 7-2 game that was both the Detroit Tigers fourth straight win and the sixth consecutive defeat for the Boston Red Sox.

"When the guys are winning why should they boo the manager?" Fidrych asked. "They should be giving the manager yeas, not boos.

"THERE'S A TIME and a place to boo and it's not when we're winning 4-2 and the manager walks out to the mound," Fidrych said.

Tiger Stadium's largest crowd of the season — and second largest ever to see Fidrych pitch at home — booed Manager Ralph Houk loudly when he came out to settle his pitcher down in the seventh inning.

Fidrych had given up his first home run of the season to Butch Hobson after 66 homerless innings. Hobson's homer, his 13th, came with one out and was followed by a walk to Denny Doyle.

THEN HOUK strode to the mound. No one was warming up in the bullpen.

"All he said when he came out was, 'Well, you've broken your maiden with the home run. I don't think they're going to get three runs off you in the next two innings, do you? Well, go get 'em,' " Fidrych said.

"The Bird" has yet to lose a game in the eighth or ninth innings and the crowd knows this, which is why they gave Houk a loud cheer when he walked back to the dugout after his visit with Fidrych.

"THEY SHOULD LET Ralph have a little bit of air," Fidrych said earnestly. "Give him some breathing room. I don't think they should be booing him. They should be yeaing him. He needs more yeas.

"It makes me feel bad to hear them boo him," Fidrych said. "It makes me think they think he's a horseflap manager. And he's not. He's a good manager. I'd like to see us in a World Series and him go out there . . ."

White Sox rest for Twins; Yanks beat Toronto, 11-5

From Herald Wire Services

AL baseball

The White Sox and Minnesota Twins took a day off from their close battle for first place Thursday. For the past two weeks, no more than one game has separated the American League West clubs.

The Sox are currently one game behind the Twins, who will be in Chicago for a four-game series starting tonight. The entire West Division was idle Thursday.

IN THE EAST, Cliff Johnson hit three homers, including a major league record-tying two in an eight-run eighth inning, when he drove in four runs and led the New York Yankees to an 11-5 victory over the Blue Jays in Toronto.

The Yankees scored eight runs in the eighth on four home runs started by Johnson's first of the inning. After Reggie Jackson grounded out, Lou Piniella followed with another solo homer and Graig Nettles singled.

Bucky Dent flied out and Willie Randolph singled. Mickey Rivers singled to score Dent and then Thurman Munson stroked a three-run homer. Chris Chambliss then doubled and scored on Johnson's second homer of the inning and 14th of the year.

THE YANKEES scored the first run in the third inning when Randolph walked, reached third on Rivers' single and scored on Munson's sacrifice fly. Johnson hit his first home run of the game in the fourth to make the score 4-0.

Doug Rader hit a solo homer for Toronto in the fifth. Bob Bailor singled to right with the bases loaded in the eighth and three runs scored for Toronto when Jackson mishandled the ball for a two-base error.

The victory allowed the Yankees to move a half game behind the division-leading Boston Red Sox. Boston's game with the Detroit Tigers was postponed because of rain.

IN CLEVELAND, Frank Duffy, who entered the game hitting .199, belted two home runs and Wayne Garland scattered five hits to pace the Indians to a 4-2 victory over the Baltimore Orioles in a game called after 6½ innings because of rain.

Duffy, who hit only two homers last season and one in 1975, hit an 0-1 pitch into the left field stands leading off the third and ended the Cleveland scoring by sending a Ross Grimsley fastball into the left field seats for his fourth homer of the year.

Area softball sluggers will test their skills

Chicago area softball sluggers will have another opportunity to test their prowess — in the Third Annual Home Run Contest, co-sponsored by Hamm's Beer and the Windy City Softball Assn.

This year there will be six categories: Men 6'0" and over; Men under 6'0"; Men 40-years-old or more; Women 5'6" and over; Women under 5'6". Trophies and 10 cases of Hamm's Beer will be awarded to first place winners in each category.

Those winners will then go on to compete in the sixth category: Open Class, to determine an over-all winner. The final winner will receive a giant trophy and 25 cases of Hamm's Beer!

Each contestant must be sponsored by one of the following:

1. A Chicagoland bar, tavern, disco, lounge or restaurant.

2. A Chicago-area fraternal or social organization.

3. The Windy City Stadium: applicable only for the open class of competition.

Registration has started and will terminate at midnight, July 15. Registration forms are available from the Windy City Stadium (598-9000) or in local participating taverns. The participants must be of legal drinking age.

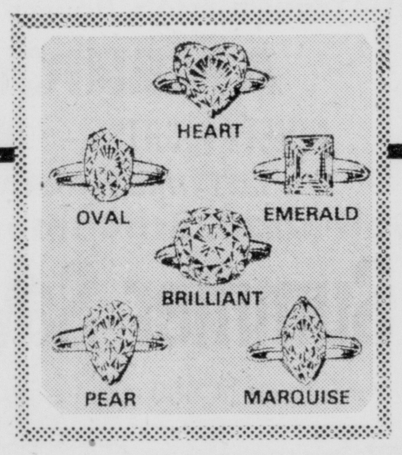
Finals in each category will be announced as competitive rounds are completed. The target date for the finals will be the weekend of Aug. 6 and 7. The top three finalists in the Open Class will each appear in a special exhibition during the 1977 Hamm's — Windy City World Series of Softball, beginning Sept. 6.

Pro soccer players to be at Woodfield

Chicago Sting players will appear in the Grand Court at Woodfield July 18 and 19 at 7 p.m. each night.

Alex Skotarek, team captain, and three others from the squad will be on hand to sign autographs, give a demonstration and conduct a discussion with fans.

Ron Moore, who recently scored five goals in one game, will also be at the event, which is free.



There are six basic shapes to which diamonds are cut. However, not all shapes can be cut from all rough diamonds. That's why some diamond cuts are more expensive than others of the same weight. All Frank's diamonds, regardless of shape, are cut with full 58 facets for maximum brilliance. This is the only acceptable standard of diamond cutters throughout the world.

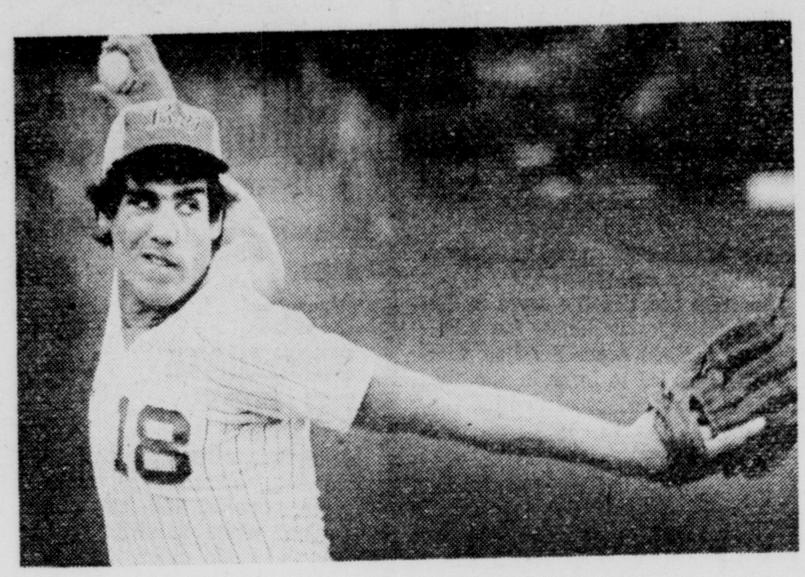
Versatile Marshall puts baseball No. 1

by KEITH REINHARD

The big secret about Mike Marshall turns out to be no secret at all.

Mike Marshall. He's that big kid over at Buffalo Grove who does so many things so well. It wasn't too many years ago that he went to the nationals of the Punt, Pass and Kick contest and everyone figured that he would emerge someday as a great football player.

It was the same Mike Marshall who led his team on golf team to the state finals in Champaign this past fall. People might have surmised from that effort that his future was on the pro golf circuit except Mike Marshall didn't spend much time basking in the glory of it before joining with another outstanding Buffalo Grove group to tack up the winningest basketball season in the history of the area.



Buffalo Grove standout Mike Marshall

Just what sport does this prep super star favor? "It's baseball all the way," is Mike's own reply.

It should come as no surprise then that the 6-4 junior capped the year by pitching and hitting the Bison to a conference baseball title. And for his efforts he has been named to head this year's Herald All-Area diamond lineup as baseball Player of the Year.

"A great natural all-round athlete," is the way his baseball (and golf) coach Fred Van Iten describes Marshall. "Mike is one of those rare gems who comes along all too infrequently with the ability and talent to be a consistent winner."

The statistics speak for themselves. On the mound Mike fashioned a stellar 1.84 ERA that ranked him sixth in the Mid-Suburban League and he was ninth in the circuit in strikeouts.

WITH A BAT in his hands, Marshall rapped out base hits at a .386 clip to place seventh, was 12th in slugging at .596 and tied for third in the MSL in home runs.

If the big question about Mike's favorite sport is now settled, however, it tends to raise another one. Would he rather pitch or hit?

"That's a tougher one to answer," Marshall replied. "I definitely feel a lot more pressure when I pitch but that doesn't really bother me. I do notice that my hitting suffers when I'm concentrating on pitching though and I guess if I had to make a choice I'd rather be hitting and playing every day at first base."

Despite his young age, Mike is no newcomer to either baseball or Buffalo Grove. Born in Libertyville, his folks moved to their present home town before he was one year old and most of the people lived among the cornfields until the housing boom hit in the late '60s.

MIKE CAME up through the system . . . Little League, Pony League, Colt, Babe Ruth and Legion . . . drawing perhaps his greatest thrills from a pair of back-to-back no-hitters and a couple of three-homer games. He made his decision not to pursue football around the same time he underwent a knee operation his freshman year.

Mike credits his father for introducing him to athletics and providing the encouragement to keep it going. "He introduced me to both baseball and golf and he was my coach and my inspiration all through those early years."

Now this young man is doing some inspiring of his own and Buffalo Grove High School is all the richer for it.

And the school will have another whole year to enjoy the efforts of the Herald's baseball Player of the Year.

ral hitter in either division," was one coach's summation.

DAN McSWEENEY

Palatine

"The best receiver in this area for the past five years," was the way one opposing coach valued this Palatine senior. But if catching this was strength, hitting certainly didn't hamper his aggressive style.

McSweeney rattled the diamond for a fat .400 average off 22 hits. His power was endorsed by four doubles and three home runs for a robust .636 slugging percentage. The Pirates rode McSweeney's bat to an 8-9 record in the North Division of the Mid-Suburban League.

MIKE LEDNA

Buffalo Grove

Mike Ledna, the sure-handed Buffalo Grove shortstop, was a key figure in the Bison's drive to the Mid-Suburban League title. He batted .354 in the conference and his seven stolen bases was among the league leaders.

Ledna is a veteran of the All-Area team as he also earned a spot on the select roster last year. His impressive statistics and field leadership made him one of only three unanimous choices on the 1977 all-conference team.

RICK HEREDIA

Wheeling

Wheeling's Rick Heredia was a mainstay at second base. At the plate, he batted .333 in Mid-Suburban League games, a figure that was second to only Bill Knuth on the Wildcat team. He was also a co-leader with Knuth in runs scored with 21.

Heredia's slugging percentage of .704 was fourth best in conference play as he collected 38 total bases in 54 at-bats. His fine season earned him a spot on the all-conference team.

LARRY DAHL

Forest View

Forest View's Larry Dahl served double duty on the Falcon squad this spring, playing the infield and pitching. Both places he accumulated some impressive statistics, including the Mid-Suburban League leadership in home runs with five.

Dahl had a .346 batting average, and he drove in 14 runs to rank him in a tie for seventh in the category. As a hurler, he was 5-1. His 41 strikeouts was eighth best in the league. Larry was a two-time all-conference selection.

BOB ZUCCARINI

Maine West

Maine West's Bob Zuccarini enjoyed his finest baseball season ever this year. The senior third baseman batted .388. He also drew six intentional walks, a rarity in high school baseball.

His post season honors include being named the Warriors' most valuable player, making the Central Suburban League South Division All-Conference team, and playing in the Senior All-Star game at Peoria.

This is the second year Zuccarini has made the Herald's all-area team and been named the Warriors' MVP.

BOB TOTTEN

Conant

Conant's do-everything co-captain led the Mid-Suburban League in slugging average with a whopping .733 with five doubles, three triples and a homer among his 19 base hits. He was the league's third-leading batter with a .422 percentage. The Cougar senior, who converted from shortstop to the outfield at the season's start, also bore a heavy part of the Conant pitching burden, working 30 innings and posting a 2-1 record. Totten, an outstanding guard in basketball as well, will attend Illinois State University in the fall.

BILL KNUTH

Wheeling

The Wildcats' Bill Knuth led his team with a .393 batting average in Mid-Suburban League games. That mark was sixth best in the conference. His 21 runs in league play was tops among MSL players.

As a key outfielder in the Wildcats 12-5 conference season, Knuth had a slugging percentage of .607, with 34 total bases in 56 at-bats. These figures led to Knuth's unanimous selection to the all-conference squad.

Collectors club plans last mini-convention

The Chicagoland Sports Collectors Association will hold its last mini-convention meeting on July 9 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Hillside Holiday Inn.

About 60 members will trade, buy and sell baseball cards, yearbooks, programs, bats, balls and other sports collectables. If you have any of these or other things of interest, bring them to the meeting to trade or sell.

Those wanting to join the association should contact George Miller at 925-2468. The Association has 396 current members.

Nordbrook sits...and waits

SHEDDING LIGHT on last year's national American Legion tourney runnerup will be eight light standards circling Recreation Park. The Arlington Heights legion team will debut under the artificials Thursday.

Tim Nordbrook will be on the White Sox bench as usual tonight when the Minnesota Twins open a four-game series at Comiskey Park. And the chances are the 28-year-old infielder won't play, also as usual.

The Sox obtained Nordbrook in the free agent re-entry draft over the winter and thought enough of him to give him a two-year, no-cut contract. But the contract hasn't helped him get into a game.

Nordbrook hasn't seen action, save for a pinch running assignment several weeks ago, in the six weeks. He's Batted only 15 times this season (3-for-10, five walks) in a handful of games. Unfortunately, that's nothing new for Nordbrook, who in two previous full seasons in the majors, has batted only 64 times.

"THREE WEEKS ago Roland Hemond (Sox vice-president) came and asked if I would release them from the part in my contract which says they can't send me to the minors," said Nordbrook, fresh from a hard pre-game workout. "That's when I stopped asking questions. "I don't think they have me in mind unless somebody gets hurt."

Nordbrook knew the competition would be tough when he signed with the Sox. "I could count heads. I knew they had Alan (Bannister). I knew they had Kevin (Bell) and Jack (Brohamer)." But he was also used to plenty of competition.

He played for 1½ years at Baltimore behind Brooks Robinson, Doug DeCinces, Mark Belanger and Bobby Grich. Last season he was traded to California but chose to become a free agent at the end of the season.

Six weeks of not playing does things to the mind. It shatters confidence. It breaks spirit. It ruins timing. Nordbrook is working hard, though when or if his chance comes.

Byline report

Bob Gallas

"IF I DO GET in there they won't be able to get me out. They haven't seen a good shortstop here yet," he said. "Bucky (Dent) didn't have the range and Alan (Bannister) has had 20 errors."

Nordbrook had 100 hits in 100 games in the minors with Stockton in 1971 for a .287 betting average. He duplicated that average in 1974 when he was with Rochester in Triple A. He received the Rawlings Silver Glove award as the best defensive shortstop in the minor leagues in 1974, so his confidence has some foundation. But he still is looking for a chance to prove himself in the major leagues.

Meanwhile, he tries to keep in shape, working with weights, running and taking batting practice, but it's not the same as game competition.

"He'd like to stay with the Sox, but can't see them keeping him around next year if they can get something for him in a trade.

"THEY (SOX) are trapped this year. But I can't see the same thing happening next year."

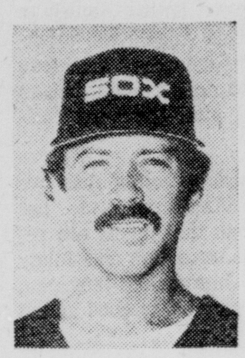
Nordbrook, as a free agent, was bound to the team and could not be traded or released prior to the June 15 trading deadline, although he had given his OK to a trade if one could be worked out.

"I would like to stay. This is a great bunch of guys here. The difference between here and Baltimore is like night and day.

"In Baltimore, it came down to one big hit a game. Here, we have those hits in almost every inning. Hitting is contagious. It started with Larry Doby (Sox coach) in spring training. Richie (Zisk) picked it up and so on."

ONE THING bothers Nordbrook almost as much as not playing — the fact that he could be hurting the team by not agreeing to go to the minors so another player could join the team. "It hurts because I want to help the team in any way. But if I stay in the big leagues to the end of my contract I have my four years in and qualify for a pension. What if I agree to go down and then get hurt?



Tim Nordbrook

Hemond says he thinks Nordbrook may get some playing time now that Kevin Bell is on the disabled list and Nordbrook is hoping that's true. Meanwhile, he has to endure the good-natured jokes of his teammates who refer to him as a member of the "Dirt Squad" or "Never Nordbrook."

"I can wait. I was in a similar situation in 1974 (at Rochester). There was a shortstop ahead of me with a flashy arm and speed on the bases. It took me half a season to get in there.

"But when I got in, they never got me out of there again."

Recreation Park spotlights American Legion baseball

by DON FRISKE

Last summer's national prestige for the Arlington Heights American Legion baseball team may not be the only reason for the recent renovations going on at Recreation Park.

But it sure didn't hurt.

"It probably created a little more enthusiasm for people to see it as a good thing," Lloyd Meyer said, referring to the lighting system that went up this week. "I'm sure last year's finish gave the park district an added tool to work with."

MEYER, WHO coached his team to a second-place finish in last year's national tournament, is looking forward to playing under the lights at the team's home location.

The decision to put in the lights, which was voted on once before, finally passed on a recent referendum. The job was completed Wednesday after 1½ months of work.

The first task for Lou Veneziano and his electronics crew was to pour the foundation for the lights. After trenching was completed, the cables were laid.

Once the eight poles were delivered, the lights were framed on the ground. The light cages had been assembled earlier by Veneziano in his shop.

FOUR POLES now line the outfield fence at Rec Park. Those four, along with two more next to the dugouts, have 12 bulbs each of 1,000 watts, which are nestled inside huge silver cones.

Two more poles along the foul lines have 22 lights apiece. These lights will also be used for a football field.

Meyer plans to open under the lights with two games Thursday, one against Tattler Post and the other against Elmhurst.

"I think this will help all of the programs," Meyer said. "It's not just beneficial to my team, and I don't want anyone to think that, even though we'll probably use the field more than anyone."

HE ADDED THAT the park district wants the field to be used seven nights a week.

"For our games, the lights provide a more convenient time for people to get out," Meyer said. "That's been the experience of the Elmhurst Legion team. A field with lights has really helped their program."

The quoted figure for the job was $89,000, and the lights will cost $6.50 an hour to be in use. But Meyer said the teams using the field will pay for that.

Along with the lights, a bigger set of permanent bleachers has been ordered. It will seat 400 people. certain areas of the playing field have also been re-sodded.

Big Ten objects to Challenge Bowl

Big Ten Commissioner Wayne Duke says his conference will provide no support for a game next January in which Big Ten senior football players compete against seniors from the Pacific Eight conference.

Announcement of the Challenge Bowl game, scheduled Jan. 14 in Seattle's Kingdome, was made Tuesday.

"The game will professionalize the student athlete since winners will receive $1,500 and losers $1,200, which will result in loss or reduction of the student athlete's scholarship at his school," Duke said.

"IT WILL mean a loss of class time and often results in the student athlete not returning to classes to complete his education.

Duke said Executive Director Wiles Halleck of the Pacific Eight has also objected to the game.

"This matter was reviewed by the joint group at the annual May meetings," Duke said, "and in accordance with their direction, I communicated to the sponsors of the Challenge Bowl that the Big Ten conference does not endorse this game in any form and will not provide support for such activity."

DUKE SAID however that neither the Big Ten nor Pacific Eight could prevent the seniors from playing.

"They play in the senior bowl and that's the same thing," he said.

"The endless proliferation of college and high school all-star football and basketball games remains a constant problem for all of intercollegiate and interscholastic athletics and some positive actions need be undertaken by college and high school agencies to curtail such activities," he said.

Say, Mr. Kauffman, what about the Sox and Twins?

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI)—Kansas City Royals' owner Ewing Kauffman says the California Angels are a better team than his defending American League West champions — but put an asterisk, please, after the word "better."

"They're probably better than we are right now," Kauffman says, "but that doesn't mean the Angels are going to win it. If Amos Otis and Johny Mayberry were hitting like they can, I'd say we're every bit as good as the Angels.

"I haven't worried much about the race because we've stayed within two games of California and Texas thus far. I'm not going to get panicky. If we had dropped off by five or six games, I'd have gotten worried. But as long as we can stay close to California and Texas, there's nb need to worry."

WHILE THE Angels and Rangers were improving their teams at great expense in the free agent extravaganza last winter, the Royals were abstaining. While California and Texas were dealing for starting pitchers to beat the trading deadline, the Royals were again abstaining.

California bolstered its starting rotation with 11th hour deals to acquire Ken Brett and Gary Nolan while Texas picked up Dock Ellis.

"Everyone talks about how great California's pitching is," says Kauffman. "Their pitching is Frank Tanana. Sure, Nolan Ryan's got a good fastball and will win 18 games — but he'll also lose 16. That's a two game difference.

"AND I'M not so sure Ken Brett is any better than Andy Hassler and Nolan — well, we were offered him but we weren't going to give up two of our best young prospects and money as well.

"I still think we're going to beat out California for this thing. We've got a better manager, a better attitude and a happier team. There's got to be some animosity in California by some of the guys who didn't get the big money but are hitting better than the free agents who did."

Kauffman admitted his team has weaknesses and said, win or lose, the Royals will be active during the coming offseason.

"IF I HAD a magic wand," he says, "I'd give us one or two starting pitchers and a power hitter. But I don't have a magic wand. Things don't come that easy. We'll enter the free agent pool this year and if we find someone who can help us, we'll sign him.

"But I'm not going to give a guy a million dollars if he isn't any better than somebody we already have. I don't think we need to make changes as much as we need to make additions to improve ourselves.

"The greatest thing that could happen would be if New York and California didn't win their divisions. That would show people that you can't keep giving millions of dollars to ball players. Economically, it isn't feasible."

Court House to hold special ladies' mixer

The Court House racquetball club in Schaumburg will hold a special ladies' mixer July 15 from 9:30 to 11:30 in the morning.

A Briton's view of United States soccer

(Editor's Note: Gerard Loughran, international editor of United Press International, formerly was based in Europe and has written about soccer for many years. In the following article he gives a Briton's view of the game as it is played in the United States.)

by GERARD LOUGHRAN

NEW YORK (UPI) — The problem about watching soccer in the United States is trying to keep your eye on the ball. There's so much else going on.

It's not just 22 players making magic — or misery — for 90 minutes and then everybody going home. The American approach demands the game be "sold" to the public. If you suspect you're watching rubbish, you must be persuaded otherwise. Batteries of electronic weapons are used to wage this hyping operation.

The pro football Giants stadium, a forest of concrete in a barren New Jersey wasteland, also is the home of America's most famous soccer club, the New York Cosmos — grazing ground of Pele, Chinaglia and now Beckenbauer.

AT A RECENT game, the Cosmos met the Chicago Sting and lost 2-1. Not that you would know it from the barrage of cheer-leading directed at the 20,000 spectators.

At regular intervals, cavalry bugle calls of ear-splitting intensity shattered the Sunday quiet while the word "C-H-A-A-A-A-R-G-E" flashed back and forth on two gigantic electronic scoreboards. Corner kicks were signaled with the words "Corner kick" in the form of a corner — apparently for fans who thought they might be at a baseball game.

Near-misses were greeted by a bank of goggling electronic eyes and the caption "Did you see that?" If the Cosmos were under pressure, "D-E-E-E-F-E-N-S-E" slogans would exhort them to redoubled efforts. Visitors' goals were greeted with the picture of a cartoon character looking distinctly suicidal. A home goal would transport him to rapturous happiness.

When nothing particular was happening, the scoreboard flashed "Go Cosmos" at the dazzled and deafened spectators.

FOR NEAR-SIGHTED fans who could not recognize their favorite players or read the names on their backs, a commentator obligingly chanted out the nomenclature as each man received the ball.

At the start of the game each player ran on separately through an honor guard of schoolboys as his name was announced over loudspeakers — Pele got the biggest cheer — and at halftime, the Deer Park High School Marching Band in gray and purple uniforms led by 28 fetching majorettes entertained the crowd to what is usually called "A Medley of Old-Tyme Favorites," including oddly a few bars of "God Save the Queen."

Just to ensure there wasn't a dull moment, a gentleman dressed as a rabbit and brandishing a carrot pranced along the touchline.

The game was preceded by a couple of school kids' matches, which brought out cheering mums in full measure.

BUT RAZZAMATAZ apart, there is much to commend the U.S. style of presenting soccer to the public. Above all, you are meant to be comfortable and enjoy it.

The Giants stadium alone is a revelation to any European fan who has stood under the rain on gritty terraces, fueled at halftime by a pork pie and dishwater tea or coffee.

At the New Jersey complex, escalators carry spectators to lower or middle tiers — the top tier is not opened since the average gate comes nowhere near filling the stadium's 76,500 seats, most of which are under cover.

Dotted liberally around the ground are food stands where fans can get anything the average person would want to munch on over 90 minutes, including frankfurters (75 cents), chocolates, sandwiches, ice cream and all kinds of beverages. The food shops are spotlessly clean, manned by uniformed waiters — one of whom was politely told by an official to put on his hat while serving food.

STADIUM OFFICIALS, many of them zipping about in compact battery-driven cars, likewise are all uniformed in handsome blue and red jackets and trousers.

Blue-uniformed Pinkerton guards provide security at key points.

Lavatories sparkle. They also have wash-basins and paper towels. There are iced-water drinking fountains all around the promenade areas. Special kiosks sell Cosmos memorabilia, and 100-page, five-color glossy programs — a dollar apiece — tell you more than you ever want to know about soccer in America, including "A Glossary of Soccer Terms" and "Condensed Rules of the Game."

The pampered fan, lolling in his red vinyl seat, can call over attendants whenever he is peckish or wants to respond to ringing cries of "Ice Cold Beer" — 75 cents or $1.25 depending on the size of the cardboard cup.

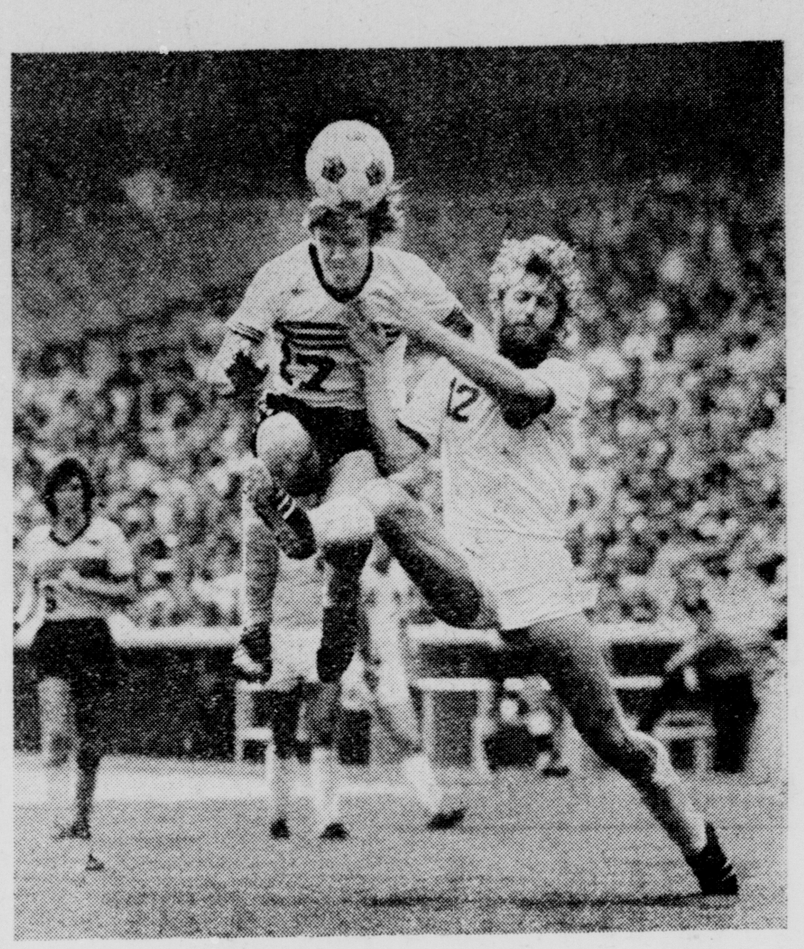
BUS SERVICES run to the stadium from points in New York and New Jersey — the Manhattanite pays $1.50 round trip for the 20-minute journey. The buses move off as each one fills up.

Ticke's for the game cost $4 - $12. A $4 seat gives an excellent view.

There are no moats nor cages at U.S. grounds because violence has not been a problem here, but security officials looked distinctly worried at the Cosmos-Sting game and escorted the referee from the pitch.

One spectator, shouting "referee, you're gonna wind up in a ditch tonight," eventually was arrested for throwing an object at him after the game.

An English girl commented: I do hope soccer isn't going to go the way it has in Britain. I eventually gave up going to matches there, but there seems to be the start of a hooligan element here now."



SOCCER in the United States tends to pamper the fan, according to British observer Gerald Loughran. And there also aren't many brawls.

Versailles offers American styling

LINCOLN VERSAILLES, a four-door sedan, is a smaller Lincoln Continental or more luxurious strictly luxury American with styling similarities to Mercury Monarch.

by DOYLE K. GETTER

Do not expect many European styling or ride characteristics in the recently introduced "international size" Lincoln Versailles, a four-door sedan. It is strictly luxury American.

It would be more accurate to think of the Versailles as a smaller Lincoln Continental or a more luxurious Mercury Monarch. There are styling similarities that can remind one of either car.

Still, despite the fact that the Versailles has evolved from the basic Monarch body, the finished product reflects more of the exacting careful assembly and quality control of the Continental.

ONLY 200.9 INCHES long on a short 109.9 inch wheelbase, the Versailles does not match the more controlled cushion-like ride of the much heavier and 233 inch long Continental, which is built on a 127.2 inch wheelbase.

Careful suspension turning, however, and special shock absorbers with double rubber mountings along with other engineering and sound-absorbing techniques developed for the new car, have given the Versailles as quiet and as smooth a ride on normal roads as any other short-wheelbase car I have driven.

That's where the excellence of the Versailles is, in its careful adherence to traditional American expectations of what a luxury car should be, and built as much as possible into a smaller package.

THE FIRST American car with a basecoat/clearcoat paint finish, the Versailles receives seven paint applications, the final two being clear coats of acrylic enamel, giving the body an extra-high luster.

The interior, fully carpeted and leather trimmed, had dual front bucket seats, trimmed in soft leather in the test car, separated by a console and floor shifter.

Some of the standard equipment included in the $11,500 base price were a two-barrel 351 cubic inch V-8 engine with automatic transmission, air conditioning, four powered disc brakes, powered driver's seat, power windows, illuminated entry system, two illuminated vanity mirrors, AM-FM stereo radio, forged aluminum wheels and Michelin white sidewall radial tires.

THE POWER steering is quick in response but transmits little road feel to the driver. On the other hand, road shocks are not transmitted, either.

With the 351 engine in the test car — the only engine available except in California — I averaged 15.3 miles per gallon in freeway and city driving and 18.6 miles per gallon on the highway at 55 miles an hour.

The car would accelerate from zero to 50 miles an hour in 8.3 seconds and from 30 to 50 in 4.9 seconds.

The only options on the test car — power door locks, quadrosonic tape player, speed control, rear window defroster and bucket seats — added $905 to the base price.

Carbon buildup

Why does car keep running?

Doyle K. Getter

Your auto and you

Auto Column: How can you keep an engine from running after turning off the ignition switch? It happens often in my 1962 four-cylinder Tempest with 100,000 plus miles and occasionally in my '72 Audi 100LS.

FOSTER RAVEN,
Kihei, Hawaii.

Mr. Raven: In an engine as old as your Tempest, you probably have heavy carbon buildup. The cause of engine run-on in such an engine is often due to red hot carbon particles resting on heavy carbon deposit in a very hot engine. A carbon solvent of the type you pour through the carburetor often helps. There are many brands. I have had good results with Cleans, which Chevrolet dealers carry.

Auto Column: I recently received as a gift a complete oil change of synthetic oil, including a new filter. How safe is this product? Can I put this oil in my 1973 Impala?

MRS. D. DUNCAN
Peoria, Ill.

Mrs. Duncan: I think you can use it safely, particularly because you will use it for only one oil change. The brand you mentioned in your letter is rated for Service SE, which your engine requires. General Motors has been studying synthetic oils for some time but so far has neither endorsed them or opposed them.

Auto Column: For the past month, I have noticed that the rear end of my 1974 Chevrolet Malibu is sagging when it is parked on a level surface. Are there any shock absorbers, other than air shocks, that will restore my car to its original height without replacing the rear springs?

IRA TRAGER
Lynbrook, N.Y.

Mr. Trager: Air shocks are about the only thing you can go to but your car would still bottom out on bad bumps. Instead of replacing the rear springs, why don't you just strengthen them with some spacer shims?

Auto Column: My 1972 Chevy Nova with the 307 engine starts fine but when I drive a little while, it doesn't take the gas right away. It runs good on fast idle when cold but as soon as it comes off fast idle, it doesn't take the gas until the engine warms up.

MR. G. A. M.
West Springfield, Mass.

Mr. G.A.M.: The problem is in your carburetor and choke. You are getting very little choke action after the engine comes off fast idle. The engine runs well when warm because you don't need the choke then.

Auto Column: On the return home from a recent trip south, we noticed a strom smell of raw gas during the last 800 miles of the trip, mainly while driving on the highway. Also during the trip, whenever we stopped, we experienced stalling until we got rolling again. We have a '76 Ford Granada with the 250 cubic inch engine.

WILLIAM CURTO
Youngstown, N.Y.

Mr. Curto: There is a normal amount of venting within a carburetor and none of it should be to the outside unless one of the vent hoses might have come off or cracked during the trip. Have all of the vent connections and hoses checked.

Auto Column: Could low manifold vacuum be the cause of poor engine and transmission performance on my 1975 Chevrolet Nova with the six cylinder 250 cubic inch engine? Through experimentation, I have noticed that performance is much better when the EGR vacuum line is disconnected and plugged. The engine also hesitates on moderate acceleration yet the carberutor, timing, ignition and accelerator pump all have been checked out as OK.

R. E. Moore
Peoria, Ill.

Mr. Moore: I think you have diagnosed your problem correctly. A leaking EGR valve could account for all of your troubles. Ask your dealer to check the valve.

Auto Column: I have a 1976 Chevrolet truck with the 454 engine. When starting a cold engine, I hear a knocking noise that goes away as the engine warms up. I've been told there's nothing wrong. The truck has about 10,000 miles on. What is your opinion?

CLIFF W.
Silver Springs, Fla.

Mr. Cliff W.: That's probably lifter chatter. The oil passage in one of the lifters may be partly plugged. When the engine begins to warm and the oil thins, it lubricates normally. Unless it gets worse, I wouldn't worry about it. You might try a can of upper engine cleaner.

Lead saves West's hide

Jose Le Dentu, one of the best players in France, is the hero of today's hand. Not that he might not have been the goat. His takeout double of South's one-heart opening caught his partner with plenty of nothing. So East passed to let Le Dentu get out of his own trouble. His one-spade bid didn't get him out, but South came through with some needed help and decided to try three notrump.

One spade would probably have gone down 800, but three notrump would have made against any defense except that Le Dentu came up with — one of those one in a million leads.

He put the queen of diamonds on the table. You can't blame South for winning with the king and leading a heart toward dummy. Le Dentu took his king and led a second diamond. Dummy's 10 lost to East's jack. East led his jack of spades and there was no way to keep the defense from collecting two spades, one diamond, one heart, one club and 100 points.

Ask Andy

Mohole dig died for lack of funding

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1977 Yearbook of Science and the Future to Darrell Gordon, 13, of Winston-Salem, N.C., for his question:

WHATEVER HAPPENED TO THE MOHOLE PROJECT?

Scientists have determined that our earth is divided into four parts: the outer crust, the mantle, the outer core and the inner core. The thickness of the crust varies from 5 miles under the oceans to about 20 miles under the continents. It is believed that within the deepest part of the crust the earth's temperature may be 1,600 degrees Fahrenheit.

Some years back scientists agreed that it would be valuable to have some samples taken directly from the earth's mantle. A government-financed project was established for just such an experiment. The operation was called Mohole.

There's a boundary between the earth's crust and the mantle called the Mohorovicic discontinuity. The name has been shortened to Moho and the hole that was to be drilled was called mohole.

Plans were made to set up a drilling platform located in the ocean, since the earth's crust here would be at its thinnest. The project got as far as drilling a number of test holes. But, unfortunately, the fine plans to be able to study the composition, radioactivity and temperature of the mantle were not to be realized.

In 1966 the ambitious scientific project ground to a halt. Congress refused to provide additional money which was necessary if the operation was to continue. High costs of the project itself frightened many members of Congress since high budgets also had to be met for our space program and the war in Vietnam.

And so the Mohole project was over. It had become a scientific dream that never reached reality. Perhaps someday the work can be resumed.

We know that the earth's mantle is solid rock and that it goes down about 1,800 miles. Without actually having a hole drilled into it, we also know that the mantle is made of silicon, oxygen, aluminum, iron and magnesium. While the temperature in the area where it meets the crust is 1,600 degrees Fahrenheit, scientists believe it increases to about 4,000 degrees where the mantle meets the outer core.

Scientists speculate that the earth's outer crust is about 1,400 miles thick and that it is made of melted iron and nickel. Temperatures here probably increase to about 9,000 degrees Fahrenheit. The inner core of the earth is 800 miles thick and probably consists of solid iron and nickel.

Andy sends a Denoyer-Geppert World Globe to Lisa Renski, 12, of Peoria, Ill., for her question:

WHAT ARE GOOSEBUMPS?

They can be called goose pimples, goose skin, goosebumps or goose flesh. We've all had the sensation at one time or another; it's a rough condition of the skin that can be caused by either cold weather or fear or a special feeling of excitement.

It is easy to guess where the name came from if you've ever lived on a farm where a goose was occasionally selected for a holiday menu. If you've ever seen the skin of a plucked goose ready for the kitchen, you know that it isn't too different from the way your skin looks when you're hit by a cold draft and you aren't wearing a sweater.

If we told you the scientific name for the condition, would you remember it? Hardly anybody does. The word is horripilation.

Do you have a question to Ask Andy? Send it on a post card with your name, age and complete address to Ask Andy in care of The Herald, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. Entries are open to boys and girls from 7 to 17.

is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

King Richard to reign at the faire

The King's warriors clash at the Renaissance Faire.

The royal couple stroll down Michigan Avenue.

by GENIE CAMPBELL

Ten months out of the year, Richard Shapiro is a high-pressured concert promoter who works hard to corner the entertainment market in his hometown of Minneapolis, Minn.

July and August he works hard, too — playing King Richard. His wife is Queen Bonnie. Together they reign in costumed splendor over their kingdom, the annual King Richard's Renaissance Faire, which opens Saturday for six weekends on a wooded, secluded site just north of Chicago.

The common denominator is Greathall Corp., Shapiro's company which produces both the slick, explosive, one-night concert engagements and the peaceful interlude of 16th century Merry Olde England recaptured during the faire.

SIX YEARS AGO the Shapiros visted a Renaissance fair in another state and their reaction was the same — "Why didn't we think of that?"

"It was the nicest day — cool, crisp with a breeze. It made me forget everything," said Bonnie, yards of skirt bellowing everywhere as she tried to settle into an office chair.

The Shapiros sought out the next largest metropolitan area — which just happened to be Chicago — walked their feet off at art fairs lining up appropriate artisans (glass blowers, weavers, potters and woodcutters) and performers to match (mimes, court jestors and flute players, to name just a few), and opened King Richard's rendition that very next year.

A tornado wiped out one weekend. The over-all attendance was less than they had hoped.

Yet, now in its fifth year, the faire has grown from just three weekends to six, 100 acres of land have been purchased by Greathall in order to construct a permanent Renaissance village, and the number of entertainers has multiplied to 200. Even psychic Irene Hughes recognizes a good thing. She's appearing every weekend, too.

SHAPIRO, 31, is delighted with the progress. He doesn't mince words. Even dressed in purple tights and royal robes, he remains true to his profession.

"I want to make people happy and I want to make money. And I don't want to do either without the other. I'm not wealthy and alturistic enough to put on a show that won't make money. I also won't do a show that I don't think is entertaining just for the money. I would have been a great star, only I recognized early I had no talent. So I moved into the production end of it."

But King Richard, Queen Bonnie and a dozen or so attendants, all in costume, were star struck of sorts when they walked into Marshall Field's one time and were formally beckoned over to the royal candy counter.

"I started picking out one of these, two of those, four of another," King Richard recounts the story. "Then she told me the candy was $40 a pound" — fit for a king maybe, but not one who makes a living by just pretending to be one.

"I PUT BACK two of these, three of those, one of another kind. I sald all the money was tied up in my costume."

But the king and queen won't go hungry at the faire. There's plenty to eat for under $1 and for the first time a 10-course feast will be served every Saturday and Sunday for 100 persons. Again, however, modern restrictions thwart authenticity. Pewter plates won't pass sanitation inspection. Disposal dishes will have to suffice.

There's a lot of glory to playing royalty, but hardly much comfort. It's hot under 60 pounds of robes. Queen Bonnie threw out her steel corset after only one wearing. "I got such severe pains in the stomach."

Yet, away from the hubbub, carried back centuries, King Richard and Queen Bonnie are in their element.

"It's a time tunnel, an escape. You have to experience it yourself to even know what I'm talking about," said Shapiro.

This summer for the first time, his majesty has assigned a different theme for each weekend. And the king is being very

Do-it-yourself photo lab for shutterbugs

Click. It's February, 1977.

The picture consists of four Roselle businessmen/photography hobbyists who have an idea. They are forming a business — Images, Inc. — where people can develop, print and mount their own color pictures.

Click. Jump to May. Amateur photographers are stepping into 1252 Remington Rd., Schaumburg, to look over what sounds too good to be true.

THEY SEE SIX darkrooms, enthusiastic photography technicians and more than $10,000 of equipment. For a membership fee of $25 a year, photographers are entitled to use of the equipment, paper and film at an additional cost, a darkroom at $3 an hour, free help and a processing technique which ranges from under $1 for 5 by 7-inch or 8 by 10-inch photos to $5.50 for 20 by 24-inch pictures.

Members are not required to mix chemicals or mess with bleaches, water baths and driers.

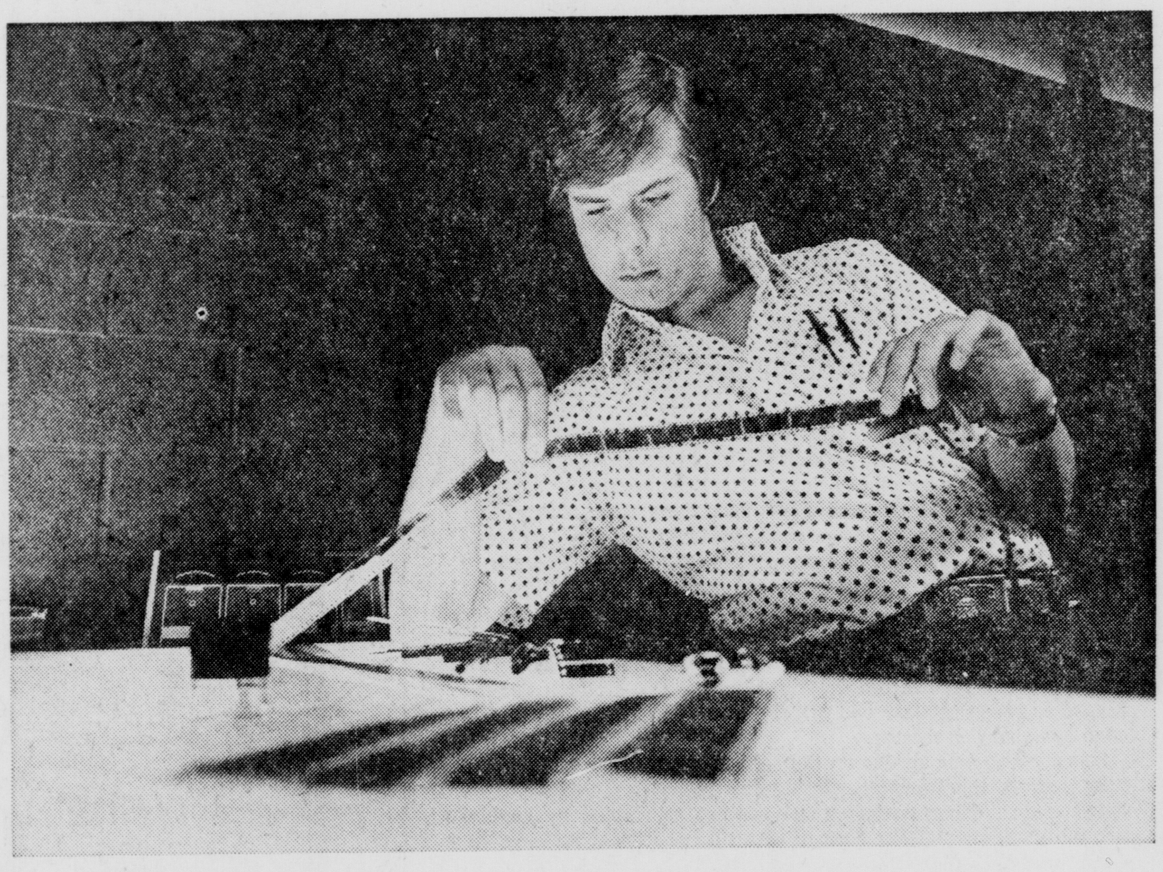
Click. It's June and the membership is climbing steadily ... past 30, over 50 and approaching 100. An average of three new members join each day. Plans are being made for photography courses and contests — and maybe a similar setup closer to the city?

"I THINK THE future is rosy," said Rennie Waxlax, pilot by profession and promoter of Images, Inc., by interest. "I see this idea like that of portable calculators. People will be demanding similar setups like ours all over the country."

The idea for Images arose from Portland, Ore., where a color processing lab is open to amateurs. A black and white laboratory, The Darkroom, is operating in Chicago.

"For years all the photography magazines talked about how hard color-processing is to do at home," said Waxlax. "But with our equipment, there's no mess, no drudgery. And the only variable that can go wrong is what the member does in the darkroom. We've taken the idea of the Portland operation and improved on it."

IMAGES HAS TAKEN a complicated process and made it very simple said Don Bartley, who handles the business functions for Images, Inc. Instead of water baths, critical temperature regulation and chemical mixtures, an expensive Hope processor turns exposed paper into color prints — neatly, accurately and in only 10 minutes.



Images member Jeff Borker, Palatine, checks his negatives.

Learning to use the enlarger.

With relatively good expertise in the darkroom, any Image member can produce a custom-printed 8 by 10-inch photo for about $2, including time in the darkroom, paper and processing. A commercial outfit may charge anything from $15 to $30 for the same results.

OBVIOUSLY, the Image setup appeals to semi-professional photographers who occasionally work at weddings or are commissioned for portraits, but who don't have the money to purchase expensive, sensitive equipment for processing.

Images, however, is also appreciated by run-of-the-mill amateurs.

Click. Newlyweds Debbie and Gary Mainerich, Mount Prospect, are printing their own wedding and honeymoon photos in their spare time and are enjoying every minute of it.

"We could never afford the kind of equipment they have at Images," explained Debbie. "And even if we could, where would we put it in our apartment?"

SHE CHUCKLED: "I used to hate photography. It was Gary who always had a camera in his hands. But now I really enjoy it. I like printing the pictures and seeing the projects through from start to finish. And both Gary and I are learning things about photography which make us better at taking pictures. In fact, I'm surprised at myself. Now it's me who's always wanting to go out to play photographer."

Though she admits that the bill for five continuous hours of darkroom mistakes adds up before the perfect print is made, she expects the cost to decrease with improved skill. "Once it took 10 tries to get a picture to come out right," she sighed. "But it's fun."

"PICTURES ARE so personal to begin with, and when you can develop and print them yourself, they just become more so," she added.

Evening of two one-acts

Two one-act plays will be presented by Pentangle Productions for three weekends at Limelight Theatre, 1165 Tower Rd., Schaumburg. Opening Saturday are "The Dumb Waiter" by Harold Pinter and "The Zoo Story" by Edward Albee.

Play dates are July 2, 3, 9, 10, 16 and 17 at 8 p.m. Tickets are $3.50 for adults, $3 senior citizens, and $2.50 with purchase of Act II '77 season ticket. 884-0137.

Frontier Days fun

Music and art are highlights of the Frontier Days festival in Arlington Heights this holiday weekend.

Artists and craftsmen will show their works at Recreation Park, Miner street, Saturday starting at noon, Sunday from 1 p.m. and Monday from 11 a.m.

Musical entertainment will fill the stage afternoons and evenings. Tonight Ron Ford performs original compositions, followed by a country/rock concert by Palm. Saturday afternoon features Jimmy James Banjo Masters and Country Chords Chapter of Sweet Adelines. Sing Out Palatine entertains Saturday evening.

Sunday evening the Lutheran Home Kitchen Band and Choir get equal time with a folk duo, Bob Gand and Lana Rae. July 4th young violinists and cellists will give a concert, and the Arlingtones close the celebration Monday evening.

'Finian's Rainbow'

"Finian's Rainbow," the Broadway musical produced jointly by Music On Stage and Palatine Park District, will be presented tonight and Saturday at Cutting Hall, Palatine.

Tickets are $3.50 adults, $2.50 students and senior citizens, tonight; $4 all seats Saturday. Information 991-0333.

MARCIA HAYDEE AND Richard Cragun are scheduled to appear in four of eight performances of the Stuttgart Ballet, which comes to the Arie Crown Theatre July 12-17. Among them are "Romeo and Juliet," shown above, "Eugene Onegin" and "Sleeping Beauty." The lively young company bears the stamp of its founder, the late John Cranko, in its acrobatic lifts and dramatic staging. Ticket information is available through 791-6000.

James Levine, music director of the Ravinia Festival, opens the gala 42nd season Saturday, 8:45 p.m., with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, Symphony Chorus and guest soloists in a performance of Gustav Mahler's Symphony No. 2, "The Resurrection."

The symphonic tour-de-force draws upon the massed forces of an augmented orchestra, 200-voice choir, vocal soloists, and off-stage brass ensemble. This will be Levine's second Ravinia performance of the Symphony No. 2, which he also conducted for his Festival debut in 1971 when he appeared as a last-minute substitute for Eugene Ormandy.

Two all-Tchaikovsky programs are scheduled Sunday. At 6 p.m. Preview I will feature the Trio in A minor, Op. 50, with Samuel Magad is concertmaster and Miller is principal cellist of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra.

Schenly also will appear on the second Tchaikovsky program at 7:30 p.m. in the Pavilion, playing the Piano Concerto No. 1 in B-flat minor. Other works on the concert, conducted by Levine, are the Romeo and Juliet Fantasy-Overture and the Symphony No. 4 in F minor.

"Welcome Back" John Sebastian headlines the Tuesday Folk-Pop Fest at 7 p.m. Bob Gibson will be master of ceremonies for the four-hour concert, which also spotlights singer-songwriters Sylvia Tyson, Jim Post, Ed Holstein, Don Lange, Sally Fingerette, Mick Scott and Paul Geremia.

A SPECIAL RECORDING preview Wednesday offers several of the works that will be performed on Ravinia's four-record album, "Music from Ravinia." The album, a first for the Festival, will be in collaboration with RCA Red Seal Records. Music on the concert program includes J. S. Bach's "Wedding Cantata" No. 202, Stravinsky's Suite from "Histoire du Soldat," and Mozart's Piano Quintet in E-flat Major, K. 452.

The second of Ravina's five Previews is scheduled for Thursday, 7 p.m., and will be devoted to music by the Festival's featured composers. On the program are Joseph Haydn's String Quartet in G Major, O. 77, No. 1 and Bela Bartok's Sonata for Two Pianos and Percussion. Artists include the Chicago Symphony String Quartet, with Victor Aitay and Edgar Muenzer, violinists; Milton Preves, violist; Frank Miller, cellist; Andre-Michel Schub and Paul Schenly, pianists; and Donald Koss and Gordon Peters, percussionists.

Andre Watts, pianist, will be soloist at the 8:30 concert, performing the Franck Symphonic Variations for Piano and Orchestra, and Liszt's Totentanz. James Levine opens the program with Schubert's Symphony no. 9 in C Major, "The Great."

Superb camera work makes film

KASSEM (AMIDOU) cries out as the nitro-loaded truck driven by Victor (Bruno Cremer) appears perilously close to tipping over in a scene from "Sorcerer."

JACQUELINE BISSET, left, learned how to scuba dive in filming "The Deep," along with the rest of the cast that included Robert Shaw, above, an island recluse who comes to the aid of Bisset and boyfriend, Nick Nolte.

by GENIE CAMPBELL

If William Friedkin had spent just a fraction as much time tying up the loose ends to the story line for "Sorcerer" as he did on the precise editing and artful camera work, the noted director would have assured himself another solid hit.

He is methodical and meticulous. This is only Friedkin's second picture since "The French Connection" swept five Academy Awards including Best Picture and Best Director in 1971. In between was "The Exorcist." It was nominated for 10.

But if the title, "Sorcerer," appears misleading, it's actually only the beginning. Some facts which might help to explain the premise behind the film are left out entirely.

The "Sorcerer" is not a movie about mysticism or black magic. However, a great deal of mystery shrouds each one of the four main characters. In addition, fate alone is the foreboder of doom throughout this very intense, suspenseful adventure.

Four complete strangers from different parts of the world are inadvertently thrown in a Godforsaken, filthy South American village where each has fled from his respective country to escape either loss of face of immediate death.

The squalor is unbearable. Yet the four are trapped. They need money to leave, the kind impossible to amass as members of an American oil refinery work crew.

So the four volunteer for a suicidal but lucrative job: driving a cargo of explosives, damaged and ready to blow at the slightest bump, across 200 miles of dense, jungle terrain. The explosives are needed to blast a section of the refinery that has already blown.

THE SECOND FILM to be based on George Arnaud's novel "The Wages of Fear," "Sorcerer's" screenplay is by Walon Green. Friedkin is purported to have spent three years on "Sorcerer" — 18 months of pre-production work, another 10 on location shooting and the rest editing the film for distribution.

Consequently the cinematography is brilliant, sometimes surrealistic, as in the scene in which one man's hallucinations and the end of the road emerge into a Salvador Dali-like montage.

Friedkin is a master of contrasts — a shot of a littered, dark alley breaking into a dusty, early morning, country scene, a blast of a gun echoing over a crowd. He excels in closeups — a butterfly on a screen, a rooster's head, details that would never be missed, but make a film so much more complete.

WHERE OTHER directors rely on music to build suspense, Friedkin plants it in the faces of his characters. You read what's happening or about to happen in their grimaces, blank stares and long glances of fear. Only then does the camera follow the action.

The one familiar face in "Sorcerer" belongs to Roy Scheider who played a narc in "French Connection."

A small-time gangster, a loser who bungles a heist, Scheider is forced to flee the United States after he learns a contract has been put out for his life.

Amidou, a Moroccan actor, plays an Arab Terrorist also running away from certain death in Palestine for underground activities.

BRUNO CREMER of France leaves his lovely wife and swank lifestyle for the backyards of South America rather than face the humiliation of being arrested and charged with embezzlement. He is a banker.

The fourth man, forever remains a mystery. He murders one man just to go along for the ride, for whatever reason we never learn.

The introduction for each character is fast and neatly packaged to avoid stealing from the ensuing, harrowing ride — around hairpin curves and suspended rope bridges where the swells of the river have eaten away many of the wooden ties.

Yet I don't understand why the explosives were stored in a shack way out in the middle of the jungle. And if the nitroglycerin was too damaged to move, why not truck in fresh powder. I guess I needed to know why the trip was really necessary.

IT IS ONLY when each appears home free that fate deals a joker from the bottom of the deck. A letdown of guard, a sign of emotion and their vulnerability is attacked.

"Sorcerer" is rated PG but I wouldn't recommend it for children. It is a grueling movie, one sprinkled intermittently with human disaster. And it leaves you somewhat exhausted and downtrodden at the end.

Review ★★★

'The Deep'

The two items "The Deep" made a big deal of — Jacqueline Bisset in a wet T-shirt and underwater shooting — are both very good.

But moviegoers who think that just because Peter Benchley wrote both novels, "Jaws" and "The Deep" that the latter film will equal the thrill sensations of the first, will come away sorely disappointed.

The truth is, "The Deep" is dull — not only the story line, but the actors. Wouldn't you know, everything filmed underwater is beautiful, while everything above seems faked.

JACQUELINE BISSET and Nick Nolte play a young vacationing couple who, while diving off the shores of Bermuda, discover not only priceless jewels but thousands of small vials of morphine in the hold of a sunken World War II freighter.

Louis Gossett plays a mean Haitian who wants to sell the morphine on the black market and make a fortune for himself. Only if he wanted it so bad, why didn't he dive himself, instead of making a deal with Robert Shaw, an eccentric islander and expert in sunken treasures.

Shaw tries so hard to be an offbeat character, he ruins the character. But Bisset and Nolte hardly try at all, and Eli Wallach, Shaw's booze-guzzling Benedict Arnold, is a mess.

The best part of this movie is the underwater photography. And there are enough close calls, silly though they may seem, to keep the adventuresome happy. Besides, "The Deep" does have a happy ending, and that doesn't come along very often. Maybe that's why it also appears so unrealistic. Rating for "The Deep (PG): two stars.

Movie guide

Designed to help readers decide which movies they want to see, this guide includes a listing of movies currently playing in the Northwest suburban area plus capsule summaries and comments, based on reports of the Independent Film Journal, for selected films of interest to readers.

"Star Wars" — Director George Lucas (American Graffiti") pulled out all stops in mounting this space fantasy about intergalactic warfare, and the dazzling flimmaking, technical wizardry and rousing adventure make for one of the most spectacular entertainments of this or any other year. Not a heavy, heady "2001" trip, it aims to entertain, and the sky is the limit. (PG).

"Exorcist II: The Heretic" — Linda Blair, now a highschooler goes another round with Satan, who this time manifests himself as a giant locust. Pure trash. The sequel to "The Exorcist" also stars Louise Fletcher, Max von Sydow and Richard Burton. (R).

"The Other Side of Midnight" — Two women on different continents fall in love with the same man in a story of international romance and intrigue based on Sidney Sheldon's best selling novel. Features Susan Sarandon, John Beck and Marie-France Pisier. (R).

"Islands in the Stream" — Hemingway's posthumously-published novel about a secluded artist whose emotional isolation is shattered when his three sons arrive for a visit has been given emotional treatment in an old-fashioned drama that starts brilliantly but dissipates into too many tangets to be fully satisfying. George C. Scott is superb as the semi-autobiographical hero. (PG).

"Rocky" — Sylvester Stallone wrote the script and stars as the title character in this small, unpretentious and genuinely involving story of a local clubhouse prizefighter who gets a chance-of-a-lifetime shot at the world heavyweight title and finds love and self-respect along the way. (PG).

"3 Women" — Sissy Spacek, Shelley Duvall and Janice Rule are the stars of Robert Altman's latest, a psychological teaser that may be about an exchange of personalities or the female psyche or messed up male-female relationships. Then again it may not. It looks striking and some of the acting is fine, but the script is as arrid as its desert locale. Who it was made for is anyone's guess, and this languid, ambiguous tale seems bound for much critical attention. (PG).

Free concerts at Old Orchard

Old Orchard will be singing another tune when the Chicago Orchestra opens the summer concert series Tuesday 9:15 p.m.

In the past the orchestra, which is solely staffed by members of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, has presented a classical program of symphonic music. Tuesday the baton of Arnold Brostoff animates the evening's tempo with a selection of familiar and famed melodies.

A pair of marches, Verdi's "Grand March" from the opera "Aida," and Saint-Saens' "March Militaire Francais," sound the opening of this musical event. It also features the "William Tell Overture" and a cornucopia of international and periodic themes from Verdi's subtle harmonies and imaginative orchestration to Scott Joplin's renowned ragtime in "The Sting."

Upcoming concerts in the Old Orchard series include the World's Greatest Jazz Band on the evening of July 11, The Glenn Miller Orchestra the evening of July 18, and Wayne King and His Orchestra the evening of July 25. All concerts begin at 9:15 under the gazebo located southeast of Marshall Field's. Old Orchard is located at Skokie Boulevard and Golf Road. Further information: 673-6800.

Weak role for Barbara Eden

'Blithe Spirit' belongs in hereafter

by LAURA SCHMALBACH

It makes sense that Barbara Eden plays the title role in Noel Coward's "Blithe Spirit," a comedy about a mischievous blonde who comes back from "the other side" to torment her former husband and his new wife. She's a natural for the part.

After all, Miss Eden's five-year stint in "I Dream of Jeannie" gave her plenty of practice popping in and out of rooms and wreaking havoc on mortals.

But unfortunately, a giggly, attractive Barbara Eden can't carry the lackluster production at Marriott's Lincolnshire Theater, and the show winds up generating more subdued smiles than outright laughs.

MUCH OF THE ho-hum atmosphere can be attributed to the play itself. First performed in London in 1941, "Blithe Spirit" just can't sustain its punch 36 years later — and in an era when seances and visits from the dead are old hat, it needs all the punch it can get.

The play revolves around Charles Condomine (Roger Mueller), a well-to-do author who invites psychic Madame Arcati (Jane MacIver) to perform a seance as part of his research on a new book.

Review

Condomine, his wife Ruth (Concetta Tomei) and their friends, Dr. and Mrs. Bradman (Art Kassul and Jo Morrison), look on the session as a bit of a joke. But the last laugh's on them when Charles' former wife Elvira makes an appearance after a seven-year hiatus in the hereafter.

OF COURSE, her visit causes plenty of complications — Elvira is visible only to Charles, leaving a bewildered Ruth to assume her husband has gone mad. Elvira enjoys captivating her husband again, but begins to tire of the game when she discovers her return visit is a one-way proposition.

The rest of "Blithe Spirit" chronicles Charles attempts to retrun his former wife to the hereafter, and Elvira's efforts to get rid of Ruth. The plot takes an interesting turn when long-suffering Ruth shoulders more troubles than she bargained for.

Lincolnshire staged another dated comedy recently, but "Accent on Youth" transcended the cliches with the virtuoso lead performance of Ricardo Montalbon. Miss Eden also gives a good effort, and her seductive negligee undoubtedly piques the fancy of many men in the audience. But this role just isn't meaty enough to give her talents much of a workout, and it shows.

MOST OF THE other actors do well with their parts. Mueller is acceptable as Elvira's frazzled ex-husband, and Kassul makes the most of his small role as the family doctor. Miss MacIver gets the evening's biggest laughs as the delightfully unconventional Madame Arcati, and despite some uneveness Miss Tomei makes a convincing Ruth.

In the final analysis, perhaps "Blithe Spirit" just needs a technical shot in the arm. Much of "I Dream of Jeannie's" appeal was television's unique ability to whisk the star in and out of bottles and living rooms. At Lincolnshire, we can watch Miss Eden approaching the stage and then plainly walking, not popping, into a room. Jeannie was a lot more convincing.

"Blithe Spirit" is playing at Lincolnshire through July.

Mob's fans are the young

The Mob, a seven-man group with roots in Chicago, comes on like gangbusters with a repertoire that is decidedly frenetic. From Joe Tex to the Bee Gees' "Nights on Broadway," the music is loud and brassy — no Barry Manilow softies or barbershop medleys with this bunch currently performing at the Navarone Restaurant in Elk Grove Village.

But if The Mob's musical style disappoints soft rock fans, it is just what the largely teen-age and young-twenties crowd enjoys. Jammed three or four deep at the bar on a recent Friday night, the young audience obviously appreciated the large number of disco-type selections, which gave them a chance to strut their stuff on the dance floor.

Night out

DIRECTING The Mob's Blood, Sweat and Tears sound is "Big Al" Huerrara, the lead singer and sax-handler. Another standout is trombonist and guitarist Michael Sistak, who joins Jimmy Soul in a "Dueling Banjos" type of arrangement on Sistak's original song, "Gemini Lady."

Rounding out The Mob is Gary Bielbier on keyboards and sax, drummer Joe Farroh, bass-player Eric Collins, and Jim Ryan on the keyboards and moog synthesizer.

Flashing red lights and gangster suits notwithstanding, The Mob provides an enjoyable couple of hours if you enjoy that kind of brassy style. But if you're looking for variety, better luck next time.

The Mob will be appearing at the Navarone through the first week in July.

—Laura Schmalbach

Liza Minnelli

LIZA MINNELLI and Barry Nelson will appear together at the Shubert Theatre beginning Monday in the new musical "Shine It On."

The play about a young performer who must reconcile her drive for fame with her personal life will be in Chicago only through July 16.

George Furth, author of "Company," wrote "Shine It On" especially for Minnelli. John Kander and Fred Ebb, who also did the score for "Cabaret," wrote the lyrics and misic. Director is Martin Scorsese.

Shirley Knight stars in the world premiere of John Guare's "The Landscape of the Body" opening Thursday and playing through July 24 at Academy Festival Theatre, Barat College, in Lake Forest.

THE PLAY IS presented in cooperation with Joseph Papp's New York Festival and will open at the Public Theatre in New York this fall. Directing the production is John Pasquin who staged the off-Broadway production of "Moonchildren."

Knight recently appeared in "Kennedy's Children" in New York and Los Angeles, for which she received a Tony award. She also was in the television film "Twenty-One Hours at Munich."

Mary Ann Chinn is replacing Lesley Ann Warren in "Vanities," which is continuing to run through the summer at Drury Lane Theatre/Water Tower Place. And Elizabeth Farley replaces Elizabeth Ashley in the same production through July 16. During this period, Ashley is filming a movie.

King Richard's faire

generous in awarding huge purses.

THE MIDDLE KINGDOM Grand Tourney is this Saturday through Monday. The King's warriors will defend the crown. In addition to these staged battles, regularly scheduled medieval martial arts skirmishes will continue throughout the three days.

A $1000 purse will go to the winner of a one-mile cross-country horse race July 9-10. The public is invited to participate. The race is limited to quarter horses and a $25 fee is required. Already 26 persons have entered. It's not too late to sign up. But riders must be in costume.

A sand castle competition is scheduled July 16-17. The builder of the best Gothic through baroque style castle will receive a $200 purse. Construction begins Saturday with the final judging on Sunday.

Robin Hood and his band of merry men arrive on the scene July 23-24 to host ballad singing, eating and log contests. On Sunday the king's foresters will challenge Robin's men to a tug-of-war. Women who have felt they were born centuries too late can enter the Fair Maid Marion's Fairest of the Faire Contest.

DURING THE FIFTH weekend of the faire, July 30-31, a decathlon will be open to the public featuring such events as javelin, cross-country running, wrestling and a stone throw.

A human chess game and boar hound (Great Dane) show are scheduled for Aug. 6-7, the final weekend of the faire.

Hours are 11:30 a.m. - 6:30 p.m. Admission is $4 for adults; $1 for children 5-12; children under 5 admitted free.

To reach the grounds, drive north on Interstate 94 (the Tri-State Tollway), exit at Russell Road, follow signs for almost a mile to the site. Further information and specific times for scheduled events are available through 689-2800.

FREE CONCERT FROM CHICAGO

JULY 2, 7PM PALATINE PARK PALATINE
Ressurection Band, from the streets of Chicago to a network of audiences across the nation. No place is too big or too small for the message they dynamically communicate. On stage, the familiar gulf of separation between performers and audiences is washed away with lead guitarist Glenn Kaiser's insight into his listener's thoughts and moods. He is bold in what he says, immediately establishing a rapport. You may not exactly agree, but you know he's hitting between the eyes with truth. You may even get angry except he escapes offending you just in time with that grin, that twinkle in his eye and that story he begins telling about a time in his life, a story that will be pieced together throughout the course of the evening. His versatility of voice from broken rasp to quality pitched harmony turns his lyrics into more than words . . . it is a feeling — you are familiar with . . . it becomes your life he is singing about . . .

Joan Baez less political, aims at pure entertaining

by BRUCE MEYER

DISCovering rock

"I've been shopping at Saks and Bonwit Teller since I was 17," says Joan Baez, her eyes flashing with humor. "But I didn't want people to know that for years, because I was hanging on to the image of myself that they had made for me."

For most of her 18 years as a professional singer, Baez has been known at least as well for her pacifist-cum-radical politics as for her pure, delicate soprano.

Now, she is tearing down a dated persona — and chipping away at the hard-eyed rigidity of her own fans.

The product of a home on the move — she attended some 15 schools before completing high school — Baez grew up an outsider, "basically a skinny Mexican . . . an oddity" who "sang because they accepted me when I sang."

Still a teen-ager, she rapidly became one of the major folk singers of the pre-Beatles '60s. As she tells it now, her image was created by the times and her own politicized following.

"ALL OF A sudden I was a big deal," she says. "I don't think there was any way, in my little mind, to have done anything except project the image that they had given me. And, you know, it's a gracious image — I was a Madonna, for God's sake. I wasn't going to turn that down."

But the war is gone and the firebrand generation that grew up with it has diffused. The counter-culture that gave Joan Baez her image has dwindled, almost to nothing. Everyone told her it was time for a change and she saw it herself — so she began to loosen up.

There are fewer protest songs on her records now, less rhetoric on stage. Where once she was intense and often sharp with an audience that failed to give her total attention, she now dances a bit and even tells an occasional joke.

Much the same can be said of her most recent albums, particularly the latest collection, "Blowin' Away" (Portrait PR-34697), which contains not a single, clear protest song. It is, in fact, a nicely balanced collection of tunes, half Baez compositions, ranging from the rich emotional understatement of Steve Winwood's "Many A Mile To Freedom" to the tongue-in-cheek petulance of "Time Rag," an indictment of insensitive journalists.

THE ALBUM'S best include "Miracles," a tribute to Stevie Wonder that — like much of Wonder's own work — manages to be light and nightclubby while conveying a message. And there's the delicious melancholy of "Yellow Coat," a Steve Goodman song about a love that slipped away.

"A Heartfelt Line Or Two" is an exuberant thanks to the real people and friends show business folk often find so difficult to reach. There's even a smoky rendition of the old Julie London hit, "Cry Me A River."

It's a good record — clean and easy on the ears but not sterile — and Baez has made it clear that she can be as good an entertainer as she was a political symbol.

She's desperately in need of a better road band and she needs some radio airplay. But those things will come, and her most difficult task will be convincing those who remain largely devoted to the Madonna of old.

They may not yet realize it, but the times have changed — again.

Plentiful, elegant menu a connoisseur's delight

Bill o' fare

The menu at the Navarone includes two special cocktail offerings — The Executive "for the aggressive man who wants to get down to business" and The Secretary "for the woman who wants to get ahead."

Annoying? Perhaps. But if you're not turned off by the sexist humor, stick around — you'll be in for a delicious meal.

The Navarone, on Higgins Road in Elk Grove Village, offers a large selection of steaks and seafood. The specialties are served with a relish tray, French onion or soup du jour, salad, baked potao and dessert, and range from $7.95 for a ladies cut of prime rib and the Chicken Kiev to $22.95 for the Chateaubriand for two.

Featuring:
The Navarone

ALSO OFFERED are six seafood entrees, from stuffed Colorado rainbow trout almondine, $6.95, to sauteed whole dover sole with almonds, $8.95, Lamb chops aficionados can choose from two choices, broiled or seasoned Grecian style.

My friend and I started our dinner with the lazy Susan relish tray, an interesting combination which included a variety of selections from the standard radishes and celery to marinated herring and a delicious cucumber salad. I also ordered the special Caesar salad, $1, which was worth the extra tab. An Athenian salad is also available for $2.

My entree was the Chicken Kiev, served with wild rice. The meat was extremely tender, and the accompanying cream sauce was delicious.

My friend chose the Steak Diane, $9.95, a sirloin steak over wild rice, covered with the Navarone's own sauce of burgundy wine, shallots, garlic and seasonings.

FOR "JUST plain steak" lovers, the Navarone offers five different cuts of beef, from chopped sirloin topped with Roquefort cheese, $6.50, to The King's Choice, $10.50, a New York Cut, boneless strip steak.

Although we were too full for anything above and beyond the sherbet included with our meal, a baked Alaska for two, $3.95, looked delicious a few tables over. Other special desserts include strawberry shortcake coupe, $1.75, and brandied ice with vanilla ice cream, $2.75.

While the food dominates at the Navarone, the atmosphere is befitting the restaurant's steep prices. A large chandelier provides an elegant touch, and booths lining the walls offer privacy.

The Navarone is open for both lunch and dinner.

Masque and Staff awards high school senior $500

Tom Duncan, a '77 graduate of Elk Grove High School, is this year's Masque and Staff, Inc. scholarship winner.

Each year the Elk Grove community theater group presents a $500 scholarship to a senior who has been involved in drama and speech. Tom received his award at the annual drama banquet from Shirley Johnson, founder of M&S.

He has participated in 21 productions during his four years at Elk Grove High. At the recent banquet he received the best actor award and the Grenny, which is the all-around, best achievement in drama award.

TOM WILL ATTEND the University of Illinois, Urbana, in fall, planning to major in journalism and specialize in dramatic criticism.

Masque & Staff recently made another award, one which goes annually to Elk Grove Library for use in enlarging its drama and speech section. In keeping with rising costs, M&S increased its donation this year from $100 to $150.

The check was presented to Janet Steiner, librarian, by Bob Johnson, president of M&S.

Star comedy writers have a gem

LOS ANGELES — Tom Patchett and Jay Tarses will make a homely married couple the subject of their latest writing effort this fall in the new comedy "We've Got Each Other."

Patchett and Tarses have written for the Carol Burnett and Bob Newhart shows and this season will contribute scripts for "The Tony Randall Show." They are, in the world of television writing, an absolute smash.

For that reason, "We've Got Each Other," to air Saturdays on CBS Channel 2, at 8:30 p.m., will be one of the brightest new comedy offerings this season. The show will offer a real ego boost for the millions of people in America who are not glamorous and seldom represented on television.

"THE PREMISE of the show is that this ordinary-looking couple isn't glamorous on the outside, but has a lot of beauty and love on the inside," said Tarses. "They are surrounded by Farrah Fawcett-Majors types and Lee Majors types who are beautiful on the outside, but unhappy on the inside."

Judy and Stuart Hibbard may be ordinary. But they are not boring. The actors who portray them are refreshing and the eccentric characters who surround them keep the pace of the show hopping.

One of the big advantages the show has going for it is the innocent and realistic approach it takes toward portraying a married, childless couple in their early thirties.

For instance, Judy (played by Beverly Archer) and Stuart (Oliver Clark) are often seen discussing the day's events and problems whlle sitting in bed in their pajamas.

OLIVER CLARK AND BEVERLY ARCHER STAR IN "WE'VE GOT EACH OTHER"

TOO OFTEN IN THE past, the bedroom has been off limits in comedies or has been treated in a very superficial manner. Puritan ethics always dictated the use of twin beds and the couple was filmed standing and talking in their bedroom as opposed to lying around in bed.

But, the Hibbards use their bedroom in the lighthearted manner most married couples do: as a comfortable spot of their own where they discuss their most important concerns and feelings. The half-hour comedy, however, is hardly immersed in deep thought.

In the premiere episode of the show, Stuart, a mail-order gadget salesman, wears a luminous ankle watch to bed and tests a fog-horn that is attached to the couple's alarm clock for instant awakening.

He also has attached a similar device to their toaster which gives a harrowing three-second warning before the toast pops up.

JUDY IS LOST AND clumsy in the kitchen while Stuart enjoys exercising his culinary talents. This is not a pitch for woman's liberation, the writers said, "that is just the way things are in many households."

Stuart works at home while Judy is a photographer in a studio where her boss, Damon Jerome (by Tom Poston) is the kind of guy who spends most of his time bouncing off the walls. The best photographer in the business, Damon can't seem to cope with too much else in life.

There is an antagonistic model working for the studio named Dee Dee (Joan Van Ark) who constantly gives Judy a hard time. There also is a perfectly handsome pair of neighbors, Barbie and Ken, who continue to be a source of anxiety for our ordinary-looking hero and heroine.

"I'm feeling uglier every second of this interview," quipped Clark, who appeared on "The Bob Newhart Show" last season as Mr. Herd, one of Dr. Hartley's patients.

Ms. Archer, originally from Oak Park, Ill., enjoyed her first television exposure last season as the neurotic daughter on the short-lived "Nancy Walker Show."

"THIS ROLE IS MORE difficult and, I think, more interesting because the character is more believable. In Nancy's show, I just came in long enough to do a scene, say a few lines, get a few laughs and leave. I'm dealing with a whole person as Judy and I'm in nearly every scene," Ms. Archer said.

The Hibbards' marriage is not the traditional television type with hearts and flowers. Judy and Stuart spoof the honeymoon image of television lovers during the opening credits by running in slow motion toward each other across a field of flowers.

He's overweight and she's underweight. They've been married four years and, although the sparkle is gone, the shine is still around.

There are details in this show that will spark genuine laughter. Stuart gets into an elevator carrying a large plant. The leaves get stuck in the elevator door and are seen sliding down along the outside as the elevator descends.

Stuart is prodded by Judy to do morning exercises, which he fakes with loud huffing and puffing and hand slapping while she's out of the bedroom.

It looks like this latest product of Grant Tinker's Mary Tyler Moore Enterprises will provide some of the most pleasant, inoffensive comedy this fall — and that will truly be refreshing.

TV NOTE:

ABC has taken another dramatic programming step, opening the fall television season with "Washington: Behind Closed Doors," Sept. 6-11. Two hours of the 12-hour drama will be aired each night. Based on John Ehrlichman's novel, "The Company," it is a powerful story of people and politics with events resembling the Watergate era.

TV HIGHLIGHTS:

• Friday: "Hawaii," the film based on James A. Michener's bestseller about a cultural clash between New England missionaries and the islanders, airs at 7 p.m. on Channel 2; "The Quinns" is a made-for-TV movie about four generations of a New York, Irish family at 7 p.m. on Channel 7, the final episode of "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman" airs at 10 p.m. on Channel 32; Helen Reddy hosts the fourth anniversary "Midnight Special" at midnight on Channel 5, featuring Neil Sedaka, Alice Cooper and members of the Monty Python troupe.

• Saturday: Robert Redford plays "The Great Waldo Pepper," a daredevil, barn-storming pilot of the 1920's at 8 p.m. on Channel 5; "Mutiny on the Bounty," with Marlon Brando brilliantly portraying Fletcher Christian, airs at 10:30 p.m. on Channel 9; "Kup's Show" at 10:30 p.m. on Channel 11 gathers together the country's top sports commissioners, including baseball's Bowie Kuhn and pro football' Pete Rozelle.

• Sunday: "A "National Geographic" special at 6:30 p.m. on Channel 9 chronicles Dr. Louis B. Leakey's 40-year search for the ancestors of man; "Sleuth" at 8 p.m. on Channel 7 is the 1972 film adaptation of Anthony Shaffer's play starring Michael Caine and Laurence Olivier, the only actors in this taut and exciting three-hour performance.

• This weekend's television sports events include The American Derby horse race Saturday at 5 p.m. on Channel 2 and the French Grand Prix auto race Sunday at 3 p.m. on Channel 2. A complete listing of television sports events can be found in Saturday's Herald sports section.

TV looks back at the U.S. Bicentennial celebrations

If you thought you had escaped the tall ships and the Bicentennial brouhaha of our 200th Independence Day last year, check the television listings this weekend.

They'll all be there — the reruns of special series episodes that tied in with the big Fourth of July celebration, highlights of the nonstop coverage of the Bicentennial and even rebroadcasts of patriotic specials.

Saturday;

• "The Bob Newhart Show," 7:30 p.m. on Channel 2. The Hartleys' plans to celebrate the Bicentennial fizzle out when Emily accidentally locks herself and Bob in their basement storage locker.

Sunday:

• "Great Performances," 7 p.m. on Channel 11. A concert of American music with Leonard Bernstein conducting the New York Philaharmonic in George Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue" and "An American in Paris," Aaron Copland's "A Lincoln Portrait" and John Philip Sousa's "Stars and Stripes Forever."

• "Lawrence Welk," 9 p.m. on Channel 9. A musical tribute to America includes "Teach the World to Sing," "The Impossible Dream" and "Love in a Home."

Monday:

• "Lee Phillip," noon on Channel 2. The Sounds of Freedom, a musical group from Brigham Young University, Salt Lake City.

• "1776," 3:3; p.m. on Channel 7. Musical about the drafting and signing of the Declaration of Independence.

• "Our Happiest Birthday," 7p.m. on Channel 2. Recap of highlights from the Bicentennial celebration including the sailing of the Tall Ships up New York's Hudson River, fireworks displays in New York and Washington, Arthur Fiedler conducting the Boston Esplanade Orchestra and reenactments of the Battle of Gettysburg.

• "They Said it With Music," 8 p.m. on Channel 2. A star-studded special shown last year that features newsreels, cartoons and colorful sets and Jason Robards, Bernadette Peters, Tony Randall, Jean Stapleton and Flip Wilson singing and dancing n a Yankee Doodle Dandy sort of way.

• "Be Glad Then America," 8 p.m. on Channel 11. A review of the preparations for the Bicentennial opera of the same name.

• "Legacy: The Year of the Bicentennial," 9 p.m. on channel 11. Bicentennial highlights.

• "Goodbye America," 10:30 p.m. on Channel 11. A dramatization of the May 1776 debate between American sympathizers and the loyal Tories of King George III.

• "Celebrating a Century," midnight on Hcannel 11. A recreation of the 1876 Philadelphia Exposition honoring the nation's Centennial.

JASON ROBARDS and Bernadette Peters are among the many stars who perform in "They Said It With Music: Yankee Doodle to Ragtime," a two-hour musical salute to America Monday at 8 p.m. on Channel 2.

Lawrence E. Lamb

The doctor says

Trichinosis down, but still problem

Nineteen days ago, I ate some undercooked pork at a party. It was ground sausage meat stuffed into mushroom caps and cooked in the oven about 30 minutes. The sausage was dark brown on top and I didn't notice it was pink on the inside until I had eaten some. I am concerned about trichinosis.

Is trichinosis a dangerous disease? In this day and age should I be concerned? If so, what would the symptoms be? Within what time period? What tests can be utilized to determine if one has the disease?

If trichinosis is present, what procedures are available to rid the body of this parasite?

Unfortunately, "in this day and age" trichinosis is still a problem and everyone needs to be concerned about it. About 30 years ago you could find the cysts of trichinosis in the diaphragm of more than 16 per cent of the people who were examined by autopsy. Now the figure is down to about 4 per cent.

The main cause is from eating underdone pork. To protect yourself from trichinosis you need to be sure that the pork has been cooked to a temperature of 60 degrees C (140 degrees F for 30 minutes for each pound of pork — or until all parts of the meat held this temperature for a least 30 minutes). The pork should be well done and never pink — except for the natural pink color of ham. If pork is frozen to minus 15 degrees C (-59 degrees F) for 20 days, that will also kill the cysts that cause the disease.

Proper smoking and pickling of pork products will destroy trichinosis, but you must be careful about home-prepared items or those that have not been inspected. You can also get trichinosis from eating hamburger. The beef may be ground in the same grinder used to grind sausage or sausage may be added to the hamburger. The only way to completely safeguard yourself from this is to grind your own hamburger — which you do from lean cuts to avoid fat as well — or cook your hamburger very well.

THERE IS NO way to inspect or test pigs to be sure they do not have trichinosis and the safe approach is to assume they do. Prevention of trichinosis in pigs — by not feeding them raw garbage among other things — has helped immeasurably to decrease the incidence of trichinosis. New York used to have a lot of it because of garbaged-fed pigs.

The symptoms may begin within two days — nausea, diarrhea, abdominal pain — similar to food poisoning. Invasion of the muscles begins in about a week and may take six weeks. Fever, swelling of the eyes and muscle pain is common. Inflammation of the heart muscle may also occur. The diagnosis is made by blood tests and particularly the use of muscle biopsy techniques. The muscle is examined under a microscope to find the trichinosis.

Yes, it is a dangerous disease. About 5 per cent of those who have it die in spite of treatment. If the nervous system is involved, the death rate is about twice that high. If a person has trichinosis, there are good medicines that your doctor can use, but there is little you can do for yourself. Your best bet is prevention.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Richard Archer

Della Ann Magno— W. Richard Archer

Burlington, Iowa, where the groom is employed by an accounting firm and the bride is special education teacher in nearby Freeport, Ill., is the new home for Mr. and Mrs. W. Richard Archer.

The new Mrs. Archer is the former Della Ann Magno, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Magno, Schaumburg. A 1970 graduate of Conant High, Della was graduated in 1974 from Western Illinois University. Her bridegroom, son of Mrs. Goldene White, Rockton, Ill., is also a '74 graduate of Western Illinois.

The couple married June 4 in St. Marcelline Church, Schaumburg. Della chose a rainbow color scheme for the 1:30 double ring service. Her sister, Debbie Kross of Schaumburg, matron of honor, was in orange, the maids in mint green, pink, lilac and blue. Their gowns were topped with floral print capes.

MAIDS WERE THE bride's sister, Donna, and a cousin from DeKalb, Diane Magno, along with Sandra Walsh, Carpentersville, and Nancy Parker, Mount Prospect.

Della chose a candlelight organza gown with chantilly lace bodice. A chantilly headpiece held her lace-edged fingertip veil, and she carried a nosegay of rainbow daisies, peach roses and miniature yellow carnations with ivory baby's breath. Her maids each carried a long-stemmed white rose with baby's breath and ribbons to match their gowns. The matron of honor carried three long-stemmed roses matching her gown.

Stephanie Laird, 5, was flower girl wearing a yellow gown made by the bride. Her floral cape matched the matron of honor's. Stephanie's father, Stephen, Burlington, was best man, and groomsmen were Ron Davies, Maywood Park, Jim Dhom, South Beloit, Dick Hill, Rockton, and Joe Magno, the bride's brother.

Ushers were the bride's brother-in-law, Robert Kross, and the groom's brothers, Steven and Stuart White.

A dinner reception for 150 guests was held at Mr. Duke's in Wood Dale after which the newlyweds honeymooned a week in Colorado.

Weddings

A graduate of Prospect High and the Air Force Academy, the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. Connery, Arlington Heights. The bride, a '77 graduate of Colorado University, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Loren E. Larson, Denver, Colo. After a two-week honeymoon in California the newlyweds will be residing in Ogden, Utah, where the groom is stationed at Hill Air Force Base.

THERESA DeROSE, Denver, was maid of honor for the military wedding, and bridesmaids were Shelley Springer, Denver, and Sara Hurlock, Fort Morgan, Colo., both Alpha Omicron Pi sorority sisters of the bride, and Robin Hauck, Colorado Springs. All wore aqua mint knit gowns with white, chiffon handkerchief capes bordered in aqua mint. They carried aqua-tipped white carnations, daisies and baby's breath.

Victoria chose a gown of candlelight satin and lace highlighted with pearls. A repeat of the lace motifs trimmed the skirt and her chapel train. A full-length mantilla of tulle and imported lace, and a bouquet of white roses, stephanotis and lily of the valley completed her bridal ensemble.

Best man was Lt. Charles Hale, Rapidan, Va., and ushers were the groom's brother, Thomas, the bride's brother, Loren, and Steve McGuire, Mount Prospect.

The reception was held in the academy's officers' club.

Nancy Neuendank— James T. Rife

Nancy Ann Neuendank and her bridegroom, James Talcott Rife, newlyweds of May 28, have returned from a honeymoon in the Virgin Islands and are both back at work at Mass Feeding Corp. in Elk Grove Village.

Daughter of former Des Plaines area residents Mr. and Mrs. William H. Neuendank, now of Bourbonnais, Ill., Nancy and Jim, son of Mrs. Gladys Rife, Mount Vernon, Iowa, were married in good Shepherd Lutheran Church, Des Plaines. The 4:30 p.m. double ring service was followed by a reception for 150 guests in the Camelot Restaurant, Des Plaines.

NANCY CHOSE Elaine Kelly of British Columbia, Canada, as her maid of honor, and her cousins, Karen Papierski, Niles, and Wendy Albrecht, Libertyville, as bridesmaids. Jan Hoffman, Niles, was also a bridesmaid. Flower girl was Nancy's 3-year-old niece and godchild, Laura Neuendank, Bourbonnais, and ring bearer was a 5-year-old nephew of the groom, Aaron Thompson, Mount Vernon.

Best man was Donald Piercy, Des Plaines, and ushers were Larry Collins, Chicago; Ted Williams, Larue, Ohio; Tom Sprengelmeyer, Skokie; Greg Stevens, Palos Heights; and Kurt Reder, Des Plaines.

A '74 graduate of Elk Grove High, Nancy and Jim, who studied at Upper Iowa College, are residing in an Elk Grove apartment.

Riverview Homemakers will gather for picnic

Riverview Homemakers will hold a backyard picnic and meeting Friday, July 8, beginning at 11 a.m., at the home of Mrs. Jo Andre, of Des Plaines. Each member is to bring a sandwich and a folding chair.

In case of rain, the picnic will be held at Mrs. Francis Lamaritata's home in Norridge. Information, 299-4265.

Hostesses for the day will be Mrs. Jo Andre, Mrs. Francis Lamaritata, Mrs. Virginia Pukovnik and Mrs. Trudy Suderow. Games are planned for the afternoon.

Mulches apply beauty, practicality

by JIM NAWOJ
of Klehm Nursery

Guest gardener

Mulches help prevent weed growth by blocking out light, guard against moisture evaporation from the soil and add a beauty of their own to the complete landscape design.

Before mulches are applied, the use of a preemergent herbicide is recommended to prevent the germination of weed seeds. One of the most effective materials is Preen (Treflan). It is best applied early in the spring when weed growth has not started. If landscaping is completed after weeds have germinated, carefully remove existing weeds before applying Preen. Remove all roots since only growth from seed is prevented.

Another weed-control method involves the use of a black plastic film laid directly on the soil surface. Make sure a black color plastic is used since light must be blocked out to prevent weed growth. Clear plastic creates a greenhouse effect and weeds will abound.

Plastic materials are not recommended within the drip zone of desirable plants because they keep out the air and moisture vital to the root systems of plants. They also cause shallow-surface rooting which may result in the rapid drying of tender plant roots. Keep black plastic away from plant drip zones if used in planted areas. In subsequent years, punch holes in the plastic as the drip zone enlarges with plant's growth.

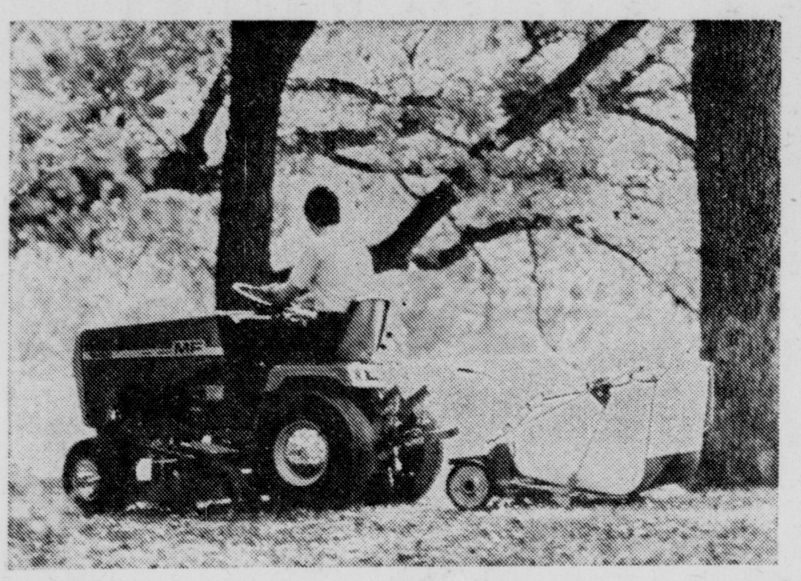
Border edging keeps mulch in its place — out of lawn or walkway and prevents lawn grasses from creeping underground into the planted beds. One of the finest materials for eding is Pla-Bbrder. It is a vinyl strip that will not chip, rust or rot. It has a built-in frost lip at its base which keeps the border from rising during alternate freezing and thawing cycles. Besides being functional as a border, it also makes a beautiful accent line between the lawn and the mulched area.

Once border material and weed retardants are employed, mulching materials can be applied. There are two basic types of mulches — organic and stone. Organic mulches are made from natural materials that help condition the soil. When they break down, humus is added to the soil. These mulches are very natural and rustic looking for those who prefer a more naturalistic landscape accent.

Organic mulches include redwood bark chunks available in different sizes, pecan shells, cocoa bean hulls and peat moss. One of the most effective and beautiful organic mulches is Paygro, made from shredded hardwood. The thin strips of bark actually mesh together to prevent being blown away by the wind. Since organic mulches do decompose after a period of time, it is usually common practice to add a thin layer to the top of the beds every year to counteract the effects of weathering on the appearance of the mulch.

Stone mulches are permanent after application and require no maintenance. They come in all colors from pinks to reds to greens to a burnt-orange called "coral crush." Two of the more popular stone mulches are Wyoming White marble and Flowerock granules. Wyoming White comes from marble quarries in western United States. A pure white stone, it is harder in texture than white marble from other areas of the country and will keep its color longer without being soiled. When applying heavyweight stone like Wyoming White, allow for about 50 pounds per five square feet at one-inch deep.

Flowerock granules are a lightweight stone made from volcanic lava. Available in red or black and retaining a rustic appearance, it is one of the most popular stone mulches. Its light weight makes a little go a long way. Fifty-five pounds of flowerock will cover 12 square feet, two inches deep.



PULL-TYPE tools or implements can be used even when a mid-mounted or front-mounted tool also is attached to the tractor. This Massey-Ferguson tractor-mower was designed to pull other attachments. It adjusts to raise the mower so contact with the ground is avoided when pulling the sweeper.

Gardening grows easier with new aids

by ALLAN and SHEILA SWENSON

Gardening is growing easier every year. New aids are being developed that help us all plant seeds, grow strong, sturdy seedlings and extend our growing season.

Every year, we shop around to learn about the new products. Then we test these items to make sure they perform as well as claimed. That way, we can provide accurate appraisals of these aids and notes on their performance.

HERE ARE SOME helpful aids for starting seeds. The Early Start kit contains a 12 by 18 inch plastic drainage tray with two smaller seed sowing trays to nest in it. You get two large bags of planting mix, 30 round peat pots, stakes to label the varieties and a heating cable.

Bottom heat beneath trays of pots is helpful. It warms soil, encourages more rapid and uniform germination too. This technique is especially useful with hard-to-grow, tiny seeds. Once seedlings sprout, grow several inches, you can transfer them to individual larger peat pots, or into the garden if the weather is right.

ANOTHER TYPE was developed for professional nurseries. It is the Deep Root package. The five inch by eight inch long plastic packs are filled with planting formula. Each compartment is two and three quarter inches deep to let roots develop well.

Once plants get a firm root system, you simply pop out the seedling with root ball intact and plant it in your garden. The units are reusable.

Punch 'N' Grow kits and Seed 'N' Start kits also help get seeds sprouted well. The first type has seeds prepositioned and properly spaced. Just water, reverse the clear plastic top until seed germinates and then remove it.

WHEN PLANTS have several sets of true leaves, or are as tall as the directions advise, they can be transplanted into larger containers or set outside in the soil.

The other type has a fortified growing medium with a plastic top, too. This converts to a watering tray when seedlings are sprouted.

Many firms and stores offer seed tapes. This is especially useful for proper spacing of tiny seeds. The seeds are contained in water soluble tape. When watered in garden soil, the tape dissolves, letting seeds sprout. Be sure you plant exactly at the proper depth, so seeds can pop up and grow properly.

Try some of these aids this year. They are handy new growing experiences.

Prime roses with fertilizer

To keep roses in prime condition it is necessary to fertilize at regular intervals, especially after heavy-bloom periods, suggested James A. Fizzell, University of Illinois horticulturist in Cook County.

The warm spring has caused many roses to develop rapidly and early fertilizer applications already may be depleted. Flower production on most plants has been better than average.

INORDER TO KEEP the plants in prime condition all summer, it may be necessary to fertilize now.

A wide choice of fertilizers are available for summer use, said Fizzell. Many special-analysis fertilizers are available for roses. These usually contain fertilizer nutrient elements that work immediately, as well as slow-release materials that will supply nutrients for several weeks after application.

Many gardeners like to use soluble materials that are applied in water. This method of fertilization is especially helpful in maintaining even growth throughout the summer. It is also helpful in applying special fertilizers to correct specific deficiencies.

ORGANIC MATERIALS such as soybean meal, cottonseed meal, dried blood, processed sludge or fish meal can be used effectively. Amounts to use of these materials will vary. Usually large amounts of organic materials are needed to supply a sufficient amount of fertilizer nutrient elements. Regular use of organic materials is necessary to maintain maximum growth throughout the summer.

Fizzell offered some hints about fertilizing roses. Keep fertilizer materials off the flowers and foliage.

Fertilize after heavy rains. Fertilizer nutrient elements are often washed out of the soil with run-off water. Fertilizer applied to dry soils may injure root systems.

Use water with dry fertilizers to put the fertilizer nutrient elements in solution and make them available to the plant.

Follow the directions on the package. It is better to use small amounts more often than large amounts a few times during the growing season. Over-fertilization can cause root burning.

Stop fertilizing after mid-summer so the plants will harden off prior to the onset of winter.

CHARISMA was selected as a 1978 All-America winner. A floribunda of intense scarlet and yellow coloration and excellent, compact growth habit, the bloom petals are tough and weather resistant, allowing the variety to preserve an attractive appearance during rainy weather.

WE'LL BEAT ANY LEGITIMATE QUOTE ON ANY COMPARABLE POOL . . . BUT NOBODY CAN BEAT PARAGON'S SERVICE AND REPUTATION.

Unlike the competition, Paragon ads never show the prices of our pools AND THERE'S GOOD REASON! Many pool dealers tend to be a little "less than honest" with their special price promotions. Usually, the package isn't as complete as the buyer expects . . . or the advertised special is "out of stock, but for a few dollars more . . ."

Well, we're too reputable to resort to that.

Paragon does promise this: Bring Us Any Legitimate Competitive Quotation On Any Comparable Pool We Sell, AND WE'LL BEAT THE PRICE! Yes, we can "beat it," but nobody can beat Paragon for service and reputation—we're the professional pool people. Before you buy a pool, let us say, "Beat It!"

The Accepted Influence in the Northwest Suburbs

LITTLE FREDDIE Garcia has become the star pupil in kiddie swim classes run by Greta Andersen, Olympic champion swimmer who won a gold medal in the 1948 Olympics. Freddie's mother, Mrs. Frederick Garcia, throws her son into the water so he can practice his backstroke.

THE IDEA OF being trophy trained doesn't please Freddie, however. He is sitting in the cup his instructor, Ms. Andersen, won for swimming the English Channel in 1954.

At 8 mos. old Freddie gets in the swim

by JACK V. FOX

LOS ALAMITOS, Calif. (UPI) — They cheered when baby Frederick Garcia III fell in a swimming pool. When he got out, his father held him head high and hurled him back in.

Freddie wasn't a battered child.

He was in the process of becoming the youngest person ever to pass a Red Cross beginner's level swimming exam.

FREDDIE IS only eight months old. Crying all the way, except when he was blowing bubbles, little Freddie proved this week that he can float, paddle about and general stave off drowning for a while, even if he can't walk or talk yet.

The infant displayed his aquatic skills at the swimming school of Greta Andersen, the Olympic champion who won a Gold Medal way back in 1948 and went on to claim dozens of distance records, including English Channel crossings both ways.

Miss Andersen said the red-haired infant is the youngest ever to pass the water safety beginner's test and the most promising among the several hundred children at her school.

ON A WALL is posted the admonition:

"All children three years and under MUST wear diapers and tight rubber pants to enter the pool."

Freddie's parents, Dr. Frederick Garcia Jr. and his wife, watched proudly from the sidelines along with reporters, photographers and television crews as Miss Andersen put her star pupil through his routine.

First Freddie floated on his stomach and blew bubbles in the water. Then he turned over on his back and floated, crying lustiiy. Miss Andersen put him on the side of the pool in a sitting position and he fell in on his face in what passed for a dive.

SHE DUNKED HIM a couple of times and he struggled to the surface and turned over on his back, which turned out to be his best feat. In that position he paddled about 15 feet.

As the piece de resistance, Dr. Garcia lifted the child up above his head and threw him into the pool from the side. Freddie surfaced, crying, and turned on his back.

Miss Andersen proclaimed that he had passed with flying colors and draped her Olympic Gold Medal around his neck.

A SPECTATOR wondered aloud what Greta would have done if Freddie flunked the test.

A school assistant, who shall remain nameless, said: "She probably would have drowned him."

"It's been the best thing in the world for him," beamed his mother. "It's good discipline and he's established a trustful relationship with another person."

Miss Andersen is unfazed by her pupils' bawling when they hit the water.

"Better they cry now than have the parents crying later," over a drowned child, she observed.

PRACTICING HIS backstroke, Freddie puts all his effort and concentration in staying afloat. The 8-month-old boy seems to have no great fear of water.

Love of flying lures Navy reservists

GRAND PRAIRIE, Tex. (UPI) — Lt. Cmdr. Harold Mize hit the runway at 150 miles an hour with a screech, a puff of smoke and a jolt that one wouldn't feel flying the friendly skies of commercial aviation.

One deep breath later he added power and roared back into the north Texas haze.

"That wasn't a very good one . . . about a No. 2 wire," he said, accelerating over the shallow, chocolate colored lake at the end of the pavement.

Mize was spending his time off from his job as a pilot for Braniff International Airlines practicing carrier landings at the land-locked Dallas Naval Air Station at least 1,000 miles from the nearest flattop.

HE IS A pilot in VF202, one of only four Naval Reserve fighter squadrons in the United States. One other, VF 201, also is in Dallas. The other two are in California, near San Diego.

Of the 17 pilots in the squadron, Mize is the only one who hasn't completed a tour in the Navy and at least one cruise with the fleet.

He did his five years of active duty at Lubbock, Tex., teaching would-be Air Force pilots how to fly.

The lack of sea duty puts Mize at a mild disadvantage, but not enough to kill his enthusiasm.

"That one was better," he said, throwing his F4N Phantom into a steep climb after another intentionally hard touch-and-go. "That was a No. 3 wire."

At midsummer, Mize will get a chance to practice landings on a real carrier — the USS Saratoga which will be cruising somewhere off the East Coast. It will be part of the four weeks annual training required of Mize and other pilots in the squadron.

ALL TOLD, flying on their days off and during the annual active duty period, the men of Squadron 202 each will log about 140 hours in the cockpit of the F-4, almost as much as the average fleet pilot.

Frequently called "weekend warriors," the reservists all are veteran pilots who fly for the sheer love of flying despite the chance they may be yanked away from their families, their homes and their jobs in case of a national emergency.

Their job is to provide a combat-ready backup force if the country is involved in a war. Or, as the Navy puts it, "to conduct flight and ground training operations to achieve and maintain maximum mobilization readiness."

"That means if the whistle is ever blown they have to jump out of their suits and into their uniforms," said Lt. Cmdr. Bob Eichorn, who is winding up a tour with Squadron 202 before transfering to the command staff college in Norfolk, Va.

Eichorn, a regular Navy pilot, said the Dallas-based reserve squadron always does well when thrown into competition with the active duty pilots in spite of the handicaps — mainly, not being able to fly the F4 as it was designed to be flown.

THE TWIN-ENGINE Phantom is capable of propelling its two-man crew at more than twice the speed of sound and to heights of 50,000 feet. The drawback is they also make a lot of noise, especially when they are used in maneuvers such as simulated carrier landings.

Whenever the pilots are practicing landings, Squadron 202 can count on a flood of complaints from homeowners near the base, Eichorn said.

Before swinging into the landing pattern, Mize took his F4 on a 400-mile, low level navigation run across northeast Texas.

Skimming along at what looked uncomfortably close to the tops of the east Texas pines, Mize said he was practicing a maneuver designed to help him get under enemy radar. However, regulations prohibited him from going below 500 feet.

"This wouldn't be nearly low enough in a combat situation," he said, his voice booming over the intercom. "What I'd need is to get down to real treetop level. I'd get down as low as I dared. That would make it harder for them to see me and harder for them to get to me."

At more than 400 miles per hour, the pines were a green blur.

HE BANKED SHARPLY left to dodge a flock of buzzards looking for a meal. "You have to watch them; they can tear out an engine," he said.

"It's kind of hard to see what's ahead from the back seat. This is what we do "It's time to change course," he said, righting the aircraft and breaking sharply to the northeast. Centrifugal force pushed downward. "That wasn't bad," he said. "Only about 2½ G's. We normally pull a lot more than that on maneuvers. It could be much more in combat."

Mize, like many of the pilots in Squadron 202, is not a fan of the Phantom, which replaced the squadron's single-seat F8 Crusaders one year ago.

The F4 officially is described a fighter-bomber but some of the pilots said it can't compete with the latest Soviet-built MiGs as a fighter and it doesn't have the characteristics to make a first-rate bomber, either.

One thing the pilots of Squadron 202 don't mention when they talk about the F4 is that it is a two-man aircraft. The second man is not a pilot.

LISTED BY THE Navy as a Radar Intercept Officer (RIO, pronounced ree-oh) and unofficially as the Guy In Back some say they are discriminated against by the pilots, but not nearly as much in the reserves as in the fleet and not nearly as much by the younger pilots as by the older ones.

"I think your old-time reserves used to be a flying club, but that's not true anymore," said Lt. Steve Brainerd, an active duty RIO assigned to Squadron 202.

By training and personality, the RIOs are a different breed from the pilots.

"The pilot has a very aggressive personality; he's competing all the time. It's something we accept," said Brainerd, a soft-spoken 30-year-old chemistry graduate who flew 200 missions over North Vietnam in the back seat of a Phantom.

The squadron skipper, Cmdr. Max Gore, denied there was any discrimination.

"I've never had one come to me and say he was being disciminated against. If there is (any discrimination), it's in their mind. When I go on liberty, it doesn't matter whether they're pilots or RIOs. If I'm in a bar, it doesn't matter who's sitting next to me. I have three of them in important jobs so they can't be talking about discrimination jobwise."

OF THE 30 PILOTS and RIOs in the squadron, two dozen flew in combat in Vietnam. All the pilots still are in professional aviation, flying as crew members with commercial airlines.

The RIOs, in contrast, practice a variety of occupations.

Lt. Bart Flaherty, a RIO, has a master's degree and is getting out of the reserves in a couple of months to become a foreign service officer. He lives in Washington and commutes to Dallas to fly in the back seat.

"I just about break even by the time I pay my air fare," he said.

Glenn Theriot commutes from his law practice in a small town across Lake Pontchartrain from New Orleans. "It beats sitting in Hammond (La.) every day," he said.

But they are generally bound by the common love for flying.

"I LIKE TO FLY," Brainerd said. "There's a thrill to it. I like that a hell of a lot better than selling drugs.

"Everyone who joins (the squadron) likes to fly," Eichorn said. "Maybe in the fleet a pilot has found out he doesn't but he can't do anything about it."

In addition to the two two-week active duty periods, each reserve pilot must attend 48 regular drills and 72 additional drills.

"Actually, it's about 20 weeks' work per year," Eichorn said, including the active duty.

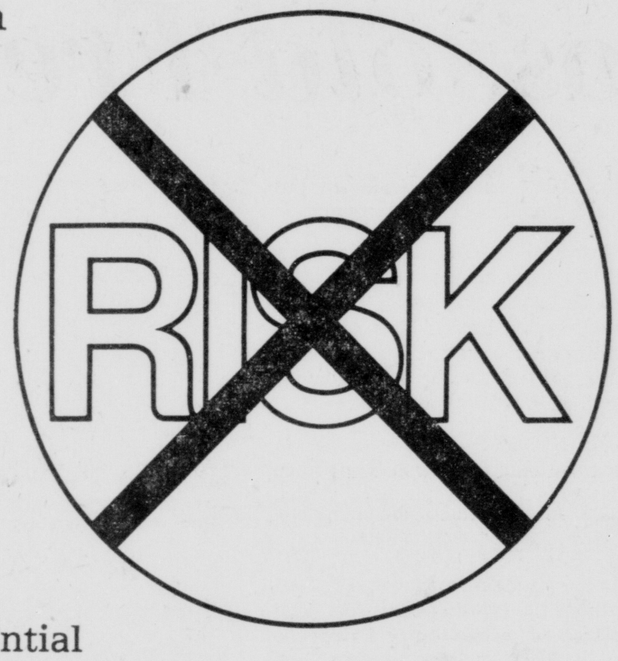
In return, the pilots and RIOs are paid about $7,000 a year.

"I would think they do it more for the flying than the money," Eichorn said.

TALMAN REPEALS A BASIC LAW OF ECONOMICS

It is a basic law of economics that return is a function of risk. The greater the risk, the greater the return.

But Talman's Certificates of Deposit repeal this law. Because in today's money marketplace they are one of the safest investments you can make, and still earn one of the best returns available.



For the person who has accrued funds from whatever source—the sale of a home or business, or just the accumulation of savings in a regular savings account—Talman's Certificates of Deposit offer an outstanding investment opportunity.

These Certificates of Deposit are among the highest yielding investments being offered today with returns from 6½% to 7¾%, dependent on maturity.* And they are among the most secure—insured up to $40,000 by an agency of the federal government and backed by Talman's substantial cash reserves and more than half a century of sound management.

For people who don't want the uncertainty of the stock market or other speculative forms of investment, but who want a good return combined with peace of mind and safety of their funds, Talman's Certificates of Deposit are unbeatable.

They are truly a fine investment, and we are proud to offer them.

Cars to have safety restraints by 1981

by EDWARD K. DeLONG

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Transportation Sec. Brock Adams ordered auto makers Thursday to put airbags or automatic seat belts on new luxury and full-size cars in late 1981 and on all models by the fall of 1983.

"We are determined that the car of the future shall be a socially responsible vehicle which combines the best our technology can offer in both safety and economy," Adams said in announcing his order.

He estimated the mandatory safety systems will save 9,000 lives or more a year by the mid-1980s, at an added consumer cost per vehicle of $25 to $100 for the new seat belt system or $100 to $300 for airbags.

THE AUTO INDUSTRY and consumer advocate Ralph Nader attacked the ruling.

Detroit called it a high-cost, second-best approach compared to laws requiring the use of existing seat belts.

Nader said Adams yielded to political pressure by imposing the new restraints starting in 1981 rather than 1980, and by applying the new requirements last to small, fuel-efficient cars.

The insurance industry said the new ruling will save lives, reduce injuries and hold down the rising cost of auto accidents.

Rep. Bud Shuster, R-Pa., chairman of the National Transportation Policy Study Commission, introduced a House resolution urging Congress to overturn Adams' order. Nader, however, predicted both the House and Senate would support the new requirements.

ADAMS' ORDER, which will go into effect unless Congress rejects it within 60 days, established a three-step schedule to phase in automatic devices able to save the lives of front-seat passengers at crash speeds of up to 30 miles per hour.

It called for either airbags or automatic seat belts to be standard equipment on new vehicles by:

• Sept. 1, 1981, for cars with wheelbases greater than 114 inches. An estimated 2.5 million 1982-model cars will fall into that category.

• Sept. 1, 1982, for cars with wheelbases greater than 100 inches. An estimated 5 million 1983-model intermediate and compact cars will fall into that group.

• Sept. 1, 1983, for all passenger cars, including 2.5 million 1984-model subcompacts and mini-size cars.

Adams said the ruling applies to foreign cars sold in the United States as well as to domestic models.

He said new small cars were given the longest to comply because it will be harder to fit them with the new systems. All cars would retain standard seat belts.

Adams said he has asked General Motors, Ford, Volkswagen, Toyota and Mercedes Benz to continue a voluntary program that would put some 500,000 vehicles with air bags or automatic seat belts on the road before 1981.

Except for Chrysler Corp., industry comments were devoid of the past criticism of the government's use of statistics telling how many lives could be saved by the passive restraint devices. They would require no action on the part of the driver or passengers to operate.

U. S. automakers apparently are saving their strongest efforts for Congress, which can overrule any decision on passive restraints within 60 days. It reserved that right in 1974 when it killed the buckle-up-before-you-drive ignition interlock system.

Volkswagen is the only automaker with automatic safety belt experience. It has installed the safety belts in 65,000 cars since 1975 and several industry sources said U. S. automakers would start crash programs to develop the low-cost systems for their cars.

Unlike airbags, which the government and auto industry agree will cost more than $100 to install and even more to repair, the VW safety belt that automatically stretches cross the drive and front-seat passenger when the front door is closed was never more than a $35 option.

Business briefs

Saudis, Emirates boost oil price 5%

Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates, who provide one-third of U. S. oil imports, will raise the price of their oil 5 per cent today, the Kuwait newspaper Al Hnba reported Thursday. The increase would bring an end to the price war among the 13 members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries with at least 11 of the members charging the same price for crude oil. The Kuwaiti report followed a public declaration Wednesday by nine of the other 11 OPEC members canceling a previous decision to implement a 5 per cent price hike of their own today. If the Saudis and Emirates now raised their current prices by 5 per cent, most of the OPEC nations would charge the same price for its oil at a rate 10 per cent above the 1976 prices.

Copper workers vote to strike

Unions representing 45,000 workers in the nation's copper industry Thursday voted to strike all of the major producers at midnight when current contracts expire. Representatives of the United Steelworkers and 25 other industry unions making up the National Nonferrous Industry Conference voted at an afternoon meeting to go on strike.

A spokesman said pickets would be set up at seven of the eight major copper producers in Arizona at midnight MST. The other producer, Magma Copper Co., will be struck when its contract expires at midnight Friday.

The unions held out for a 94-cent hike over a three-year contract, similar to recent settlements in the steel and aluminum industries. Copper workers average about $7.10 an hour under the expiring contracts.

Robert Hall closes nationwide

Robert Hall clothing stores were closed Thursday in the first day of an indefinite shutdown while company officials worked out plans to sell or liquidate the 364 outlets across the country. Some 5,000 Robert Hall employes were put out of work by the announcement Wednesday of the store closings. Managers remained on duty at stores Thursday to admit customers with receipts for clothes being altered or on lay-away. United Merchant and Manufacturers Inc., parent company of Robert Hall, said the closings were made to conduct a complete inventory of store stocks in line with its decision earlier this month to "phase out" the Robert Hall chain. Pilferage had become a growing problem at the Robert Hall outlets and was a major cause of the shutdown, according to trade sources quoted by Women's Wear Daily. The trade publication said the shutdown was aimed at halting the theft.

United Merchants officials have said repeatedly they wish to dispose of the Robert Hall stores as "going businesses," hoping to sell the outlets individually or in clusters. Three international unions representing Robert Hall workers protested the closings as a lockout and said they would file charges of labor law violations against United Merchants. A Robert Hall Village store is located at 2300 Higgins Road, Hoffman Estates.

No talks in burial vault strike

No new talks are scheduled between the striking Chicago area burial vault production workers and manufacturers, federal mediator Sam Mazza said Thursday. Delayed burials, caused by the shortage of burial vaults, are reported by area funeral homes. The strike by Teamsters Local 786 workers began June 8 against four major vault manufacturers in the Assn. of Burial Vault Manufacturers. The Forest Park-based American Wilbert Vault Corp., among the manufacturers affected by the work stoppage, has a plant at 165 River Rd., Des Plaines.

SEC urges competency standards

The Securities and Exchange Commission Thursday recommended competency standards for bank personnel who deal in securities matters similar to broker dealers. Although falling short of questioning the ability of bank officials who execute customer orders in securities markets, the SEC said they should be required to meet a minimum standard.

National Observer stops publication on Saturday

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dow Jones & Co. Thursday announced it was discontinuing publication of the National Observer, a weekly newspaper which has incurred heavy losses since its inception in 1965.

Warren H. Phillips, president and chief executive officer of Dow Jones, said the Observer will cease publication with the issue going to press Saturday.

"The long effort to make the Observer self-supporting has not succeeded and its future prospects do not give sufficient encouragement to continue the battle," Phillips said in a statement to the staff.

"The paper's deficit was reduced year after year from nearly $2 million in 1965 to $300,000 in 1974," he said. Since then, he said, losses "began to inch up again," despite a 70 per cent subscription renewal rate and a 25 per cent increase in advertising linage.

"Yet the outlook for the Observer's economic success is not at all promising," Phillips said.

The paper said it expects to lose $632,000 this year. The cumulative loss from late 1961 was $16.2 million, after taxes.

Circulation for the week ending June 25 was 401,933, compared with 429,652 a year ago.

The Observer has a staff of more than 80, including Edwin Roberts, winner of the pulitzer for a commentary.

Exactly what is that national debt?

Jane Bryant Quinn

Staying ahead

NEW YORK — Many Americans fear that the steadily rising national debt will someday, somehow, bankrupt us all. I hear this from you in letters and worried questions after speeches and seminars.

Almost $37.1 billion of your tax dollars last year went for interest on the national debt. That's $170 for every man, woman and child in the United States. Interest due on the debt has risen almost every year in modern times. As of last week, the size of the debt was a staggering $670 billion.

How will we ever pay off this money? Should we expect to? And what happens if we don't?

I PUT THESE questions to George Benston, professor of economics at the Graduate School of Management, University of Rochester.

"Looking at the debt alone," Benston says, "there's no danger in the fact that it goes up every year. As a nation we grow wealthier every year. Real economic growth, after inflation, is up 27 per cent in the past 10 years alone. All that increased wealth generates tax dollars to pay the interest on the growing debt."

The debt itself is not merely a ledger entry. It materializes in the form of Treasury and federal-agency bills, notes and bonds. When investors buy Treasury bills, they are taking a piece of the national debt. The interest they get from the government is recirculated into the economy, so nothing is lost.

"There's no reason for a nation ever to get out of debt," Benston says. He compares the country to a corporation that always has bonds outstanding. Bonds represent money owed. Some people cash in their bonds and others buy new ones. But as long as the corporation's value and earnings increase, so can its overall level of indebtedness.

"AS WE GROW richer, we are able to support a larger and larger debt," Benston says. From time to time the growth in America's wealth slows or declines briefly. But the long-term trend is always up.

Furthermore, if all this debt were eliminated, it would increase the gap between the rich and the poor in this country. Tax money would be taken from all the people and used to pay off the holders of Treasury bills and bonds.

The real problem, says Benston, is not the growing size of the debt itself but whether the borrowed money is being used productively. Productive use is for expenditures that might increase the nation's wealth, like dams, river clean-up projects, and urban development. This raises economic values, which raises tax receipts to help cover the debt. In effect, this kind of debt can eventually pay for itself.

On the other hand, it's dangerous to go into debt for current expenses, like higher farm price supports or welfare payments. These don't create future wealth. If we want these things from the government, we should tax ourselves currently to pay for them, Benston says.

Unfortunately, a lot of people (not just the poor) want favors from the government but don't want their taxes to go up. jSo the government borrows the money. If real wealth isn't there in the future to pay the interest, the government sponsors a little inflation. This creates the dollars needed for interest payments (although the dollars have less value).

In short, the national debt can go up and up without leading to a bust. But it can encourage inflation and, to the extent that government spending is less efficient than private spending, slower growth.

Farm price dip boosts Dow Jones

by FRANK W. SLUSSER

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks rose Thursday for the first time in four sessions in reaction to a 5 per cent drop in farm prices that indicated inflation may be easing.

But investors were disturbed by a Commerce Dept. report that factory orders were unchanged in May. The report gave further impetus to claims the economy might be slowing down.

President Carter's surprise decision to scrap the B1 bomber program entirely triggered a sharp loss in Rockwell International stock but caused little over-all damage to the market.

AGAINST THIS background, the Dow Jones Industrial Average, a 2.29-point loser Wednesday, gained 2.97 points to 916.30. In the three previous sessions the closely watched average had lost 16.37 points.

Despite Thursday's advance, the Dow gave up 88.35 points in the first half of the year. It slipped 2.83 points in the second quarter ended Thursday.

The New York Stock Exchange common stock index gained .20 to 55.10 and the average price of a common share increased by 12 cents. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index, containing some over-the-counter issues gained .37 to 100.48.

Advances topped declines, 845 to 547, among the 1,895 issues crossing the composite tape.

Big Board volume totaled 19,410,000 shares, up only slightly from the 19,000,000 traded Wednesday, the slowest session in more than three weeks.

Insurance costly, hard to obtain

by THAYER SIBLEY

A product liability insurance crisis is threatening the small business industry. Insurance for manufacturers has become expensive when it can be obtained, and in many instances where it can no longer be obtained, manufacturers are going without.

"We've had members go from paying about $3,000 to about $60,000 (for premiums) within the last year," says an attorney for a truck manufacturers' association based in Cincinnati, Ohio. "In many instances this increase absorbed the entire profit of the company for the previous year."

This lawyer cites changes in the law concerning product liability, with responsibility presently being shifted more and more to the manufacturer in case of accident, as being one reason for the mounting insurance rates.

NO LONGER ABLE to resort to the traditional defenses which place liability on those who are at fault, the manufacturer often finds himself in effect insuring all those using the product, including the consumer, regardless of the negligence of others involved.

So, insurance companies over the last 18 months, beginning to feel the impact of increased liabilities, have handled the burden by dramatically increasing their premiums or refusing to insure.

Manufacturers of trucks, machine tools, household equipment, safety equipment, pharmaceuticals, new medical devices, and chemical products are among those hardest hit.

(One Department of Commerce survey of manufacturers just released found the average cost of product liability insurance doubling between 1971 and 1975 and the number of claims rising six times from 3.5 to 18.9 per firm on average.)

THE EFFECT ON the consumer is that the manufacturer has diminished profits to reinvest in new products or in safety equipment, and in some cases is discontinuing certain products. Also, innovation in development is being inhibited it is charged.

The Product Liability Act of 1977, introduced to Congress on April 18 by Ronald A. Sarasin (R) of Connecticut, is intended to better balance the system of liability. The basic intent of the bill is to bring all of the parties together who have contributed to the damage and to assess damages against each one in accordance with the degree to which they were at fault.

The Sarasin bill is geared to set up a single national standard of law to promite unified justice in an area where confusion has set in because of conflicting state standards. It reflects the concern expressed in such publications as a 1977 survey report on product liability by the National Federation of Independent Business, and the booklet entitled "Product Liability — Proposed Amendments to State Statutes" drawn up by the National Association of Wholesaler Distributors.

Art merger eyes petrodollars

NEW YORK (UPI) — New York's oldest art gallery and Europe's major publicly owned art holding company are planning to merge to form a $40 million international art vending firm primarily aimed at the petrodollar market,

Armand Hammer, chairman of Occidental Petroleum Company of Los Angeles, said the "50-50" deal would transform the 131-year-old M. Knoedler & Co. of New York and Modarco of Geneva, Switzerland, into Knoedler-Modarco if a favorable tax arrangement can be worked out with U. S. tax officials. Hammer, who owns Knoedler, will be chairman and president of the new firm, probably the world's largest of its type.

"The merger will widen Knoedler's business in Europe, where we already have a gallery in London." The 78-year-old oilman and benefactor of the Los Angeles County Art Museum said at a press conference. "We foresee that a lot of oil money generated in the Middle East will eventually be invested in art. Right now petrodollars are going into real estate and stocks, but eventually it will be art."

Hammer said that Modarco was set up in 1971 by European investors to buy art and hold it for appreciation of value. He said Modarco never had been very active as an operating dealer but had suffered short term losses when the art market deteriorated in 1974 and 1975.

These losses, however, have been offset by the increased value of the firm's holdings, including paintings by Renoir, Dufy, Picasso, Gris, Leger, Soutine and Dekooning. He said the bulk of Modarco's inventory, valued at $20 million, soon would be brought to New York for an exhibition at Knoedler's elegant new gallery next to the Frick Museum.

Car operating costs jump 10% over 1975

It will cost the buyer of a 1977 car 10.3 per cent more to own and operate his new vehicle than it did two years ago, despite improved fuel economy, according to a study prepared for the Chicago Motor Club.

The study concludes it costs the average Illinois motorist 20.2 cents a mile to operate his car compared to 18.3 cents per mile in 1975.

Motorists who drive 10,000 miles a year can expect operating costs to jump to $2,019, a rise of nearly $200 in two years.

MOTOR CLUB STATISTICS are based on studies by Runzheimer and Co. for the American Automobile Assn.

The study identified increased fixed costs, particularly depreciation, as the major reason for the 10 per cent increase in operating costs. Fixed costs rose more than $250 in the two-year period, while variable costs such as gas, oil and maintenance were down slightly.

The per-mile figure was computed on a 5.8 cents a mile base for variable costs and a 14.4 cents a mile base for fixed costs. Data is based on a 1977, eight cylinder Chevrolet Chevelle with automatic transmission, power steering, power disc brakes and a radio.

Motorists who use air conditioning will add an estimated 0.2 cents a mile and 20 cents a day to their operating costs.

The study says motorists can expect a penny increase in per-mile operating costs for every 10 cent per gallon increase in the pump price of gasoline if the car delivers 10 miles per gallon. The increase will be only 0.5 cents if the car gets 20 miles per gallon.

The increased operating costs have boosted the cost of vacations by car. The study found average costs for two people have jumped 6 per cent since 1975 to $58 a day. This figure includes $26 a day for meals, $27 a day for lodging and $5 for gas and oil every 100 miles of travel. Computations were based on a car averaging 15 miles per gallon.

Vet's hot line helps farmers keep animals happy

by LeROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI) — It's too bad James Herriot did not have someone like Dr. Don Awe to fall back on in the 1930s.

The doctor could have been a great help to the youthful veterinarian in rural Yorkshire. But in that case Herriot would not have had to solve all those problems with animals by himself and he might never have felt like writing his wonderful books 'All Creatures Great and Small" and "All Things Bright and Beautiful."

Awe works for Cargill, Inc., the Minneapolis commodity handling and marketing firm, as animal health products manager for the Nutrena Feeds division. He has set up an unusual "hot line" service for veterinarians and their farmer customers to give quick information about what to do when cows, horses, sheep, poultry and swine come up with baffling miseries.

AWE, A VETERINARIAN specializing in large animals, conceived the idea two years ago after observing over a period of time that one of the secrets of success in any kind of farming or ranching involving livestock or poultry raised for the market is to keep the critters reasonably contented.

"Sometimes," he said, "it almost seems as if the animals are staging a revolt against conditions they don't like — getting sick in revenge on the farmers."

At any rate, Awe said, you cannot make money raising turkeys or chickens if they are always getting their feathers ruffled and dairy cows with chapped udders are not eager to give lots of milk. Overcrowded pigs with sore feet tend to fight each other, working off many pounds of valuable lard and bacon.

The Cargill toll-free hot line at the Animal Health Service Center in Omaha, Neb., is designed to produce quick solutions to just such problems. Weekdays from eight to five, livestock and poultry producers or veterinarians can call on a team of animal health specialists headed by Clarence Utley.

"Naturally, we don't provide telephone diagnosis," Awe said. "If a diagnosis has not yet been made we insist the farmer call in a local vet. But there's a lot of help we can give both the farmer and the vet after the diagnosis is made."

THE BUSY SEASONS for the hot line service are mid-February to May and late August through November, when farmers are either fattening their livestock or preparing to take them to market.

"So far we have been getting 150 to 200 calls a day during those months," from as far away as North Carolina, Texas and Mississippi," Utley said.

The hotline has gotten some very unusual calls — like the fellow who wanted to know where to find out how to relieve an itchy rash that was causing his white mouse to scratch. Utley, once he realized his caller was not pulling his leg, put him in touch with a lab that breeds the mice where he got the solution to the problem.

Then there was the western rancher who wanted to know where to find a tranquilizing dart gun for his herd of buffalo. He was afraid the bison might stampede and run away. Utley provided the name of a nearby store that handled tranquilizer guns big enough for the purpose.

Suburbs take new look at real estate tax

Northwest suburban communities will be taking a new look at the controversial real estate transfer tax now that the Illinois General Assembly has provided a way of enforcing the tax.

A bill awaiting Gov. James R. Thompson's signature would require the county to refuse to record deeds without proof of tax payment in home-rule communities that adopt the land sale tax.

Cook County currently provides this service to the City of Chicago, but has refused to do the same for the suburbs. This situation has prevented several communities, including Hoffman Estates and Arlington Heights, from considering adoption of the tax.

THE TAX WAS STUDIED two and three years ago in both communities as a new revenue source. Neither com munity decided on an amount for the tax or whether it would be levied against the buyer or seller of property.

Des Plaines also considered the tax, but rejected it in face of stiff opposition from local real estate brokers.

Spokesmen from both Arlington Heights and Hoffman Estates said they expect renewed discussion of the tax once the bill is signed into law. They said, however, a study of the tax does not guarantee adoption.

"We won't jump into anything," said Hoffman Estates Village Pres. Virginia M. Hayter. "Just because there is a bill that enables us to do it, doesn't mean we are going to pass it.'

MRS. HAYTER SAID she expects other towns to show interest in the tax and said the issue may be discussed at the Northwest Municipal Conference. The conference was one of the agencies pushing for passage of the legislation.

Arlington Heights finance director Ken Bonder said he expects the tax, to be reconsidered. "I think it would be to the benefit of the village if we did take another look," he said.

Des Plaines finance director Duane Blietz said he does not think Des Plaines will discuss the real estate transfer tax. Noting the city council rejected the tax in 1975, Blietz said "based on past action, Des Plaines probably will not review it."

Defiant ordinations the issue

Bishop may go before 'council'

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope Paul VI may place the case of rebellious French Archbishop Marcel Lefebvre before the Vatican department once known as the Inquisition, Vatican sources said Thursday.

They said the Pope may ask the Sacred Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith for an opinion on how to deal with the traditionalist archbishop, who defiantly ordained 14 priests at his Swiss seminary Wednesday in the beginning of the Roman Catholic Church's first 20th century schism.

THE FINAL DECISION — possibly excommunication, or a ruling that Lefebvre has excommunicated himself — would still rest with the Pope.

The Vatican kept officially silent Thursday about the ordinations by the suspended archbishop, who called the church of Rome a den of "thieves, wolves and mercenaries."

Pope Paul himself refrained from mentioning Lefebvre in his homily at a Mass in St. Peter's basilica Wednesday but reaffirmed his own authority as the successor to the Apostle Peter with the ancient dictum: "Where Peter is, there is the Church."

The Sacred Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith, the church's top watchdog body over faith and morals, is the successor to the body set up by Pope Paul III in 1542 under the name of Sacred Congregation of the Universal Inquisition.

THE INQUISITION was responsible for the burning at the stake of Philosopher Giordano Bruno and many other persons convicted of heresy and forced scientist Galileo Galilei to recant on his teaching that the earth revolves around the sun.

Pope St. Pius X, of whom Lefebvre is an ardent admirer, changed the Inquisition's name in 1908 to Supreme Sacred Congregation of the Holy Office and Paul VI gave it its present name.

Although no longer armed with powers to send heretics to the stake, the Congregation wields the Catholic Church's most powerful remaining weapon — excommunication, which bars an offender against church law from the seven sacraments and in the most severe cases enjoins individual Catholics from having any relations with him.

The only archbishop to be excommunicated in recent years was South Vietnam's Pierre Martin Ngo Dinh Thuc in 1976 for unlawful ordinations in Spain. Thuc, a brother of the late South Vietnamese President Ngo Dinh Diem and a traditionalist like Lefebvre, has since become reconciled with Rome.

The Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith's last two trials against church liberals ended without convictions. The case of Dutch theologian E. D. Schillebeckx was declared closed two years ago after he convinced the congregation that his doctrines were orthodox and the Rev. Hans Kueng, a Swiss theologian, was given a rebuke, but no sanctions, for his critical views about papal infallibility.

Parks to host swim benefit July 17

Pools from Northwest suburban park districts are among the more than 85 pools participating in the second annual Swim for Heart fund-raiser for the Chicago Heart Assn. July 17.

Swimmers in the benefit will get sponsors to pledge a specified amount of money for every lap swum during the one-hour event.

There is no age limit, but swimmers will be divided into two age groups. A 10-speed bicycle will be awarded to the swimmer in each age category at each pool who raises the most money.

EACH PARTICIPANT also will receive a patch for the event.

Last year, swimmers at 44 suburban park districts raised $109,000. This year's goal is $150,000, a Chicago Heart Assn. spokesman said.

"The Swim for Heart ties in recreation and physical fitness to help condition the heart and circulatory system while at the same time raising funds to fight heart and blood vessel diseases," said Bon Dunsmuir, president of the Suburban Park and Recreation Assn., sponsor of the event.

Swimmers are permitted to rest during the hour. A lap is considered 75 feet.

Persons interested in participating in the Swim for Heart can get information from any participating park district, including: Hoffman Estates, Palatine, Arlington Heights, Des Plaines, Elk Grove, Mount Prospect, Hanover Park, Buffalo Grove, Wheeling, Park Ridge, Schaumburg, Rolling Meadows and Northwest Special Recreation districts and the Buehler YMCA, Palatine There is no charge to enter.

Maybe folks were a little skeptical about taking stock in America 200 years ago.

We were young. At war. With no experience.

And who knew if we'd ever pay back the money?

Well, 200 years have passed. And the U.S. government has always paid in full. To the penny.

Now that's not a bad record.

In fact, you might say we're now a pretty well-established outfit to do business with.

So join the Payroll Savings Plan and save with today's Bicentennial issue of Series E Savings Bonds. It's easy. It's automatic.

And it's safe. After 200 years, you know we're here to stay.

Now E Bonds pay 6% interest when held to maturity of 5 years (4% the first year). Lost, stolen or destroyed Bonds can be replaced if records are provided. When needed, Bonds can be cashed at your bank. Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.

Take stock in America.

RTA tax OKd; new services seen

by LYNN ASINOF

New transportation programs for the suburbs are expected to nearly double as a result of a 5 per cent gasoline tax approved Thursday by the Regional Transportation Authority.

In a compromise agreement, suburban board member D. Daniel Baldino of Evanston voted for the controversial gas tax, but only after he added $4.9 million to the 1977-78 budget for new suburban bus, rail and transit programs.

Only $6 million had been intended for these new services before Baldino increased this amount to $11 million.

HE ALSO added $465,000 to the budget for programs similar to Dial-a-Ride and the subscription bus service planned in Schaumburg in the coming year.

The five Chicago board members agreed to Baldino's stipulations in exchange for his vote on the gas tax.

Baldino provided the crucial sixth vote needed to pass the gas tax, which will add an estimated 2.8 cents to the pump price of a gallon of gasoline in the six-county area. The tax is expected to go into effect Oct. 1 and will produce an estimated $55 million the first year.

Baldino ended a two-year stalemate over the gas tax, saying the only alternative was an austerity budget that required drastic service cutbacks and fare hikes. "The auserity budget wasn't an answer to the problems," he said. "That's no way to run a government."

AS A GUARANTEE that suburban service programs will be implemented, Baldino demanded a two-year cutoff on the tax. If the board does not reapprove the tax, it will expire on Oct. 31, 1979.

Area residents react to new tax — Page 3

Despite the service increases, the other three suburban members remainded firm in their opposition to the gas tax.

Gene Leonard of Oak Forest warned that the gas tax may trigger "a strong counter-reaction in Springfield in the near future."

"There will be legislators waiting to dismantle the RTA," Leonard said, noting the RTA will need to seek additional funding powers from the legislature in about two years.

The two other suburban board members, Jerry D. Boose of St. Charles and Richard Newland of Waukegan, did not attend the meeting but voiced their opposition in a prepared statement.

THE RTA'S new $237 million budget for 1977-78 was approved 6 to 1 as part of the gas tax compromise. It includes $100,000 for a series of studies to determine what kind of transportation is needed in the suburbs. The RTA's fiscal year starts today.

Baldino said he expects the new service programs to emphasize special transportation needs, a departure from the regional bus routes that has characterized RTA's suburban pro-

Police hold slim hope for girl's safety

SARASOTA, Fla. (UPI) — Police said Thursday night they had been able to do little but hang on to "that slim hope" that 15-year-old Charlotte Grosse, abducted from a tent in a Girl Scout campout, would be released unharmed.

Twenty-four hours after she called her father to tell him she was unhurt and would be set free, Sheriff's Cpl. William Stookey said investigators were "working with whatever they find. They have found very little.

"Everyone is hanging on to that slim hope that she will be released unharmed," Stookey said. Asked to explain his use of the phrase "slim hope," Stookey said statistics show on "a national scale that the longer the time goes the less the chances are" of a kidnap victim being released unharmed.

CHARLOTTE, abducted before dawn Wednesday, called her father at 10:15 p.m. Wednesday, told him she was unharmed and would soon be released, probably at a telephone booth. She has not been heard from since.

Authorities issued a composite photograph believed to resemble the abductor after "a believed possible sighting" Wednesday night, apparently around the time the girl called home.

At first Stookey declined to discuss the sighting, but late Thursday he said the girl was apparently seen with the man. She was dragged away wearing only a Mickey Mouse T-shirt and underpants, but Stookey said the witness reported she was dressed in what "we believe are dark jeans. The person couldn't make out a Mickey Mouse T-shirt so we assume she is wearing something else. She wasn't wearing shoes."

The composite showed a man with dark, stringy hair, a thin face, about six feet tall, weighing about 170 pounds with a dark complexion.

Charlotte was abducted from a tent where she was camping with her 14-year-old sister Eleanor and Virginia Wallace, 15.

Virginia Wallace said Thursday that they heard rustling in the underbrush

Cruise missile replaces B1

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter's decision to stop B1 bomber production boosts the strategic importance of the cruise missile — a small, pilotless jet that already is complicating U.S.-Soviet arms talks even though it is still in the testing phase.

At his morning news conference Thursday, Carter said the B1 decision was "one of the most difficult decisions that I've ever made." He added the nation now will rely instead on the cruise missile, a weapon the Russians do not have.

The cruise missile is one of two new weapons that will be available to U.S. strategic planners in the first half of the 1980s. The other is the Navy's Trident submarine, which will come into the fleet in 1979.

TWO VERSIONS of the cruise are under development — the 21-foot cigar shaped "Tomahawk," originally designed to be fired from submarines, and the Air Force's "ALCM," designed to be launched from airplanes.

Highly accurate, they use radar to stay on course and find their way to targets in the Soviet Union by built-in computers programmed with a "map" of the terrain below.

Cruise missiles are relatively inexpensive compared to the B1 — about $1 million each, against the estimated $101.7 million for each of the warplanes.

The combined Navy and Air Force program, now targeted for 3,592 missiles, might cost around $5.1 billion total, although additional airplanes to launch them would be extra.

ONE OF THE roadblocks to progress in the current U.S.-Soviet strategic arms limitation talks has been disagreement over whether the cruise missile should be regarded as a strategic weapon and subjected to the limitations of the prospective SALT II treaty.

The Carter administration offered only to accept some limitations on the range of the cruise missiles as part of the "deep cut" proposal rejected by the Soviets in March.

Village opts out of plans for pipeline to O'Hare

by RENA WISH COHEN

Only five of the eight Northwest suburban communities that had considered building a pipeline to O'Hare Airport to obtain Lake Michigan water met today's deadline to participate in the planning stages of the project.

Palatine, Buffalo Grove and Arlington Heights have informed SHARE + 3, a group of which all were members, that they cannot commit themselves to the project without further exploration of alternative methods of receiving the lake water they have been allocated by the state.

The decisions came in response to a July 1 deadline set by SHARE + 3, asking all eight member municipalities whether they supported the concept of a joint water transmission system between their communities and Chicago.

SCHAUMBURG, Hoffman Estates, Rolling Meadows, Elk Grove Village and Mount Prospect have decided to stick with SHARE + 3 through the planning stages of the O'Hare pipeline project. The five will split the costs of legal, fiscal and engineering studies for the pipeline.

Charles A. Willis, Elk Grove village manager and chairman of the SHARE + 3 executive committee, said he did not know how the shrinking of the group from eight to five would affect the cost of the project, estimated at a minimum $42 million.

"It will affect it, but how much or in what direction we won't know until we do detailed engineering studies."

The cost of rights-of-way, legal fees and construction of the pipeline to each community had been estimated at a minimum of $2.6 million for Palatine, to $11.8 million for Schaumburg. Willis said the elimination of several communities would cut down on the length of the pipeline and the size of storage reservoirs, pumps and pumping facilities, but he could not estimate whether the cost to each community would decrease or increase.

THE THREE COMMUNITIES that declined to commit themselves to the venture could rejoin at a later date, Willis said, but they would have to pay their share of any expenses in-

Saga of Mary Hartman's suburban life is at its end

Byline report

Diane Mermigas

Louise Lasser

Some suburbanites will be losing their best friend tonight.

That neurotic housewife with the red, braided pigtails has seen the last case of waxy build-up on her kitchen floor.

Mary Hartman is bidding adieu to the suburban experience and her husband today at 10 p.m. on Channel 32 and, sources say she may very well leave the backward little town of Fernwood, Ohio, on the arm of her lover, Sgt. Foley.

ALTHOUGH THE night-time serial of 18 months is coming to a premature end because of falling ratings and a phsycially exhausted leading lady (Louise Lasser), "'Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman" has left a lasting impression on its viewers.

Because "Mary Hartman" opened up the American conscience, worked its way into our bloodstreams and had us looking at ourselves as we never had before, it has interested many university psychologists and professors of mass communications.

Two college professors who intend to keep the "Mary Hartman" phenomenon alive in the interest of researching human behavior are Mary B. Cassata, a mass communications professor at the State University of New York at Buffalo, and Kenneth Haun, an experimental psychologist at Monmouth College in Long Branch, N. J.

The two are asking for a $500,000 private grant that will help them begin a five-year study of daytime soap operas and their night-time parodies, like "Mary Hartman," and the audience reaction to them.

"THERE'S NO DOUBT about it. 'Mary Hartman' has had the

Man arrested on sale of explosives

A Barrington man was charged Thursday with the sale of explosives in a crackdown by authorities on illegal fireworks. Charged was Thomas L. Wojcik, 23, of 1197 Northwest Hwy., Barrington, an electronics salesman, whom authorities said was selling fireworks near suburban high schools. Authorities said they confiscated several thousand dollars of cherry bombs, M-100s and M-80s from Wojcik's home and a van full of smaller fireworks.

Authorities arrested Wojcik Wednesday night in his van at Ill. Rte. 83 and Hintz Road, Wheeling Township, after he allegedly sold fireworks to undercover federal agents. Wojcik was charged with dealing in explosives without a license and with the unlawful storage of explosives without a license and with the unlawful posting $2,000 bond.

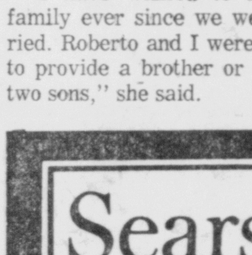
The arrest was a cooperative effort by the U.S. Customs Service, the U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms and the county sheriff's police.

17 mos. after father dies— baby expected

LONDON (UPI) — For new Zealand-born cartoonist Kim Casali, "Love Is" expecting the birth of her late husband Roberto's child next week — 17 months after he died of cancer.

The baby from the past will be born thanks to a deep-freeze sperm bank and artificial insemination.

Kim Grove was working in Los Angeles when she met Italian Roberto Casali in February 1967, fell in love and sent him a stream of letters, signing off with a drawing of two tiny figures captioned with a few words of affection.



Kim Casali

ROBERTO SHOWED the drawings to an American newspaper and the now world famous cartoon series "Love Is" was born.

Together they built up a multimillion dollar business from the cartoon that is known to newspaper readers in 60 countries.

They settled in Weybridge, England and had two of the three children they planned before tragedy struck.

Roberto was found to be suffering from incurrable cancer and Kim persuaded Roberto to contribute to a deep-freeze sperm bank to continue their love.

ROBERTO DIED IN February 1976. But thanks to artificial insemination Kim, now 35, is expecting his baby shortly.

"The baby will be Roberto's last gift to me," she told reporters Wednesday. "I shall be able to remember him by it forever."

The couple had two sons — Dario, 5, and Stefano, 3, before Roberto died.

"I have wanted to have a large family ever since we were first married. Roberto and I were very anxious to provide a brother or sister for our two sons," she said.

New gas tax no pleasure

Several northwest suburban motorists reacted with disdain Thursday to news the Regional Transportation Authority had adopted a 5 per cent tax on gasoline, but the drivers said paying a few extra cents each time they fill up isn't going to make them drive any less.

"It (the tax can't cut back my driving," said Gertrude Hinz, of 735 N. Chestnut Ave., Arlington Heights, "I have to go to work.

"I don't like it. I don't ride the bus and I have to drive to work. I really don't get any advantages from it."

WHILE STEVE Crank of Palatine said he uses the Chicago and North Western Ry. to commute to and from work, he still opposes the RTA TAX.

"I'm never in favor of taxes," Crank said. "I don't like it one bit."

"The ones that are forced to drive will still continue to drive," Crank said. "It's a rather unfair arrangement of things. It's certainly not going to discourage my driving."

Vick Hight, 315 W. Prospect Ave., Mount Prospect, said though he opposed the tax. "It's such a small increase, you won't notice it at first. And you still have to go out and shop and work," he said.

SERVICE STATION operators also greeted the new tax negatively, but said it probably would not hurt business.

"It's legal, but it seems like every time they're turning for more money they're turning to gasoline consumers," said Roger Grandt, manager of Grandt's Shell, Northwest Highway and Belmont Avenue, Arlington Heights.

"When they (customers add up all the taxes, people blame the service station people for it, but we don't have anything to do with it," Grandt said. "I don't think it's right. No way."

"Everywhere they can add taxes, they're adding it to the people," he said. "But really, the gas consumer is paying an awful lot for taxes already."

WAYNE BUSSE, owner of the Busse Marathon station, Golf and Mount Prospect roads, Des Plaines, said he opposed the tax increase.

"The motorist blames one person (for higher pump prices-," Busse said. "The guy he buys the gas from."

"I don't think much of it (RTA) at all," Busse said. "Why can't they make it self-supporting? I can't see why they can't make it pay for itself."

Asked whether he could absorb the tax and keep his pump prices down, Busse said, "How could I absorb it? I'm working on 3 cents a gallon — that's what my margin is now."

Jim McNulty, attendant at Jim's Union 76 at Arlington Heights and Golf roads, Arlington Heights, said, "The average person is paying as high as 75 cents a gallon. If it keeps on growing I'm going to start riding a bicycle."

gram. He said some services could be implemented quickly, such as the expansion of subsidized senior citizen taxi programs. A detailed service program will be worked out by the RTA in the next few months.

The new service will be geared to areas that currently do not have public transportation, he said. Among the programs in the budget are a feeder bus service to train stations from Rolling Meadows, Palatine and Elk Grove Village; a bus route to Harper College in Palatine and construction of a bus and rail transportation center in Des Plaines.

THE GAS TAX is expected to be challenged in court. Unsuccessful Chicago mayoral candidate Anthony Martin-Trigona said he will file suit Tuesday or Wednesday, challenging the right of RTA board member Patrick O'Malley to vote for the tax.

NORTHWEST SUBURBANITES voiced their complaints about the RTA's 5 per cent tax on gasoline. Gertrude Hinz, of Arlington Heights, far left, says she must drive to work anyway and would derive no benefits from the tax, Wayne Busse, above, owner of the Busse Marathon station, Des Plaines, says station managers will get the blame for higher pump prices, and asks why the RTA can't pay its own way. Jim McNulty, left, an attendant at Jim's Union '76 in Arlington Heights, vows he'll ride a bicycle if gas prices rise much higher.

Author of 'Pucci letter' breaks up Columbo court

by DAVE IBATA

Prosecutors Thursday produced the anonymous author of a letter that accused a Chicago man of killing the Columbo family of Elk Grove Village: a 75-year-old Chicago woman with a keen imagination.

Marceita Genoar, a surprise witness for the state in the final day of testimony in the murder trial of Patricia Columbo and Frank DeLuca, admitted she wrote the letter as a hoax to get even with her neighbor, Joseph Pucci. The case will go to the jury today.

Miss Genoar's letter read, "Joseph Pucci was overheard talking to two well-known 'hit men' on Taylor Street. He said he had something to settle with Frank Columbo of Elk Grove and he was going to take care of it."

THE LETTER HINTED Pucci, and not Miss Columbo, 21, and DeLuca, 39, murdered her parents, Frank and Mary Columbo, and her 13-year-old brother Michael, May 4, 1976.

Miss Genoar's testimony brought laughter from attorneys, jurors and spectators while she spoke without a hint of remorse about setting up her hated neighbor for police.

She said, simply, "I made it up."

Elk Grove Village police received Miss Genoar's anonymous letter May 13, 1976.

Judge R. Eugene Pincham covered his face with a handkerchief as he tried to control himself, while even DeLuca and his attorneys, who had based part of their defense on the letter, joined in the laughter.

THE LETTER, which also accused Pucci of arson, narcotics traffic, sale of stolen property and another unsolved murder, earlier was cited by DeLuca's lawyers as an example of police incompetence.

Toomin and Bloom say police failed to follow up the "Pucci letter" because of their eagerness to "frame" DeLuca.

They indicated an investigation into the letter would have showed Pucci had friends in organized crime.

However, Pucci is only a tool and die worker at the M&A Machine Shop in Chicago who had the misfortune to raise Miss Genoar's ire, prosecutors said.

AFTER THE LETTER was made public, Miss Genoar said, "He (Pucci) was very harassed and very nervous, and that's exactly what I wanted."

Dep. Chief William Kohnke of the Elk Grove Village police said his investigators worked more than a year to trace the Pucci letter back to Miss Genoar. They and Terry Sullivan, assistant state's attorney, confronted her June 21 at her home on Chicago's Near West Side.

Prosecutors said they found her house, where she and four generations of her family have lived since 1903, partially burned down. They said she makes ends meet by making and selling shampoo, and has a fondness for a drink consisting of lemon and cranberry juice and port wine.

Prosecutors say they talked with Miss Genoar four hours before she finally admitted she wrote the letters and agreed to testify for the state as a rebuttal witness.

After Miss Genoar testified she wrote crank letters, she added, "I hope I have the opportunity to tell why I wrote these letters. Otherwise, people will think I'm crazy."

Toomin asked her to explain.

MISS GENOAR said Pucci had burned down four garages on the 1500 block of W. Jackson Boulevard, including her own, in an attempt to scare away older residents so he could buy their houses.

However, she said, "We're tough. We've been up and down, up and down in that neighborhood, and we don't scare easily."

She said after reading in newspapers that police were hunting for leads to killers in the Columbo murders, she wrote the letter to get even with Pucci.

Miss Genoar testified as one of the last witnesses in the Columbo-DeLuca trail.

Closing arguments will be made at 9 a.m. today in Pincham's courtroom at the Cook County Criminal Courts Building, 26th Street and California Avenue, Chicago.

Panel finishes work on energy bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Ways and Means Committee completed action Thursday on President Carter's energy tax package, approving a bill projected to save less energy than Carter asked but not the gutted program that some had feared.

Although the committee during weeks of work killed Carter's gas tax and his rebate for energy efficient cars, it did pass a tax on gas guzzling cars, tax credits for home insulation and solar energy, a tax to push industries and utilities away from oil and gas toward coal, and a major tax on oil that will raise the price of energy for everyone but rebate it evenly to the public.

"The plan that emerges is not only a more practical design for energy savings, but also carries a better guarantee for enactment," said chairman Al Ullman, D-Ore., after the committee adjourned for the week-long July 4 recess.

"WE HAVE SENT A clear message to OPEC and the industrial world that the United States is unwilling to suffer uncertain supplies that threaten economic growth and national security," Ullman said.

According to the committee staff, the ways and means bill would save the equivalent of 2,779,000 barrels per day of oil while Carter's plan was projected to save 4,712,000 barrels.

The gap actually is smaller, the staff said, because some of Carter's projections were found to be overstated.

The committee estimated each American will be paying $22 to $28 more for energy and various products that depended heavily on it, in the first year of operation of the bill. By the third year, the added cost per capita will be around $75, the staff estimated.

"EVERY AMERICAN will be much more conscious of the cost of energy," Ullman said.

In terms of Treasury revenue, the bill would lose $1 billion in fiscal 1978, largely because the new tax on crude oil would be rebated to the public at about $22 for each adult through the income tax and Social Security systems.

In later years, from 1979 through 1985, the bill is projected to raise taxes by $54.3 billion. But that money is certain to be spent either in further rebates or in tax "reform."

The most significant difference between Carter and the committee was the gas tax, a politically unpopular proposal that never stood a chance in Congress.

"NO MATTER HOW you hammer, a round peg won't go into a square hole," said Ullman, acknowledging the political problems with the original bill.

But nonetheless, said Ullman, "the nation has receivedthe first signal that Congress is dead serious about saving energy."

The House Commerce Committee, which is considering the nontax aspects of the Carter plan, adjourned with much of its work ahead, including a possible fight over lifting price regulations from natural gas. The Carter plan to expand controls won by one vote in the committee Wednesday, but could come up again.

Both the Ways and Means and the Commerce bills will be combined in mid-July by an ad hoc energy committee.

WAYS AND MEANS Thursday approved a version of Carter's tax on use of oil and gas by utilities, designed to encourage them to convert to coal.

Illinois briefs

Dems sidetrack House crime bill

In an 11th hour move, the Illinois House Thursday sidetracked the most highly prized plank of Gov. James R. Thompson's "get tough on crime package;" a proposal to create a new class of felony crimes. Democrats fought attempts to approve an amended bill to create "class x" felonies punishable by mandatory life prison sentences for persons convicted of certain heinous crimes. Late in the evening, Thompson emerged from a meeting and told The Herald he felt confident he had the votes to pass the bill as amended and avoid a joint House-Senate conference committee.

However Democrats objected to the use of an amendment and in an extraordinary move House Speaker William Redmond, D-Bensenville, ruled the amendment was not germane at about 11:30 p.m., forcing the bill into a conference committee. The move put off action on the class X bill until past the legislature's midnight deadline. The delay means that 107 votes, rather than the normal 89 will be needed to enact the legislation. Thompson's controversial package includes mandatory six year to life sentences for persons convicted of certain heinous crimes, sets new rules for plea bargaining and establishes a special commission to study determine sentencing.

Donald Kennedy, head of the Federal Food and Drug Administration, Thursday wrote Gov. James R. Thompson urging him to veto a bill permitting the use of Laetrille by terminal cancer patients. "Should Illinois legalize Laetrile," Kennedy wrote, "a great number of cancer victims in the state could be irreparably harmed, both by spending large sums of money for this drug and foregoing known effective treatments that are now available for many forms of cancer. I hope that Illinois would not legitimize this exploitation of a tragic desease," Kennedy said. "I would hope Illinois would not rely on the doctrine of caveat emptor (let the buyer beware) to protect its citizens from consumer fraud and health risks."

The bill, H1200 by Rep. Donald Totten, R-Hoffman Estates, passed the legislature overwhelmingly. It allows doctors to prescribe the controversial apricot derivative for cancer patients without hope of recovery. The state Dept. of Public Health would monitor its manufacture and distribution within the state. However, Kennedy said, "It's shipment from or into Illinois is now illegal under federal law and passage of state legislation would not alter this situation.

Gov. James R. Thompson Thursday signed a compromise measure cutting slightly the generous workmen's compensation benefits enacted in 1975. "This is the best bill that could be achieved this session," Thompson said. "In signing it, I wish to make it clear that this administration does not regard the subject of workmen's compensation as a closed one." Thompson said he soon plans to appoint a Governor's Council on Jobs and the Economy which will study benefits for the jobless and workers hurt on the job over the summer. "I will look at their work and then decide if further steps need to be taken in fall."

A key feature of S1019 is the shift from the weekly manufacturing wage to the average weekly wage, which is lower, in computing workmen's compensation payments. Business spokesmen have pressed for benefit cuts for two years, arguing their workmen's compensation insurance rates have soared and cost jobs. Thompson said a Pennsylvania firm interested in moving to Illinois balked because insurance would be $90,000 more than in Iowa. Labor spokesmen say insurance companies have taken advantage of the higher benefits to boost their insurance rates, contending claims alone have not been great enough to justify the high rates.

Metropolitan briefs

Attorney Walker to run ads in paper

Former Gov. Daniel Walker will be among the first to take advantage of lawyers' newly won right to advertise their services, Walker aides said Thursday. Starting in weekend editions, eight Illinois newspapers will carry distinguished ads with black borders on the top and bottom, proclaiming:

The Dan Walker Law Office

"Has been established by former Governor Walker in Eight Cities in Illinois.

"The United States Supreme Court has decided that for the first time lawyers may advertise in newspapers, within certain limitations. The Supreme Court reasoned, and we agree, that legal services should be available to more people at a reasonable cost.

"We offer a broad range of legal services to people and businesses across the state."

VA guilty of 'stupidity': judge

A federal judge said he would like to put Veterans Administration officials in prison along with the man he sentenced Thursday for bilking the VA out of $700,000. In sentencing Percy Copeland, the president of a South Side barber college to one year in prison, U.S. District Court Judge Frank J. McGarr said the VA itself is guilty of "stupidity and negligence" for failing to adequately monitor its programs. "If the government had the wisdom and insight to indict the Veterans Administration, I'd send them to the penitentiary to join Mr. Copeland," McGarr said.

Man charged in fires in Sweden

The operator of a suburban exporting firm was arrested Thursday in connection with warehouse fires that caused $2.5 million damage in Sweden. Jan A. Assarsson, 33, head of U.S. Exporters, Inc., Kenilworth is charged in Sweden with gross arson and attempted gross fraud. He turned himself in to federal authorities and faces extradition. The charges were filed in connection with a February, 1975 fire that caused $2.5 million damages at Malmo, Sweden. Assarson stored art reproductions in the warehouse and it was believed by federal authorities the fires were set to collect insurance benefits. Assarsson was described as a Swedish citizen who has been living in the United States since 1969.

Carter wants to talk to Brezhnev

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Denying that he has soured U.S.-Soviet relations through his stress on human rights, President Carter said Thursday he would "welcome a chance this year" to talk things over with Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev.

Carter said he felt no "fear or frustration or concern" about relations with the Russians despite Moscow's hostile reaction to Carter's drumbeat of attention on human rights — and on how Russia treats dissenters.

Nor has the Russian reaction spilled over into efforts to build a safer world," Carter said.

FAR-REACHING and difficult talks on banning nucler tests, demilitarizing the Indian Ocean and cutting production of conventional weapons are progressing smoothly, he said.

Even if he had anticipated the depth of Moscow's reaction, Carter said, he would have gone ahead with the human rights campaign.

At a nationally televised news conference during which he announced his decision not to fund the B1 bomber, Carter declined to confirm he is arranging to meet with Brezhnev in Alaska in August. No time or site for a summit has been fixed, he said.

But he said he thought it would be useful "to get to know one another."

THIS MADE IT seem likely that a meeting will occur — the first since 1974 between the newly elevated Brezhnev and an American president.

In Moscow, Tass said it was "the U.S. side" which first raised the question of a meeting between Brezhnev and "James Carter." The discussions are merely "preliminary," Tass said.

"I don't agree there are growing difficulties between ourselves and the Soviet Union," Carter told a questioner at a news conference.

On other matters, Carter called for an end to U.S. statements which have stirred both sides in the Mideast, angering first one side, then another.

MORE TALK ON the specific elements of a possible peace agreement should await the arrival of Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin in three weeks, he said.

Carter said his discussion of a Palestinian homeland, his sale of further arms to Israel and his administration's call for Israeli withdrawls from captured Arab land has managed to cause both sides to consider each other's views.

But he said he was not selling Israel down the river, as a questioner suggested. He said he has told the Arabs that the United States would not abandon Israel.

And he said he still has "high hopes" that a peace agreement could be reached this year.

Career also sidestepped the question about whether the United States would be willing to give up its defense treaty with Taiwan if that is Peking's price for full diplomatic relations. He noted that some countries which have diplomatic relations with China trade with Taiwan.

Area resident wins Herald contest

Dennis Doehny of Mount Prospect is the winner of The Herald's recent Six Flags contest.

The object of the week-long contest was to form as many words as possible from the letters in the phrase, "Screamin' Eagle at Six Flags." Doehny submitted 4,734 words; using the 1976 edition of Webster's New Collegiate Dictionary, the judges verified 4,186 of these words.

The contest attracted 437 entrants of whom five entered more than 4,000 words. Most contestants submitted between 1,000 and 2,000 words.

Many entries were a culmination of family effort, neighbor rivalry and neglected housework. The sheer volume of entries and the need to verify words delayed announcement of a winner and brought numerous calls to The Herald switchboard, said Linda Fischer, promotion manager.

For his winning effort, Doehny will receive a weekend for four at Six Flags over Mid-America near St. Louis.

Village holding back funds: parks

Arlington Heights Park District officials say the village is withholding funds it collects for park development under the land dedication ordinance.

Parks Director Thomas Thornton and commissioners contend the village owes the district $3,655 collected under the law, which requires developers to donate 10 per cent of their land or an equivalent amount of money for parks and schools.

But Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson said he has no record the park district is entitled to the funds and Village Pres. James T. Ryan said he is not aware of a conflict.

"I DON'T THINK the nonpayment is deliberate," Thornton said. "I just think the trustees aren't aware of the problem. But that doesn't mean there isn't a problem."

What concerns park officials and commissioners most is what they see as a lack of procedure for the park district to collect money accumulated in the fund by the village.

As building permits are issued for construction, the village collects the funds from developers. But park district personnel say they have no way of finding out how much money is paid and when.

"We don't know whether we should check with them periodically to see if there is any new building planned and money in the fund or what," Thornton said.

"As long as we put the pressure on we get the money," Jacqueline J. Gruenewald, park board president, said. "But we want a better relationship than that. Eventually we should get to the point where we don't have to go through the protocol of writing letters every time we want our money. That is our goal."

RYAN SAID A procedure already exists for informing the park district of new building developments. "Our procedure is having a park district person on the plan commission.

But the park district representative, Comr. Kathryn Graham, said, "That arrangement depends on my being there and that isn't enough.

"The system works fine up to a point where the developer pays the village its money," she said. "Then there's no procedure for us to get it. We just want a procedure established now so we won't have trouble when the big developments that are planned come along."

Problems with payment of land dedication money are not new. In 1975, Kay Muller, then vice president of the park board, charged Hanson with distorting the records of the dedication fund and with negotiating with developers without conferring with park officials. Hanson denied the accusations.

But soon after, the village board approved payment of $34,382.53 in the fund to the park district, a move aimed at reconciling differences between the two boards.

"It's a question of communication," Mrs. Gruenewald said. "We're doing as much as we can without stepping on toes. But we are letting the village know we're going to follow through on this."

Village out of O'Hare pipeline plans

curred to date, plus the additional cost of reworking engineering studies to reflect their participation in the project.

Both Palatine and Buffalo Grove had asked SHARE + 3 to extend the July 1 deadline for a commitment, and Arlington Heights had joined in their request for a joint discussion among all communities of alternative methods of bringing lake water to the area.

"What we've been operating with is that we were going to O'Hare, come hell or high water, and other questions haven't been answered," Palatine Village Pres. Robert J. Guss said. "It's like buying a car without knowing the terms of the bank loan."

Guss said Palatine was concerned with three major issues: whether the communities will be at the mercy of Chicago water rates; whether there can be a joint method of financing the pipeline, instead of SHARE's suggestion that each municipality select its own method; and whether the project will be eligible for state and federal funds.

"I think we're raising some legitimate questions that (the five communities) aren't asking," Guss said. "We're taking the brunt of the punishment because we're the bad guys and asking the questions, but it is the responsibility of the village board to be sure we don't cause the village to strap ourselves financially forever."

PALATINE, Buffalo Grove and Arlington Heights have said they are not closing the door on SHARE + 3, but merely trying to keep their options open. Some of those options are:

- Building a pipeline from the Northwest suburbs directly to Lake Michigan. This plan has been advocated for 20 years, by an organization called DAMP, consisting of Des Plaines, Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Palatine. The pipeline would cost more to build but would skirt the City of Chicago and its water rates.
- For Buffalo Grove, purchasing water from Highland Park. Buffalo Grove officials have argued this solution could be implemented more quickly and economically than the O'Hare pipeline, which is not expected to be completed until the early 1980s. Buffalo Grove would not have to invest in expensive improvements to its water system that would be necessary with the SHARE + 3 alternative.

Approximately 1,100 homes in two sections of Arlington Heights were without electricity for about an hour Thursday morning when lightning blew out fuses in nearby lines.

About 1,000 customers in the vicinity of Northwest Highway and Wilke Road were without power from 7:15 to 8:15 a.m., Gordon Baer, district superintendent for Commonwealth Edison, said.

And about 100 homes near Raleigh Street and the Ill. Rte. 53 Frontage Road on the Northwest side of town were blacked out from 7:20 to 8:20 a.m., Baer said.

Correction

Miner Junior High School, 1101 E. Miner St., is not scheduled to close in 1978 as stated in a picture caption in Thursday's Herald.

Roosevelt University of Chicago has expressed an interest in leasing either Miner or Thomas Junior High School after the next school year but Arlington Heights Dist. 25 has not decided which school will be closed.

Landscape awards

Members of the Arlington Beautification Council are accepting nominations for this year's landscaping awards until July 9.

Residents may make nominations by calling Lynnea Semasko at 253-3540. Private residences are excluded from the contest.

Winners will be selected July 26 and each will receive a plaque. Last year more than 20 businesses and apartment complexes were honored.

Concert, fireworks today at Fest '77

A country/rock concert by Palm followed by a mini fireworks display highlight today's Festival '77 activities.

The concert is from 8 to 11 p.m. at Recreation Park, 500 E. Miner St.

Other activities at the park during the day include a frisbee dog catch — bring your own dog — and grovee loop (hoop and a stick) race sponsored by the Arlington Heights Park District. Contests will be from 2 to 2:30 p.m. for those 6 to 8, 2:45 to 3:15 p.m. for those 9 to 11 and 3:30 to 4 p.m. for 12-to 14-year-olds.

Ron Ford will be performing original compositions on the park stage at 6 p.m. Food and beverages will be available at the community chuckwagon cookout and Golden Nugget Saloon.

Charlotte Grosse's suspected abductor

around the campsite all night. Charlotte, she said, "was really bad, really jumpy. I don't think she slept at all."

She said the three girls stayed up late playing cards and listening to the radio, and mentioned the murder of three Girl Scouts at a campsite in Oklahoma two weeks ago.

VIRGINIA SAID she tried to calm Charlotte over the noises outside the tent. She told her that "nobody in their right mind would be out there at 4 a.m. why don't we just try to fall asleep."

But just before dawn, she said, Charlotte awoke the other two girls to tell them "It's back!"

At that moment, she said, the mosquito netting at the rear of the tent was ripped apart and a dark figure burst into the tent, grabbing Charlotte by her waist-length brown hair.

"Oh my God, it's got her!" Eleanor screamed.

"Please," Charlotte cried, "Don't take me," as the man dragged her away.

In a nearby tent, the noise awoke Teresa and Lisa Kelly. "The screams, the screams," said Lisa Thursday. "I'll never forget them. They were so terrible."

Nurse case jurors await transcripts

The jury in the trial of two Filipino nurses accused of poisoning Veterans Administration hospital patients halted deliberations Thursday after asking for transcripts of testimony from a key prosecution witness. Sources said the nine women and three men wanted to review statements by nursing assistant Lula Balls, a government witness in the three-month federal Court trial of Filipina Narciso, 31, and Leonora Perez, 33. The woman testified regarding one poisoning count against Miss Narciso.

The defendant left patient Mark Hogan alone and asked Miss Balls to watch him. Moments later Hogan suffered a mysterious breathing failure. The significance of the jury's action was not clear. Judge Philip Pratt said he would answer the transcript request Friday. The panel started deliberations Wednesday and continued Thursday until early evening, when jurors went to a downtown hotel for the night.

NAACP chief eyes politicians

The incoming leader of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People said Thursday blacks will "shake up this country from top to bottom" to defeat politicians thwarting gains made in civil rights. Benjamin L. Hooks, who will succeed Roy Wilkins as executive director Aug. 1, spoke at the 68th annual convention of the civil rights organization. "In the South we used to have the expression that if there is one rascal in office and one running for office, we'd vote for the one who was out, no matter how bad he was, just to shake it up," Hooks said. "If we have to shake up this country from top to bottom, we're capable of doing it and we don't mind doing it."

He told reporters some liberal politicians are turning their backs to the civil rights movement and the country appears to be in a conservative mood. "I detect a worsening sign," Hooks said. "Many of us felt that with an overwhelmingly Democratic Congress and a Democratic president who owed his election to a monolithic black vote, we would be moving ahead at a faster rate than we are. "If they can't be responsible to the poor and disadvantaged of this country, then we will try to meet them at the ballot box and get somebody in who will be."

Carter talks with Wood, Welch

President Carter Thursday interviewed the first two of the five finalists for FBI director — U.S. Circuit Judge Harlington Wood Jr., Chicago, and FBI career agent Neil Welch, Philadelphia. Attorney General Griffin Bell interviewed both men in advance of their meetings with Carter. "It was very cordial, a business-like meetting," Wood told reporters after a 25-minute session with Carter in the White House Oval Office. He refused to elaborate further. Welch also turned aside reporters' questions after his interview in the Oval Office. Carter had not instructed him to remain silent, he said, "I'm just naturally quiet."

Victory for teen contraceptives

A 15-year-old girl who does not want to tell her parents about seeking contraceptives has won a victory in federal court. The 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled in a 2-1 decision that the girl be represented in the case by a guardian without the knowledge of the parents. In the majority opinion, Judge William H. Webster said the girl's "interest in privacy must outweigh any desire to accommodate parental concerns." The girl, identified in court papers Wednesday only as M.S., was unable to obtain contraceptives at the Pennington County, S.D., Health Department's family planning clinic without approval of her parents. She filed a class-action suit which charged the clinic's policy infringes on all minors in Pennington County who have been denied contraceptives.

same phenomenal effect on viewers that daytime soap opera has had over the years," Ms. Cassata said during a recent telephone interview.

What started out as a soap opera spoof developed into a biting, all-too-realistic look at the anxieties of suburban life, she said.

"Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman" was such an unrestrained, barefaced look at modern America that its creator, Norman Lear, could not sell the program to any of the three major networks.

After syndicating the weeknight serial to about 100 television stations, the half-hour comedy took the country by storm and proved that bold, innovative programming was possible without network influence.

"There has been nothing else like it," Ms. Cassata said. It was an unethical, immoral show that defied all previous network standards and practices. "Mary Hartman" was in a class by itself, offering situations and experiences that were one viewer's chuckle, another viewer's cringe.

"Because it was so different and so popular at first, we want to find out what the social impact of the show has been," she said. So, Ms. Cassatta and Haun plan to survey 20,000 Americans in their study to find out what attracts them to daytime soap opera and to their nighttime parodies.

"MARY HARTMAN" AND the soaps are complete opposites, she said.

"One offers a very serious view of daily life where an intimate relationship is developed between the viewer and the characters. The other is a spoof where the viewer becomes more wrapped up in the bizarre incidents of the show than in the characters," she said.

Many viewers were drawn to "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman" after it premiered in January 1976 because they were never sure what wierd happenings they could expect from Mary and her friends, Ms. Cassata said.

One night viewers would watch as funeral services were held in Mary's immaculate kitchen for a sports coach who had drowned in a bowl of chicken soup. Another night Mary was forced to deal with the irregular behavior of her grandfather, who was a compulsive exhibitionist known as the "Fernwood flasher."

Another night Mary was kidnaped by a mass murderer, only after having watched her husband carry on an extramarital affair, over which she had a nervous breakdown.

"It wasn't just the suburban housewife getting hooked on 'Mary Hartman.' But, it was the intellectual, the professional, the blue-collar worker — everyone," Ms. Cassata said. "It was anyone who was interested in the zaniness and commentary on our lives that the show provided."

"VERY SADLY, FOR many people, a great deal of the underlying theme in the show has been very real. Mary Hartman made us realize that we are ruled by television advertisements and other forces in our society that dictate to us how we should look and act, and what we should buy," she said.

"Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman" had another plus going for it, and that was it never steered clear of the important issues. It dealt with the politics of a union through the eyes of Mary's husband, Tom. It dealt with the women's movement through a woman who came to Fernwood to promote equal rights for women in the bedroom.

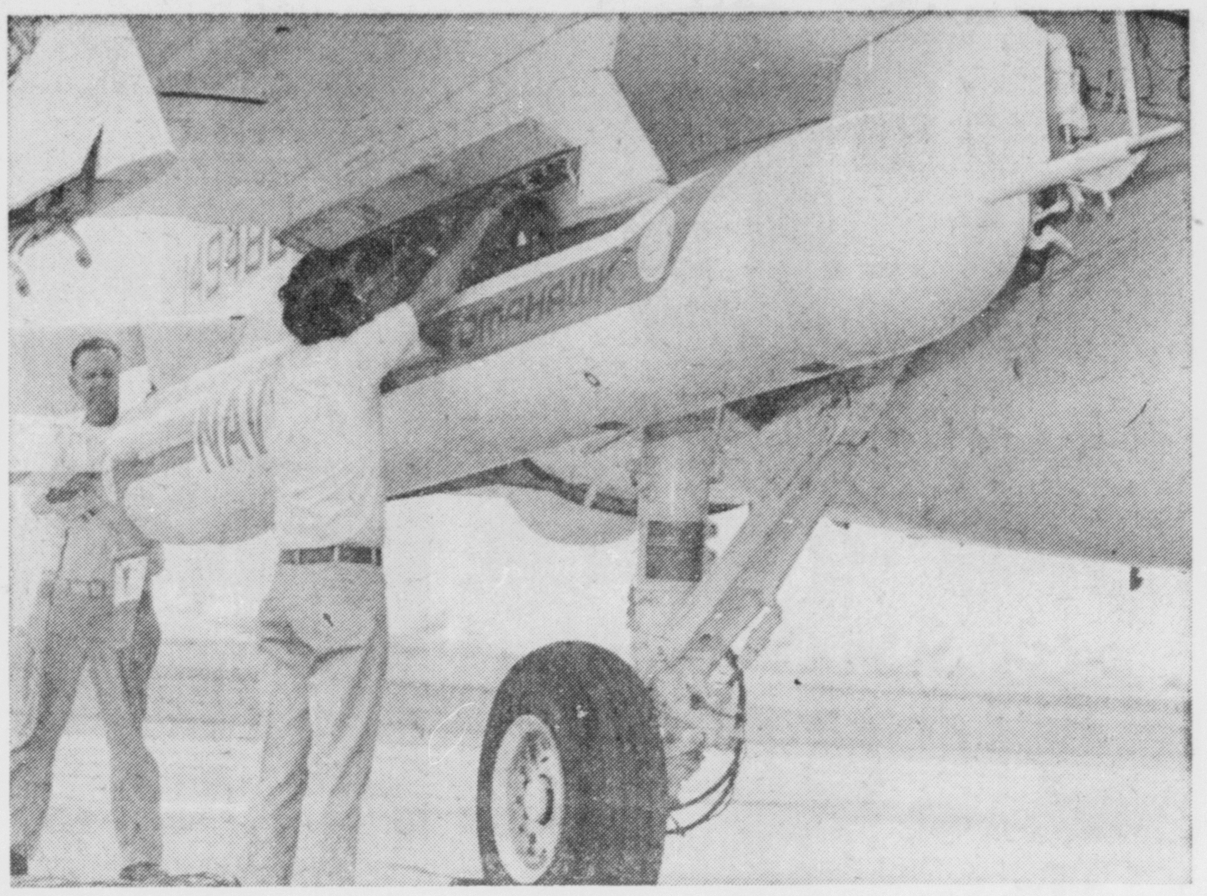
It dealt with a wife beating through Garth Gimble, who beat his wife regularly before she allegedly beat him to death with a Christmas tree.

The show might have approached the most serious of issues in a ridiculous manner, but it approached them none the less, Ms. Cassata said.

Why "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman" has been a short-lived success is quite another thing, however. It was a unique look at ourselves that viewers grew weary of quickly.

While daytime viewers remain loyal for years to the tedious trivia of everyday life portrayed in soap operas, they can lose themselves and their problems in these characters because they are real, Ms. Cassata said.

"In the case of 'Mary Hartman,' we can only laugh at what is a spoof on reality. Instead of providing viewers with a model to follow, like soap opera characters do, 'Mary Hartman' offered them ridiculousness," Ms. Cassata said. "It didn't last because somewhere along the line people just stopped laughing."



THE TOMAHAWK, designed and built by General Dynamics in San Diego, is the cruise missile President Carter said he wants to see developed in place of the B1 bomber. Convair said full production of the missile, which has been tested 22 times since General Dynamics developed the concept in 1972, could mean 2,000 new jobs in San Diego.

'Inevitable confrontation' set up by bomber rejection

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate conservatives, outraged over President Carter's decision not to deploy the B1 bomber, indicated Thursday they may press ahead in an effort to fund the aircraft and force a veto confrontation with the White House.

Liberals and political action groups hailed Carter's decision.

"Three cheers for the President!" said Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho. "We can now avoid squandering $100 billion on a 20th Century version of the Spanish armada."

SEN GEORGE McGovern, D-S.D., a longtime foe of the bomber, interrupted debate on a child nutrition bill on the Senate floor to say he was "deeply gratified."

But Rep. Saumel Stratton, D-N.Y., called the scrapping of more than 12 years of research "a very serious mistake," and Rep. Robert Dornan, R-Calif., said, "They are breaking open the vodka bottles in Moscow."

Dornan said the decision would cost 68,000 jobs in California, where B1 builder Rockwell International is located.

Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., senior Republican on the Senate Armed Services Committee, challenged Carter's assertion that cruise missiles can substitute for manned bombers.

TOWER SAID Congress may not "accept a cutback of the B1 bomber funds" already approved and, "in that regard the B1 issue remains very much alive."

Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker told a news conference: "I think that to forego B1 bomber production is to forego production of the only new weapon we have, and without knowing what we are going to get from the Russians.

"I think the B1 ought to be put into production at about the level Congress suggested."

The House has appropriated $1.4 billion for the first five $100 million planes and the Senate Appropriations Committee also has approved money for the B1, setting the stage for a battle before the full Senate.

"THE PRESIDENT'S decision sets up an inevitable confrontation between Congress and the White House," predicted Rep. James Jones, D-Okla. "I plan to do all I can to reverse the President's decision."

Sen. John Culver, D-Iowa, called the decision "the most constructive and courageous decision on military spending in our time." He said he would introduce an amendment to delete the B1 funding in the Senate.

Top Democrats rose to the support of the President, including Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd, who called the B1 "too great a gamble" for the cost.

But Donald Rumsfeld, who as secretary of defense under Gerald Ford ordered production of first models, said, "I know of no facts that have changed since my decision was made."

Former President Gerald Ford said the decision to cancel the B1 bomber was a mistake. "I strongly disagree with the president's decision," Ford told newsmen.

"It is a very risky gamble. He is relying on a B52 that is 20 years or more old, an aircraft that was developed in the 1950s. "He is also gambling on a cruise missile system that is still in the research and development stages," Ford said. "In my opinion it is too big a gamble and too much of a risk when you rely on a nearly obsolescent weapons system, the B52, and an as yet unproven cruise missile."

prehensive settlement, those matters are still open for discussion," he said.

Along with the bombers and missile submarines, the third leg of the American strategic "Triad" defense concept is its intercontinental ballistic missile force.

CARTER IS PLANNING to end further production of the present Minuteman III ICBM and has decided to go slowly in developing the next generation, known as the MX.

The MX, originally planned by the Air Force for deployment in the mid-1980s at a cost of $30 billion or more, would be based in underground tunnels and move through them to fool Soviet targeters.

Harper board wrapup

Auditors hired for administration

The auditing firm of Tadlock Associates Inc., of Los Altos, Calif., has been selected by the Harper College Board of Trustees to audit the college's administrative structure.

At a special meeting Wednesday, the board agreed to budget $10,000 for the study, to be completed within 60 days after the firm's representatives meet with the Harper board and administration early this month.

Board chairwoman Shirley Munson said the firm's first step will be to examine administrative effectiveness, and identify strengths and weaknesses, both those that can be remedied in a short time and those requiring long-range attention.

Mrs. Munson said the $10,000 fee is "like peanuts. It will be a very preliminary analysis. Not much depth is available at that price."

Although nearly every other division within Harper has been audited, it is the first time in the school's 12-year history that the administrative structure will be reviewed.

Administrators' salaries hiked

The board approved salary increases for administrators and set aside funds to increase administrative salary ranges and for merit raises.

The salary ranges were adjusted upward 3 per cent, making base and maximum salaries higher in each range, Mrs. Munson said.

An amount of $47,000 was set aside for these raises, and each administrator may receive an increase of up to 5 per cent, based on an evaluation by a supervisory rating team through College Pres. Robert Lahti's office.

The board also made available $10,000 for merit pay increases, to be distributed based on evaluation, she said.

Administrators will receive the same fringe benefits given Harper faculty members next year, Mrs. Munson said. The package, which will cost an estimated $5,060, includes medical and dental coverage and life insurance.

Mrs. Munson said an itemized list of administrative salaries will not be available until 1977-78 administrative contracts are signed.

House unseats Breslin for residency 'violation'

by STEVE BROWN
Of our Springfield bureau

SPRINGFIELD — State Rep. Peg McDonnell Breslin went home early Thursday night. She was not playing hookey from the last day of the legislative session — 91 of her colleagues voted to unseat her.

For the first time in 18 years, a sitting member of the Illinois House was removed as the result of an election contest.

Her crime? Mrs. Breslin, a Democrat, was elected to represent a district in Ottawa, but she had lived in Chicago practically until the time she filed her nominating petitions.

She beat 10 candidates in a primary election and won one of the three seats from the 38th Legislative District.

NOT ONLY WAS IT the first ouster in 18 years, the three-hour debate, on the issue probably eliminated any chance of the legislature breaking a 20-year tradition of missing its June 30 adjournment deadline.

Mrs. Breslin sat quietly in her blue padded high-backed chair with the state seal hitting her at the shoulders. Occasionally she would whisper to her seatmate Ray Christensen, D-Morris.

The vote, 91-74, to unseat her split parties and geographical coalitions that usually rule the legislature.

SHE STARTED THE proceedings with her hands gripping the arms of the swivel chair, turning slightly to listen to her supporters argue that her "intent" was to return to Ottawa, where she was born and raised but left to attend college, work and get married.

Others, including State Rep. Richard Mugalian, D-Palatine, and State Rep. Edward Bluthardt, R-Schiller Park, argued she had not met the residency requirement of living in her district two years before the November election.

They were certain because Mrs. Breslin voted in the primary and general elections in Chicago in 1975. She listed her Fullerton Parkway address in the city when she filed her income tax returns.

At the end, her supporters tried desperately to get three people to change their minds and vote to keep her. But they failed.

MRS. BRESLIN ROSE and said she thanked 'former fellow colleagues" as a packed gallery that had been as still as the legislators craned their necks over railings to look at the woman who rose above her desk, piled high with bill books, to speak one final time.

She said she enjoyed her six months in the House, she thanked them for teaching her the legislative process and noted that she had passed six bills during the session.

"I am not bitter, life is too short to be bitter," she said during brief remarks.

She stood to leave and in congruently her colleagues, even those who had said she was not eligible to sit with them, gave her a standing ovation.

HOUSE SPEAKER William Redmond, D-Bensenville, was agitated with the outcome. He ousted photographers because they tried to get some pictures without his permission.

Later Redmond only would say it was the "first time Democrats had voted to throw out Democrats."

He turned and walked away. Mrs. Breslin ducked into a side office, friends rushed in and turned everybody else away. The lawmakers would have to go back and finish the work of the session.

Mrs. Breslin, private citizen, could go back home, wherever that might be.

H.C. PADDOCK. 1852 - 1935

Pennant fever's a great disease

If you're 30ish or so, you can't keep from wondering why this couldn't have happened to the Cubs while you were growing up.

In those days the Chicago Cubs had a roster filled with paunchy, balding players on the final gasps of their careers and a corps of bright eyed kids who moved overnight from academia onto the playing field.

Big name players like Bob Buhl and Lew Burdette, known for their standout days with Milwaukee, and Don Zimmer, a former Dodger regular, played for the Cubs in their twilight years.

They had guys like Andre Rodgers, a former cricket player, as the team's shortstop. They once even used a left handed catcher in a game because they ran out of right handed ones.

Regardless, they were the North Side heroes. The problem was that their greatest hope was not to leap into first place but somehow to leap out of last. And sure enough, every once in awhile, a rival would end up below them in the standings.

You knew they couldn't win very often, but you rooted anyway.

And as the year of 1977 opened to the baseball season, you couldn't help but hark back to the hapless days of the Cubs.

After all, the 1977 Cubs had traded away their star player who led the league in batting for the last two seasons. They had traded Rick Monday, who became a national hero last year by rescuing the American flag when a rowdy jumped on the playing field and attempted to burn it.

The lineup featured several players whose limited careers were heaped in anonymity. They hired a senior citizen manager to run the band of youngsters, and he spent most of spring training spoofing the press rather than analyzing the play of his team.

The summer of '77 was expected to be a carbon copy of the horrendous days gone by. But today, the Cubs are the best team in baseball and the old propensity to lose has become the routine of winning. They're beating everybody.

The other day, they were two dozen games over a 500 win-loss percentage, and they hadn't lost a game in nine days.

You turn to the sports pages these days not to see whether they won but by how much. And that's a fan's euphoric dream.

It has been 32 years since the Cubs last won a pennant, and the law of averages tells us that failure can't last forever.

So relax and enjoy it. Pinch yourself if you want, but so far they're for real.

Freebies should all end

The Prospect Heights Park District is considering a change in its policy of free park privileges that is a small, inadequate step away from past practice.

The board has delayed until July 12 action on a proposal which would change the board's policy of giving free lifetime use of park facilities to former park commissioners and their families.

The proposed policy would limit free park privileges for former commissioners to a period of time equal to that they served the board.

In other words, a commissioner who served four years on the park board would be able to use park programs free for an additional four years. So would his family.

That change would be an improvement over the perpetual free use the park district presently grants former commissioners, but it is far short of the policy the district should have.

What the Prospect Heights Park District ought to do is to abolish its policy of granting free park privileges to both present and former board members. The freebies, though legal, are bad public policy because they put park commissioners in a special class, separate from the general public.

A Herald survey of park district practices earlier this year found that a number of park districts have policies which give free privileges to board members. Others, however, have banned the practice. Prospect Heights should join those who have banned freebies.

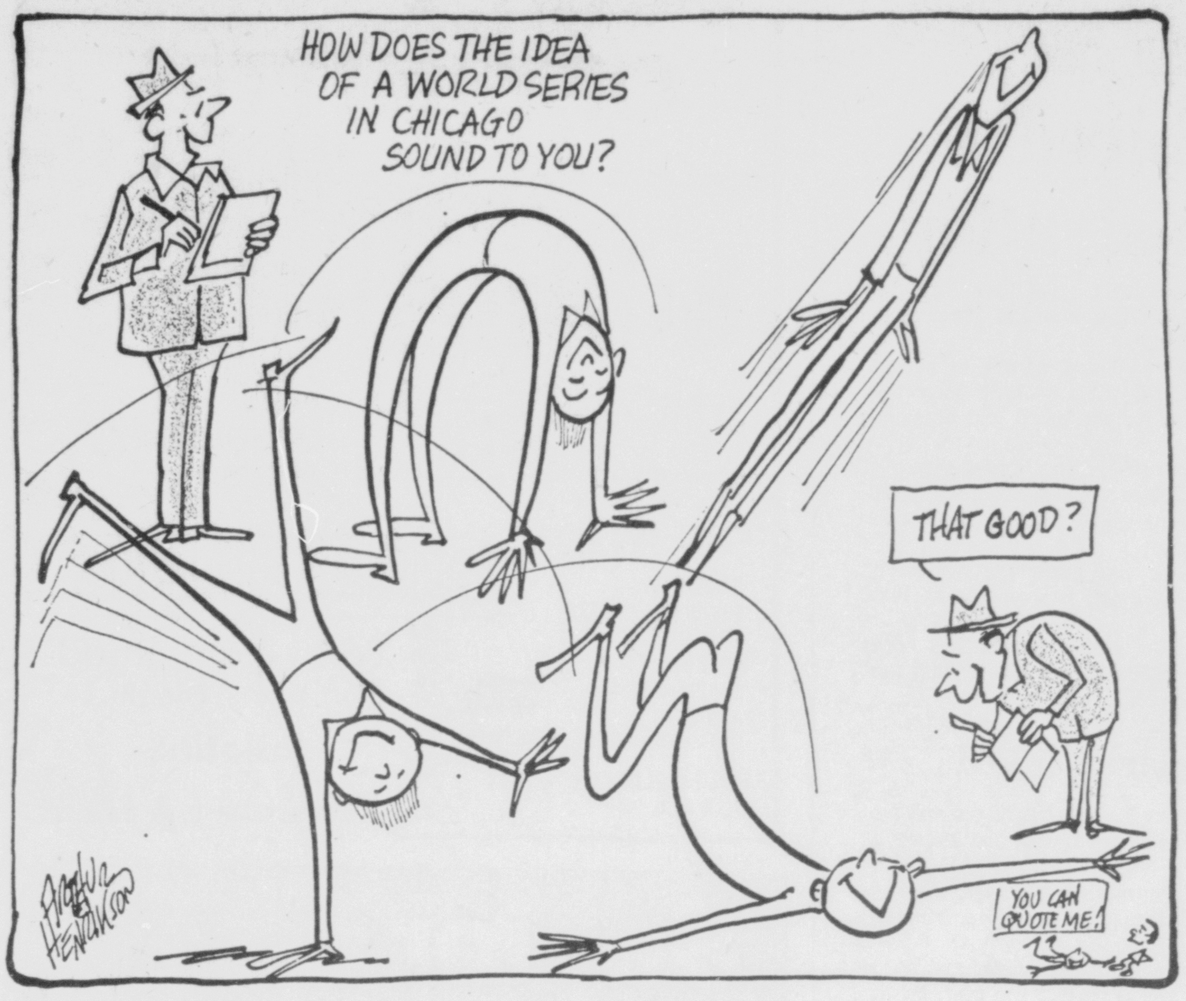
"The thing that bothers me most about growing old is the probability of becoming an unemployed teenager!"



Interview with L. D. (Longsuffrin Diedinwool) Fan.

It's God's revenge

Getting back at the back

Jim Bishop

The human back is, to my way of thinking, the most poorly organized part of human anatomy. Anyone can say a kind word for the heart, which will pump for 70, 80 or even 90 years without stopping. Or the brain which consists of three pounds of multi-million circuits and a storage memory.

The liver is a huge chemical factory which can be abused with the wrong solids and liquids for decades before it malfunctions. Even the plumbing system has a certain gravitational grandeur.

But the back — bah. What is it? A faceless, formless conglomerate of strap muscles held together by a necklace of beads called a spine, in which countless nerves emerge like an upside-down tree.

IT'S NOT EXCITING to look at. Women often bare them in the evening, but I never saw a man snort at shoulder blades. Piano movers have strong backs. So do wrestlers and football players. A lady could win a prize for a beautiful front, but you couldn't win bus fare for a gorgeous back.

I have a strong back. It comes from early years of working on an ice wagon and a milk truck. I was underpaid and overfed. In the nude I looked like a two-legged mule. Never, never did a date say "Hey, Jim, may I rub your back?"

In the autumn of 1963, President Kennedy and I talked of backs. He too was anti. He got steroid shots to ease the pain. He had a ruptured disc and wore a leather harness at all times.

HE THOUGHT the back was God's way of getting even. He had two discs fused. Kennedy wouldn't use the word pain. He called it discomfort, something he picked up from his surgeon.

When my back "goes out," which is about every four or five years, it does a handsome job of leaving the premises. If I ever become sufficiently well known to sponsor a disease, like those rich comics, I'm going to be known as the back man. Our slogan will be: "We're Behind Everybody."

THE LOWER-LEFT portion of my back went out yesterday. I swung a two iron in some rough. I could feel it as plainly as though I caught five fingers in the door of a bank vault. There were a series of small lightning bolts, followed by big ones which ran down the back of the leg.

There is nothing vague or diffuse about such a pain. It's there. It's alive. It's loud. Walking off the golf course I looked like a bobby pin with hair.

There are milions of you out there who are fellow sufferers, I know. My bed has more wood in it than Amy Carter's tree hut. I have less fun in mine than she does in hers. My wife, who also has a back pain, gave me two of each of the pills she had.

THEY DO NOTHING for pain, but they sure unscrew the head. For a couple of hours I wasn't sure whether I was Don Juan or Leonardo da Vinci. Of course I consulted my doctor.

Consulting means that two of us get to talk. I showed him where the pain was and he said, "Ah-ha!" This is hardly elaborate dialogue, but it proved that both of us knew where the action was.

He wrote a prescription and gave me a dissertation on his sinus and back-drip. You can guess which one gave the other $20. "Take a rest," he said. That's great, but from what?

A negligence lawyer once told me that back injuries are the most difficult to disprove. Whether it's whiplash or a wrenched muscle or tendon, it will now show up on X-rays.

NO MATTER where I try for a little shot of sympathy, the listener has a worse back. He never endures a pain — "it's sheer agony." He has given up on his doctor or all doctors. Worse, his physician has a bad back.

So, when anyone asks why I limp, I say it's an old war wound. Like malaria, it never goes away for long. This gets me by all except the wiseguys who ask "What war?"

As I write this, my wife is yanking chunks of hair from her scalp. Why I do not know. I didn't use the phone for more than a few minutes. I called two golf buddies — Ben Silberman and Sidney Schulman — to tell them I had wrenched my back.

They clucked with sympathy and asked what time tomorrow. All I said was make it an hour later, I need the rest . . .

Who should manage blind trusts?

Martha Angle and Robert Walters

In Washington

(Last of Two Related Columns)

Only three weeks after integrity-minded Jimmy Carter was sworn in as president, his staff proudly announced that virtually all of his personal assets were being placed in trust for the duration of his tenure in the White House.

The purpose of that action was to allow Carter to "be isolated from those of his assets most likely to be affected by actions of the federal government and it's agencies" — but that's easier said than done.

Despite the fact that countless government officials have relied upon similar arrangements, ostensibly to shield themselves from conflict of interest, there is no federal law or uniform set of regulations which provide guidelines for such trusts.

AS A RESULT, there are almost as many varieties of trusts as there are people who establish them. The Senate Governmental Affairs Committee now is in the process of drafting the first legislation ever to cover that sensitive area, and one of the most important provisions under consideration could cause problems for Carter.

That proposal would require that the trustee selected to administer an officeholder's assets should be an individual or institution qualified to maintain a truly arm's-length relationship with the beneficiary.

In most cases, the restriction would disqualify as administrator any man or woman who previously had been a personal friend or business associate of the public official.

During recent hearings, Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., chairman of the committee, posed the ethical problem in these terms:

"DO ANY QUESTIONS arise when a man employs a trustee who had been his personal attorney for many, many years or close friend for many, many years? Would not this arouse a question and suspicion?"

In Carter's case, the man who precisely fits that definition is Charles H. Kirbo, an Atlanta attorney who has done legal work for the President in the past and who is widely regarded as one of Carter's most trusted personal advisors.

The same Charles H. Kirbo also is the sole administrator of the trust established to isolate Carter from any potential conflict of interest.

Asked about that relationship on the day the Carter trust was revealed to the public, Robert J. Lipshutz, counsel to the president, insisted that "The basic element of integrity of the people who are involved" would preclude any improper collusion between Carter and Kirbo. "That is not the intent or the character of the people we are dealing with," added Lipshutz.

CARTER ISN'T the first president to select a longtime personal friend and business associate as administrator of a supposedly independent trust. President Lyndon E. Johnson placed most of his assets in a trust managed by A. W. Moursund, a banker and lawyer from Johnson's home town who in prior years had been both Johnson's friend and financial partner.

Similarly, Carter's Director of the Office of Management and Budget, Thomas B. (Bert) Lance, has selected an old friend, Dalton, Ga. businessman Thomas Mitchell, as administrator of a trust containing more than $5.6 million worth of stock, most of it in Georgia banks, as well as other assets.

Alan K. Campbell, chairman of the Civil Service Commission, told Ribicoff's committee that the Carter administration opposes as "too limited" a prohibition against personal friends and advisors as trust administrators. In fact, said Campbell, the public official ought to look for someone "in whom he has complete trust" to handle his finances.

But even if trustees Kirbo, Moursund and Mitchell are presumed to be men of great character and integrity, the nagging question remains: Would any of them risk their friend's personal fortunes in favor of a vaguely defined "public interest?"

Trial stories draw critics

What sort of professionalism do you attribute to your reporter for the Columbo murder trial, Dave Ibata? I'm truly tired of reading about sweet Patty's angelic face and perfectly arched eyebrows — and of poor Frank DeLuca and his love affairs at Walgreens, and of their ill-fated love affair.

Am I, having read less sympathetic accounts in other papers, supposed to foreget about the pornographic pictures of Patty with DeLuca's dog? Am I to forget the filthy mouth she used to the police? I'm not able to wonder about DeLuca's family of five children and his wife (called ignorant by Ibata) who have lived in the shadow of his previous extra-marital affairs and now horrified by the most vicious and ugly crime to haunt our suburbs.

I have a right, as a reader of public news, to see the facts which are being presented to the jury — and to watch their decision. I want to know the evidence in favor of and against Columbo and DeLuca. I do not want to know of their undying love, nor of her wardrobe. Your articles sound as if you're competing with the paperback novels on the newsstand — certainly not excellence in journalism.

I KNOW IT is one's privilege to choose not to read articles that displease. However, we all are aware of the influence the news media has on many Americans. So, if you're paying for something to read, you'd better well know what kind of news they are printing.

Specifically, I am referring to the half page article by Dave Ibata about Patricia Columbo's "lonely birthday!" Doesn't anyone in the media have the nerve or good sense to put her in the class she belongs? Why don't they say she is a spoiled, ruthless, immoral person and should be classed as such? Who really cares if she has lost her appetite, has a lonely birthday and has 100 changes of clothes?

On Nazi march

It was with interest that I read your editorial regarding the proposed Nazi march in Skokie. I've been trying to sort out my feelings and thoughts on the march and "Herr Frank Collin" . . .

An interesting sidelight to the infamous Collin's story is that his father was a Jew, born in Germany, who spent several months in the Dachau prison camp before being released in 1938 and coming to Chicago. His father was Max Simon Cohn, but changed his name in court to Collin. Frank's mother was a Roman Catholic. Very interesting, to say the least, especially since the Nazis lost no love on the Jews or Catholics. When the Nazi national organization found out about Frank's "tainted background," they tossed him out, but he still loves to click his heels and tongue here in Chicago.

Getting back to the proposed march . . . It seems to me that the Jews are in a "no-win" position. Should the Jewish people forego the Fourth of July holiday and stay silent, behind closed doors? Or, should they protest with an anti-Nazi march and run the risk of violence occurring on both sides? I think that either way, they'll be "damned if they do and damned if they don't"!!

If they stay silent, a large majority of people will say, "Well, what else did you expect; they've always been cowards — Hitler's troops marched them into prison camps and gas chambers and they didn't fight back. Nazis march in Skokie and again they hide in fear." On the other side of the coin, if they protest and violence occurs, a large majority of people will say, "So the Arab-Israeli battle isn't enough for them, huh? Now they have to cause trouble here, and even get the black gangs stirred up in the process."

So, either way, the Jews lose . . . "Damned if they do and damned if they don't" by the bigots and the large majority of non-thinking people. I don't know what's going to happen on the Fourth of July in Skokie — but this I do know . . . There will be no Independence Day in Skokie, or elsewhere, in the heart of any Jew or thinking person.

And he's absolutely harmless, as long as you push the right buttons.

Carter serves only himself, public interest as president

by JOSEPH C. HARSCH

According to the current issue of the Atlantic Monthly magazine, President Jimmy Carter is emerging as a Rockefeller Republican. He has been called less complimentary things in other periodicals. But most observers writing about him these days seem to have noticed that he is neither the soft-money populist nor the New Deal spender, which a lot of people seemed to assume he would be during last year's presidential election campaign.

I think I was the first columnist to examine the theory that he would not, as a President, be hostile to the interests of the business community. Indeed, immediately after the election I suggested the possibility that American conservatives probably would get more of what they think they want from a Carter administration than they probably would have had from a Ford administration. With that background, I feel entitled to suggest now that there is no accurate label for the Carter position to be found in the existing American political vocabulary.

THE LABEL OF Rockefeller Republican is ingenious and there is something to it, but not enough to be conclusive. He is not the aristocrat enjoying playing politics like a Franklin Delano Roosevelt. He is not a Woodrow Wilson idealist. Someone called him the most conservative Democrat since Grover Cleveland. Well, Harry S. Truman could be fairly conservative about a lot of things.

NONE OF THESE attempts to identify Carter in historical terms is satisfying. The reason, I think, is because Carter is making a new record and will come to be known by his own name as the label. He is himself. He is unlike any of his predecessors. We will learn what he is by his actions from day to day. Eventually when someone says another person is a Carter Democrat, we will all know what is meant.

So far, a Carter Democrat is a man who withholds making known his position on some particular issue until a decision has to be made and then it is made according to what seems to be the most practical and sensible course at the moment. It can be called pragmatic politics. It takes account of political as well as substantive realities. But it can rise above the pragmatic.

Dean Acheson used to assure Harry Truman that if one does "the right thing" one will be surprised how often it turns out to be successful and popular. Truman frequently did the right thing no matter how unpopular its prospects at the moment seemed to be. Truman had a remarkably successful record with Congress, and ultimately with public opinion. He did a lot of right things in his time at the White House.

IT SEEMS TO me that when it comes to such things as those dams so dear to the hearts of congressmen, Carter did the right thing. And it seems now that he is going to win out to the extent of restraining at least in part the old logrolling of Congress on any traditional "pork barrel" type of project.

Carter can't always win when trying to do the right thing. There are political realities. But he is certainly trying to curb wasteful spending by Congress. He is trying to move in the right direction on welfare reform. He is being practical rather than ideological about such matters as busing.

He is plainly aware of the increasing danger of inflation and is moving to curb it about as fast as is realistically possible. He has disappointed organized labor, where it probably should be disappointed, but not more so than he has disappointed the oil companies on the subject of energy.

The one clear message which comes out of all this is that Carter cannot accurately be labeled a man of the right, left or center. But he can be labeled as a man who is groping for the decision that will serve the general interest rather than the special interest.

THERE IS A general interest in every decision a president makes. The general interest sometimes overlaps with the special interests of special groups. One way to run the government of the United States is to cater to the interests of enough special groups to command a working majority in the Congress.

Carter is not doing that. He is forced at times to bow to the power of some one or another special interest. But it seems to me that by and large his record shows an effort to search for the decision that serves the general interest of the entire American community.

No one can possibly know whether he will continue to seek the policy or the decision that serves the general interest. No one can know how successful he will be if he continues along this course. But it is the best course for a president. It is what all presidents ought to do. It is what not all have done.

ERA opponents acted disgusting

As an attendee of the Illinois International Women's Year Conference in Normal, I was appalled by the physical violence visited upon a facilitator by a burly male organizer of Eagle Forum. I was disgusted by the verbal abuse suffered by the chairmen and parlimentarian, and the fake voting cards brought in by people opposed to the Equal Rights Amendment. I am ashamed of the ignorant women who have criticized the members of the planning committee for supporting ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment. These women support ERA because they have experienced the oppression that accompanies sexism, racism, and anti-Semitism. While rightwing women are entitled to let someone else do their thinking for them, the paecious arguments against ERA cannot go unchallenged. Having tired of the discredited potty excuse, the reactionaries have now focused on the "big lie" of homophobia, starring Anita Bryant as the newest darling of the know-nothings.

During the suffrage movement in which women spent sixty years working to gain the right to vote, laws against wife-beating were passed in most of the states. It seems that despite these laws, woman abuse is widespread and unpunished.

Pornography humiliates and degrades women. Second-class citizenship for women makes porn profitable to sellers and acceptable to purchasers of this material. Censorship of porn will not make it unprofitable. Social unacceptability of sexist attitudes will.

Old Glory lowered, SEATO dies

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — The Southeast Asia Treaty Organization, born 23 years ago from the fears of the Cold War, died quietly Thursday, unmourned.

The Stars and Stripes was the first of the flags lowered for the last time from SEATO headquarters Thursday afternoon. Nobody played taps and there were no officials present, except SEATO employes whose regular duty it has been since 1954 to raise and lower the flags at the Bangkok headquarters.

From Hanoi, Vietnam said the end of SEATO showed "the bankruptcy of a reactionary strategy mastermined by the United States in this region."

BECAUSE OF SEATO, founded at the instigation of the United States and including such farflung partners as Britain, France, Pakistan, the Philippines, Australia, New Zealand and Thailand, the tide of communism in Asia was staunched for perhaps a decade.

AN EMPLOYE OF the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization in Bangkok struggles under the weight of the eight-member country flags after their final lowering at Bangkok headquarters. SEATO Council of Ministers announced the phaseout of the anti-Communist organization in a press statement Thursday.

This was the strategy of the late Sec. of State John Foster Dulles, who repeatedly insisted that the allies "stem the tide of communism" in Asia.

His was a "policy of containment" — another of his pet slogans — against the threat from mainland China.

SEATO WAS technically a creature of Article Four of the Manila Pact.

Article Four was invoked by the United States and Saigon governments to get other member nations committed to the Vietnam War. Beneath what came to be called the "umbrella clause." Article Four included the Indochinese states of Cambodia, Vietnam and Laos.

Using arguments of Dulles, former Sec. of State Dean Rusk in 1964 convinced other member nations to send troops to Vietnam. Australia, New Zealand, the Philippines and Thailand all sent troops in proportion to their armed forces.

IN 1962, Thai Foreign Minister Thanat Khoman and Rusk used the SEATO pact to establish U.S. bases in Thailand. Eventually there were seven such bases housing 48,000 U.S. servicemen.

The bases were used to launch air raids over Vietnam.

But dissention began to tear away at the seams of SEATO within a few short, years.

In 1967, Pakistan withdrew in a huff because SEATO would not back up Karachi's fight against East Pakistan. Karachi lost and East Pakistan eventually became the modern state of Bangladesh.

FRANCE, in 1971, became disillusioned with the Vietnam War and withdrew its pledge of troops, although Paris continued to give money and technical advisers to SEATO.

And finally, the fall of Indochina to Communist troops sealed its fate.

An epitaph on SEATO that was printed in the official Nhan Dan daily newspaper in Vietnam Thursday would have saddened Dulles and Rusk.

It read: "The complete victories of the peoples of Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia over the U.S. aggressors and their stooges in 1975 were the decisive blow that sent SEATO to its grave."

Political pact sparks wave of terror in Italy

ROME (UPI) — A night of bombings and shootings from Sicily to the Dolomites Thursday followed an agreement by Italy's six major political parties to join together to crack down on political terrorism.

The hitherto feuding Christian Democrats, Communists, Socialists, Social Democrats, Republicans and Liberals all agreed on a program to try to halt political violence as well as to curb rampant inflation and unemployment. Only the neo-Fascists refused to support the agreement.

Until now, Christian Democratic Premier Giulio Andreotti has ruled under a deal in which the Communists and Socialists, who hold the balance of power, agreed to abstain in parliamentary votes.

UNDER THE NEW program of minimum support, the Christian Democrats refused to allow the Communists seats in the cabinet and the Communists refused any deal on freezing wages.

Had the Communists entered the government, Italy's future in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization would have been in question despite Communist leader Enrico Berlinguer's oft-stated vow to remain independent from Moscow and stay in the Atlantic alliance until a mutual balanced disarmament with the Warsaw Pact nations.

Several of the previously bickering parties claimed benefit from the deal.

THE CHRISTIAN Democrats claim they won by fighting off a demand by Communist leader Enrico Berlinguer to get seats in the government in exchange for his support.

Berlinguer demanded "a government of democratic unity in which the Communist party would have a share." But he said the agreement was a step forward to eventual Communist power-sharing.

No sooner had the agreement been reached Wednesday night when a wave of terrorism broke out from Catania in Sicily to Pordenone in the northeast.

Terrorists killed a night watchman, shot and wounded two Fiat executives, blew up three railroad cars loaded with electrical appliances at Pordenone, blasted a Spoleto prison wall, sprayed a police station with gunfire in Catania, wrecked a Rome high school, bombed a Bologna municipal office, blew up a car and tossed firebombs into the Rome homes of suspected rightwingers.

Relief fails as Cubs lose 2-1

ST. LOUIS — Cubs relief pitching failed to hold the lead here Thursday night leading to a 2-1 victory for the St. Louis Cardinals. The loss for the Cubs marks only the second time they have lost two straight since May.

A one-out, bases-loaded infield grounder by Ken Reitz scored Tony Scott with the winning run off pitcher Paul Reuschel in the bottom of the ninth. The Cubs' Keith Hernandez was responsible for filling the bases, as the left-hander yielded singles to Scott and Keith Hernandez before intentionally walking Ted Simmons.

A fifth-inning home run by Steve Ontiveros off Cards' starter Bob Forsch looked as if it might hold up, as Steve Renko, getting his first start of the season, held the hosts scoreless through six innings.

RENKO TIRED in the seventh and gave way to Bruce Sutter, who retired the side that inning but was touched for the tying run in the eighth. After Doug Rader singled with one out in the eighth, Lou Brock tripled to center to drive in Mike Phillips, pinch-running for Rader.

Brock was thrown out at the plate trying for a home run in the park. It was the fleet outfielder's only hit in the game billed "Lou Brock Night" in St. Louis.

Rawly Eastwick was credited with the victory, his first since coming to St. Louis, after the former Cincinnati Red retired the final Cub in the top of the ninth. Hernandez got the loss, his third.

The Cubs managed just three hits against Cardinal pitching. Ivan DeJesus singled to lead off the game, but was stranded at second. After Ontiveros' homer in the fifth, the only other hit was by Manny Trillo in the ninth.

THE CUBS WILL play St. Louis, one of their closest foes in the National League East race, nine times in 12 days. Three more game are scheduled to be played in St. Louis this weekend on Friday, Saturday and Sunday. The Cards come to Wrigley Field for a five game series the following weekend.

Renko looked strong in his start, allowing three hits and striking out six. It was the big right-hander's first start since September 1, 1976. He was on the disabled list from April 28 to June 1 this season after he underwent surgery to remove a nodule found on his thyroid.

Forsch was nearly as effective as Renko, lasting eight innings before leaving for a pinch hitter. Al Hrabosky pitched two-thirds of an inning in the Cubs' ninth before Eastwick retired the side with men on first and third bases.

BROCK'S TRY for a home run in the park produced the most humorous moment of the night. Trying to elude catcher Steve Swisher's desperate lunge to tag him, Brock leaped over and missed home plate. By the time he could reverse direction and try to come back to tag the plate, Swisher blocked his way with the ball.

Brock tried for several seconds to fake his way past Swisher, who eventually applied the tag.

SLOPPY TRACK conditions fail to prevent Ole Rumor from racing to an impressive victory in the third race Thursday afternoon at Arlington Park. The heavy rain helped bring some surprises over the nine-race card, but Ole Rumor paid only $6.80..See complete Thursday results and Ray Hallett's selections for today's races on page 2.

Experience shows on Herald all-star team

Here they are. The diamonds in the rough that were rough on the diamonds. Presenting the Herald's 7th annual All-Area Baseball Team.

Power, speed, pitching and defense are all standard equipment on this dream team. But perhaps the biggest asset on the club is experience. Eleven players are competition-hardened seniors.

College and pro scouts established headquarters in the Northwest suburbs and feasted on the showcase performers that include:

- Honorary captain Mike Marshall, one of the most talented home-grown athletes and complete baseball players, is miraculously only a junior.

- Bill Bilsley of Rolling Meadows who had a hit in his bat almost every other time he stepped to the plate.

- Peoria All-Star participants Rob Earhart and Bob Zuccarini, both from highly-successful Maine West.

Mid-Suburban League champion Buffalo Grove paced the selections with three choices while Maine West and Prospect each placed a pair of players on the club.

Forest View, Rolling Meadows, Conant, Palatine and Wheeling are all represented by one All-Area player.

In addition to the Dynamic Dozen, Herald sportswriters also named a 12-man Honorable Mention Team that features a pair of hard-hitting sophomores.

Meet the Herald's 7th All-Area Baseball stars:

MIKE MARSHAL
Player of The Year

PHIL CZOSNYKA

Buffalo Grove

The pitching of Phil Czosnyka was one of the main reasons Buffalo Grove's team ERA of 1.88 was best in the Mid-Suburban League. Czosnyka contributed an 0.73 mark to the team figure as he won five league games without a loss.

In almost 29 innings of work, he allowed only three runs. Czosnyka's pace-setting marks earned him a place on the all-conference team this year.

JIM McDONALD

Prospect

As Prospect's ace hurler, Jim McDonald turned in some of the most impressive stats in the Mid-Suburban League. His conference record was 5-0 to go along with an earned-run-average of 1.47 as he allowed only nine batters. He was also selected to the earned runs in 43 innings of work.

McDonald struck out 35 conference all-conference team for helping his team take first place in the MSL South with a 14-4 mark.

ROB EARHART

Maine West

Rob Earhart is celebrating his second, consecutive year on The Herald's All-Area team. He compiled impressive statistics at two positions, pitcher and outfielder. As a pitcher, the senior lefthander won nine games and lost only two. That record also includes 73 strikeouts, 14 walks and a 0.89 earned-run average. In three years of varsity baseball competition, Earhart's record was 25-3.

Besides pitching, Rob also played rightfield, batting .315. He'll attend Mississippi State this fall.

BILL BILSLEY

Rolling Meadows

The Mid-Suburban League's premier hitter, Bilsley cracked 24 hits in 53 trips for a phenomenal .453 average while guiding the Mustangs to a contending 12-6 record.

Included among the rips were four doubles, two triples and three homers which planted him third in the league's slugging department at a booming .717 mark. "The finest natu-

Home runs are special in any game

Bob Frisk

Sports Editor

The pitcher stares in hard, as if he is about to deliver a great sermon instead of a curve on the outside.

The batter waits. He waves his bat back and forth.

"There's a long drive . . ."

The crack of the bat tells the story. Home run! What a beautiful sight.

During the first two decades of the century hitting was a lesser art in a game that honored pitching and low scores.

THE CHANGE in baseball was dramatic as a gentleman named Babe Ruth appeared on the scene. It was not a gradual revolution but sudden and cataclysmic.

There is no hard evidence they pepped up the ball, but the figures leap out at you. There is overwhelming circumstantial evidence.

The owners weren't dumb. They saw the attendance figures. They understood what was happening.

The fans in the 1920s could not begin to appreciate the austere beauty of a well-pitched game, but they thrilled vicariously to the surging power of a Ruthian home run.

THERE'S ALWAYS been something special about the home run, and that's why it is astonishing to read about a professional softball league that actually wants to cut down on the homers. It boggles the mind that the home run would be looked upon as something evil.

Sure, it's softball, but this is still the home run they're talking about, the ultimate offensive weapon.

"It really gets to be a little boring," said Milt Pappas, field manager of the Chicago Storm in the American Professional Slo-Pitch Softball League. Pappas had just seen his club hit 19 home runs in a seven-inning game.

THERE IS talk of adjusting the arc of the pitched ball, tossing out the limitations that currently exist in the professional league. That obviously would help the pitcher.

"I know what we can do, but not this year, and that would be to move the fences back," said Frank Mariani, general manager of the Storm. The stadium fences are 292 feet down the foul lines.

The idea of re-designing playing fields by either bringing in the fences or cutting down on their height is nothing new to Chicago, but it does show the impact of the home run and how clubs try to work around it.

The fences rate almost annual consideration at Comiskey Park where the White Sox brass try to give their team an advantage for the 81 home games. Bring them in? Move them back?

THE SOX shuddered over their pitching staff this season (as they should have) but had no idea what kind of hitters they would field. They didn't move the fences in, much to the chagrin of Richie Zisk.

It's interesting how dimensional alterations have been made in big league ball parks and almost invariably the original contour was restored after the opposition began slamming more home runs than the good guys.

The White Sox tried to give specific aid to Al Simmons, after acquiring him in the fall of 1932. Simmons, after hitting 35 for the A's in 1932, found the shortened Comiskey Park fence no help as he dropped to 14, 13 and 16 homers over the next three years.

The classical case was the Sox in 1949 when Frank Lane, then general manager, decided to give his punchless team a lift.

AFTER WATCHING his puny hitters try to reach the Comiskey Park walls, Lane had a temporary wire fence constructed to reduce the foul line distances to 330 feet.

Lane made the changes in early June and the first team in town was Washington, which didn't have any more power than the White Sox. But, in three games, there were 14 home runs, most of them by the Senators.

Even Floyd Baker, a notorious banjo-hitter, lifted a drive over the new fence for the first homer of his career. That was enough for Lane, since the next invaders were the Yankees.

During the night Lane called Leo Dillon, the Comiskey Park superintendent, and ordered the fence ripped out. It was gone by the time the Yankees arrived.

LANE'S FENCE accomplished one thing. It put a new rule in the book. No longer can a change be made during the season. The distances in effect at the start of the year must remain in effect.

When the Pirates had both Hank Greenberg and Ralph Kiner in 1947, they shortened the left field fence from 356 to 335 by erecting a bullpen across the area.

It was called Greenberg Gardens and Hank, then 36, hit 25 homers that season and Kiner 51. It became known as Kiner's Korner.

With the decline of Kiner in the mid-1950s the bullpen was removed again.

SOME FANS say they favor a triple up the alley as the most exciting hit because there is action everywhere, but the home run is still that majestic stroke that lifts a crowd, a team.

They can legislate all they want and re-design the playing fields, but there is still nothing quite like a ball sailing in a high arching parabola over a distant fence.

Allowance feature today

Ten 3-year-old fillies, nine of which are nominated to the July 9 $40,000 added Smart Deb Handicap, have been named to contest Friday's $12,000 allowance feature, dubbed the Smart Deb Prep, at Arlington.

Splendid Size, three-for-three in 1977, will be trying the grass for the first time, and her ability to go the route distance, one mile here, will be tested for the initial time. Spendid Size has won twice at six furlongs and another at six and one-half.

Two couplings are among Friday's hopefuls. From the powerful Weipert barn comes Great Miracle and Rich Soil, and the always dangerous Bob Holthus named Native Blossom and Proper Princess.

Propagator, Ludova and Saxon's Secret will be making their first Chicago appearances. Propagator won two in a row at Pimlico in May, both times at 8½ furlongs, one of which was on the grass. The Grover Delp trainee thus rates much consideration in this spot.

Like Ducks and Cent Anny complete the field.

CHILD STAR. Greta Andersen, an Olympic gold medal swimming winner in 1948, beams her approval as star student, eight-month-old Frederick Garcia, swims on his back in Los Alamitos, Calif. Garcia is the youngest ever to pass the water safety beginner's test in California.

Faces Connors next

Borg takes classic duel

WIMBLEDON (UPI) — Sweden's Bjorn Borg outlasted New Yorker Vitas Gerulaitis 6-4, 3-6, 6-3, 3-6, 8-6 in a three hour center court duel Thursday that will go down as one of the greates in Wimbledon's 100-year history and set up the predicted final with top seed Jimmy Connors Saturday.

Connors, stretched to four increasingly difficult sets by 18-year-old John McEnroe, defeated the Douglaston, N.Y., amateur 6-3, 6-3, 4-6, 6-4 in the first semifinal.

But the tension developed in the Connors-McEnroe match was soon eclipsed by the superb sequel served up by two players at the peak of their form.

THE 15,000 crowd, realizing they would be lucky to see another such classic match, cheered both players off the court and British television delayed its main news program to show viewers the enthralling climax.

Borg now the first set with a single service break in the opening game and Gerulaitis, seeded eighth, replied in the second set by breaking Borg in the sixth game to even it up.

They traded the third and fourth sets in similar manner and the final set began with a stream of inch-perfect lobs, scorching passing shots, deadly volleying and specatular retrieves that were emotionally draining to watch.

GERULAITIS APPEARED to have the edge when he broke Borg's service to love to go 3-2 up with a succession of textbook volleys.

"I was really worried when he had that break in the fifth set because if he had held his service it would have been all over I think," said Borg afterwards.

But the Swede dug deep into his reserves and when Gerulaitis was leading 40-30 produced two backhands that he will remember for a long time.

"If he had won that point he would have won the match but I broke back on some very good backhands," Borg said.

IT WAS TO BE the turning point of the match.

It went to 6-6 on service and then 7-6 to the Swede to make Gerulaitis serve for the third time to stay alive.

The blond New Yorker, one of the very few men who can match Borg for speed around the court, went 15-40 down. On the first match point, both players moved up to the net and Borg's volley was met by Gerulaitis, whose reflex forehand just dropped wide.

"I have never played that well over five sets," said Gerulaitis. "It hurt me not to win and get into the finals. Two years ago I wouldn't have minded."

BORG SAID HE looked forward to meeting Connors in Saturday's centennial final, particularly after beating the Belleville Ill., left-hander in Florida earlier this year.

"I am really looking forward to meeting Jimmy, especially here at Wimbledon. I have a good chance."

Connors will have to raise his game to stay with Borg Saturday if his match against McEnroe was anything to go by.

Connors' volleying was anything but sharp and McEnroe, the youngest player to get into the men's semifinals and the only one to do it after coming through the qualifying tournament, made the top seed fight for every point.

CONNORS BEGAN with something of a tennis lesson for McEnroe, who clearly was not used to handling such hard and precise returns. But he learned quickly and in the third set was reading his opponent's game perfectly.

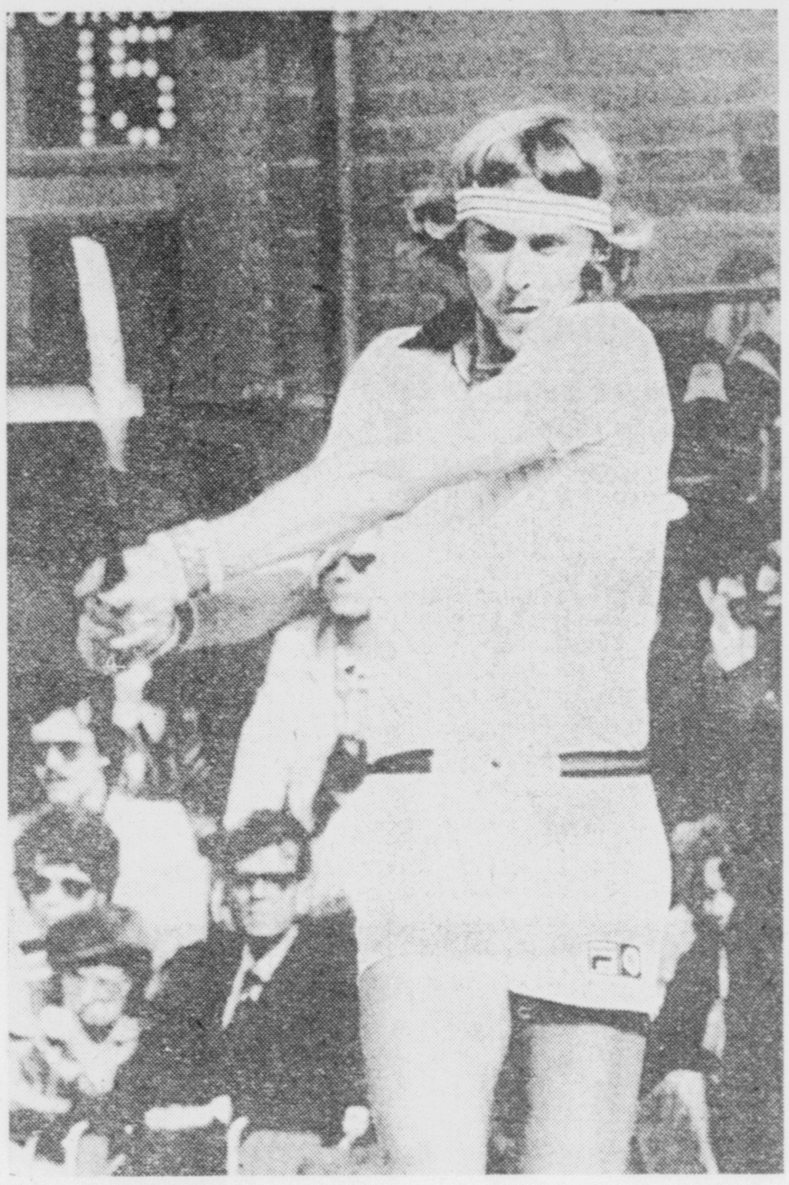
He seemed encouraged by Connors' errors and in the third set where there were 10 service breaks, got the crucial one with three perfect backhand passes that gave him the set.

Connors looked ruffled but his usual guts and determination, which help him win even when he plays badly, came in during the final set when he broke through in the seventh game and sat on the lead to win.

"HE'S PRETTY difficult to play," conceded Connors of his rival who as an amateur was not able to collect his $6,800 loser's purse. "He tries for shots from impossible positions and sometimes he makes them. He has a good future if he works at it."

The men's doubles final will be an all-Australian affair. Ross Case and Geoff Masters easily beat Briton Mark Cox and Cliff Drysdale of South Africa 6-1, 6-4, 6-1 but John Alexander and Phil Dent only just squeaked by Australian Bob Carmichael and California Brian Teacher 8-9, 6-1, 9-7, 2-6, 6-4.

Billie Jean King's search for a record 20th overall title continued when she and Dent teamed up to reach the semifinals of the mixed doubles with a 6-3, 1-6, 9-7 win against Raz and Kerry Reid.



BJORN BORG, Swedish holder of the men's singles title, slams ball back to Vitas Gerulaitis during their semi-final match Thursday at Wimbledon. Borg won a three-hour marathon, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3, 3-6, 8-6.

Hunter's Irish football playing days could end

SOUTH BEND, Ind., (UPI) — Notre Dame football star Al Hunter is considering court action over his suspension from the fall semester for violating university rules, his attorney said Thursday.

Robert Stephan said Hunter, who last season became the first Irish ballcarrier to gain more than 1,000 yards, would make a statement next Wednesday or Thursday.

"He is considering some litigation," Stephen said. "Until then, I rather not comment further."

HUNTER WAS accused of visiting the room of a female student during "after hours." He was cleared of the charges in a university judicial hearing but that ruling was overturned.

The ruling was found faulty by an appeals board convened in early June by James Roemer, Notre Dame's dean of students. The appeals board ruling to suspend Hunter was confirmed by the Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh, Notre Dame's president.

Thus, officials said, the only recourse still open to Hunter is through the courts.

Hunter and five other Notre Dame football players were suspended for a dormitory rules violation in 1974. All sat out that season on probation.

NCAA RULES stipulate a player may have only four years eligibility in a five-year period. By being barred from the Irish this fall, Hunter would exhaust his athletic eligibility.

Hunter gained 1,053 yards in 233 carries last season and had another 102 yards in the 20-9 Gator Bowl triumph over Penn State.

Three ways we can save you money on auto insurance

good students

Good students seem to do a lot of things differently. One of them is drive better, or maybe they just spend more time studying and less time on the road . . . but good students are involved in fewer accidents. So, at American Family they pay less for their auto insurance.

2 car families

Two cars. The same family. If both cars are insured by the same company, the paperwork and service should be a lot easier and more efficient . . . so your insurance should cost less. At least, that's the way we operate! We give two car families a discount on their auto insurance.

low mileage

If you're a low mileage driver, it stands to reason that you should pay less for your insurance. And you will . . . if you go with American Family. We save low mileage drivers money on auto insurance.

Of course, these are only three ways we can save you money on your auto insurance. There are more. Why not call us today and see how much money we can save you.

House speeds probe into TV-sports link

WASHINGTON — A House subcommittee Thursday announced a stepped up investigation into whether television networks have begun to "control" the sports events they broadcast.

Rep. Lionel Van Deerlin, D-Calif., chairman of the Commerce subcommittee on communications, said the panel will look into:

"Alleged improprieties" relating to ABC's involvement in promotion of the U. S. Boxing Championships; CBS' "winner take all" tennis matches in which, Van Deerlin said, players were paid win or lose; NBC's contractual arrangements to broadcast the 1980 Olympics from Moscow.

"In general, we will try to determine whether the networks have become so involved with arranging, promoting and scheduling sports events that they, in effect, have come to control those events," Ban Deerlin told a news conference. "In other words," he said, "is the public seeing an independent event covered by electronic journalists or an event staged for and controlled by television?"

He said the panel also would investigate: contracts between the NCAA and networks for the coverage of collegiate sports. He said these result in some games going uncovered; network broadcast practices involving the National Football League, National Basketball Association, National Hockey League and professional baseball, particularly provisions for exclusive telecasts; exclusive contracts between networks and athletes.

Colleges fight for tax-exempt status

WASHINGON — Three major universities and the Cotton Bowl Association told the Internal Revenue Service Thursday they could not afford a challenge to the tax-exempt status of the income their athletic programs receive from radio and television.

If the IRS follows through on a threat to tax radio-TV money as unrelated business income, colleges and universities across the nation could be faced with a reported $150 million bill for back taxes and interest.

In addition, the schools would have to pay nearly one-half of their future radio-TV income in taxes, a development which college sports officials say would "lead to the destruction of intercollegiate athletics."

Sheldon Cohen, a former IRS commissioner now representing the Cotton Bowl as an attorney, and representatives from TCU, SMU and Kansas discussed the potential ruling for three hours with a battery of IRS attorneys and administrators behind closed doors at IRS national headquarters.

Rain delays Greater Milwaukee Open

MILWAUKEE — With the course swept by heavy rain just after daybreak and little hope of a letup, officials cancelled today's opening round of the 10th annual Greater Milwaukee Open golf tournament.

The field will play 18 holes today and Friday and 36 on Sunday, officials said.

Lee Trevino was on the telephone when he heard the crackling boom of thunder and lighting.

"I calmly hung up and got under the bed," said Trevino, who had a brush with lightning at the Western Open two years ago in Chicago. Trevino and his fellow pros didn't want anything to do with the 7,010 yard Tuckaway Country Club course on a rainy day.

New college conference announced

CHARLESTON — Formation of a new athletic conference including Eastern Illinois University, Western Illinois University and four other schools was announced Thursday, an EIU spokesman said.

The Mid-Continent Athletic Association includes, in addition to the Illinois schools, the University of Akron (Ohio), the University of Northern Iowa, Northern Michigan University and Youngstown State (Ohio) University.

The conference has been in the planning stages for 30 months, the spokesman said, and conference competition is to begin in the fall of 1978.

Search for prized filly moving slow

FRANKFORT, Ky. — State police and the FBI said late Thursday that there has been little movement in the search for the stolen Fanfreluche, a former North American filly champion in foal to superstud Secretariat March 10.

The prized filly was stolen from Claiborne Farm, northeast of Lexington in Kentucky's central Bluegrass horse country last weekend, and she has not been seen since.

Phils bombard Pirates, 8-1

From Herald Wire Services

NL baseball

Mike Schmidt's 14th homer of the month tied a National League record and paced an 11-hit attack Thursday night to spark the Phillies to an 8-1 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates in Philadelphia.

Steve Carlton gave up six hits and struck out eight in notching his 10th win against four losses.

The Phillies jumped on loser Odell Jones for four runs in the first inning. Bake McBride tripled and scored on Larry Bowa's single. Bowa went to third on a single by Schmidt and scored on Greg Luzinski's sacrifice fly. Garry Maddox followed one out later with a two-run homer.

The Pirates scored in the third on Phil Garner's homer. But the Phillies came back with two in their half of the inning on RBI singles by Luzinski and Tim McCarver. Schmidt's homer in the fourth, a two-run shot, was his 21st of the season. He tied a league record set by Ralph Kiner who hit 14 homers in June 1947.

IN CINCINNATI — Dan Driessen rapped three singles and George Foster added a single and a double as the two teamed to drive home six runs and lead the Reds to a rain-delayed 11-5 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

Woodie Fryman, with relief help from Joe Henderson and Dale Murray, gained his fourth victory against five losses.

The Reds took a 1-0 lead in the first inning off loser Ed Halicki, 7-7, when Joe Morgan walked, stole second and scored on Driessen's single.

A walk to Morgan, singles by Driessen, Foster, Cesar Geronimo and Rick Auerbach gave the Reds a 4-0 lead in the third inning and they went ahead, 6-0, in the fourth when Foster followed walks to Ken Griffey and Morgan with a double. Driessen's third single scored Morgan to increase the lead.

IN ATLANTA, Darrel Chaney drilled a one-out single in the bottom of the ninth inning to score Jeff Burroughs with the winning run and give the Braves a 5-4 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

The Braves tied the score at 4-4 when Gary Matthews led off the ninth with a homer off reliever Charlie Hough. Burroughs then drew a walk off and Biff Pocoroba followed with a double sending Burroughs to third. Chaney followed with his run-scoring single, which gave Phil Niekro his seventh victory against nine losses.

IN MONTREAL, pinch-hitter Mike Vail scored Lee Mazzilli from third base on a fielder's choice in the ninth inning to give the New York Mets a 4-3 victory over the Expos that moved them out of last place in the National League East.

Mazzilli led off the ninth with a double and advanced on Joel Youngblood's sacrifice. Vail's slow roller was fielded by third baseman Wayne Garrett but Mazzilli scored as Garrett threw Vail out at first.

The Mets had tied the score in the seventh when losing pitcher Steve Rogers, 9-7, walked Bruce Boisclair with the bases loaded to force in Mazzilli. Reliever Bob Apodaca earned the victory.

SPECIAL MOMENT. Seven-year-old David Haller of Milford, Mich., a March of Dimes poster child, talks with his idol, Mark "The Bird" Fidrych of the Detroit Tigers. Fidrych has been honored for his volunteer efforts with the March of Dimes. David's father, William Haller, looks on.

No reason for booing says 'Bird'

DETROIT (UPI) — Mark Fidrych has a favor he'd like to ask 51,745 fans: Don't boo the manager.

"The Bird" was critical of but not upset with his audience after they cheered practically his every move in his sixth straight victory, a 7-2 game that was both the Detroit Tigers fourth straight win and the sixth consecutive defeat for the Boston Red Sox.

"When the guys are winning why should they boo the manager?" Fidrych asked. "They should be giving the manager yeas, not boos.

"THERE'S A TIME and a place to boo and it's not when we're winning 4-2 and the manager walks out to the mound," Fidrych said.

Tiger Stadium's largest crowd of the season — and second largest ever to see Fidrych pitch at home — booed Manager Ralph Houk loudly when he came out to settle his pitcher down in the seventh inning.

Fidrych had given up his first home run of the season to Butch Hobson after 66 homerless innings. Hobson's homer, his 13th, came with one out and was followed by a walk to Denny Doyle.

THEN HOUK strode to the mound. No one was warming up in the bullpen.

"All he said when he came out was, 'Well, you've broken your maiden with the home run. I don't think they're going to get three runs off you in the next two innings, do you? Well, go get 'em,' " Fidrych said.

"The Bird" has yet to lose a game in the eighth or ninth innings and the crowd knows this, which is why they gave Houk a loud cheer when he walked back to the dugout after his visit with Fidrych.

"THEY SHOULD LET Ralph have a little bit of air," Fidrych said earnestly. "Give him some breathing room. I don't think they should be booing him. They should be yeaing him. He needs more yeas.

"It makes me feel bad to hear them boo him," Fidrych said. "It makes me think they think he's a horseflap manager. And he's not. He's a good manager. I'd like to see us in a World Series and him go out there . . ."

White Sox rest for Twins; Yanks beat Toronto, 11-5

From Herald Wire Services

AL baseball

The White Sox and Minnesota Twins took a day off from their close battle for first place Thursday. For the past two weeks, no more than one game has separated the American League West clubs.

The Sox are currently one game behind the Twins, who will be in Chicago for a four-game series starting tonight. The entire West Division was idle Thursday.

IN THE EAST, Cliff Johnson hit three homers, including a major league record-tying two in an eight-run eighth inning, when he drove in four runs and led the New York Yankees to an 11-5 victory over the Blue Jays in Toronto.

The Yankees scored eight runs in the eighth on four home runs started by Johnson's first of the inning. After Reggie Jackson grounded out, Lou Piniella followed with another solo homer and Graig Nettles singled.

Bucky Dent flied out and Willie Randolph singled. Mickey Rivers singled to score Dent and then Thurman Munson stroked a three-run homer. Chris Chambliss then doubled and scored on Johnson's second homer of the inning and 14th of the year.

THE YANKEES scored the first run in the third inning when Randolph walked, reached third on Rivers' single and scored on Munson's sacrifice fly. Johnson hit his first home run of the game in the fourth to make the score 4-0.

Doug Rader hit a solo homer for Toronto in the fifth. Bob Bailor singled to right with the bases loaded in the eighth and three runs scored for Toronto when Jackson mishandled the ball for a two-base error.

The victory allowed the Yankees to move a half game behind the division-leading Boston Red Sox. Boston's game with the Detroit Tigers was postponed because of rain.

IN CLEVELAND, Frank Duffy, who entered the game hitting .199, belted two home runs and Wayne Garland scattered five hits to pace the Indians to a 4-2 victory over the Baltimore Orioles in a game called after 6½ innings because of rain.

Duffy, who hit only two homers last season and one in 1975, hit an 0-1 pitch into the left field stands leading off the third and ended the Cleveland scoring by sending a Ross Grimsley fastball into the left field seats for his fourth homer of the year.

Area softball sluggers will test their skills

Chicago area softball sluggers will have another opportunity to test their prowess — in the Third Annual Home Run Contest, co-sponsored by Hamm's Beer and the Windy City Softball Assn.

This year there will be six categories: Men 6'0" and over; Men under 6'0"; Men 40-years-old or more; Women 5'6" and over; Women under 5'6". Trophies and 10 cases of Hamm's Beer will be awarded to first place winners in each category.

Those winners will then go on to compete in the sixth category: Open Class, to determine an over-all winner. The final winner will receive a giant trophy and 25 cases of Hamm's Beer!

Each contestant must be sponsored by one of the following:

1. A Chicagoland bar, tavern, disco, lounge or restaurant.

2. A Chicago-area fraternal or social organization.

3. The Windy City Stadium: applicable only for the open class of competition.

Registration has started and will terminate at midnight, July 15. Registration forms are available from the Windy City Stadium (593-9000) or in local participating taverns. The participants must be of legal drinking age.

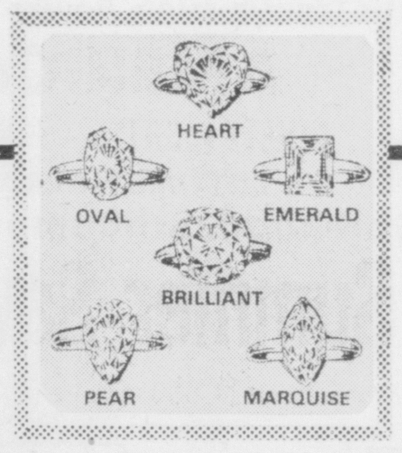
Finals in each category will be announced as competitive rounds are completed. The target date for the finals will be the weekend of Aug. 6 and 7. The top three finalists in the Open Class will each appear in a special exhibition during the 1977 Hamm's — Windy City World Series of Softball, beginning Sept. 6.

Pro soccer players to be at Woodfield

Chicago Sting players will appear in the Grand Court at Woodfield July 18 and 19 at 7 p.m. each night.

Alex Skotarek, team captain, and three others from the squad will be on hand to sign autographs, give a demonstration and conduct a discussion with fans.

Ron Moore, who recently scored five goals in one game, will also be at the event, which is free.



There are six basic shapes to which diamonds are cut. However, not all shapes can be cut from all rough diamonds. That's why some diamond cuts are more expensive than others of the same weight. All Frank's diamonds, regardless of shape, are cut with full 58 facets for maximum brilliance. This is the only acceptable standard of diamond cutters throughout the world.

Versatile Marshall puts baseball No. 1

by KEITH REINHARD

The big secret about Mike Marshall turns out to be no secret at all.

Mike Marshall. He's that big kid over at Buffalo Grove who does so many things so well. It wasn't too many years ago that he went to the nationals of the Punt, Pass and Kick contest and everyone figured that he would emerge someday as a great football player.

It was the same Mike Marshall who led his team on golf team to the state finals in Champaign this past fall. People might have surmised from that effort that his future was on the pro golf circuit except Mike Marshall didn't spend much time basking in the glory of it before joining with another outstanding Buffalo Grove group to tack up the winningest basketball season in the history of the area.

Just what sport does this prep super star favor? "It's baseball all the way," is Mike's own reply.

It should come as no surprise then that the 6-4 junior capped the year by pitching and hitting the Bison to a conference baseball title. And for his efforts he has been named to head this year's Herald All-Area diamond lineup as baseball Player of the Year.

"A great natural all-round athlete," is the way his baseball (and golf) coach Fred Van Iten describes Marshall. "Mike is one of those rare gems who comes along all too infrequently with the ability and talent to be a consistent winner."

The statistics speak for themselves. On the mound Mike fashioned a stellar 1.84 ERA that ranked him sixth in the Mid-Suburban League and he was ninth in the circuit in strikeouts.

WITH A BAT in his hands, Marshall rapped out base hits at a .386 clip to place seventh, was 12th in slugging at .596 and tied for third in the MSL in home runs.

If the big question about Mike's favorite sport is now settled, however, it tends to raise another one. Would he rather pitch or hit?

"That's a tougher one to answer," Marshall replied. "I definitely feel a lot more pressure when I pitch but that doesn't really bother me. I do notice that my hitting suffers when I'm concentrating on pitching though and I guess if I had to make a choice I'd rather be hitting and playing every day at first base."

Despite his young age, Mike is no newcomer to either baseball or Buffalo Grove. Born in Libertyville, his folks moved to their present home town before he was one year old and most of the people lived among the cornfields until the housing boom hit in the late '60s.

MIKE CAME up through the system . . . Little League, Pony League, Colt, Babe Ruth and Legion . . . drawing perhaps his greatest thrills from a pair of back-to-back no-hitters and a couple of three-homer games. He made his decision not to pursue football around the same time he underwent a knee operation his freshman year.

Mike credits his father for introducing him to athletics and providing the encouragement to keep it going. "He introduced me to both baseball and golf and he was my coach and my inspiration all through those early years."

Now this young man is doing some inspiring of his own and Buffalo Grove High School is all the richer for it.

And the school will have another whole year to enjoy the efforts of the Herald's baseball Player of the Year.

ral hitter in either division," was one coach's summation.

DAN McSWEENEY

Palatine

"The best receiver in this area for the past five years," was the way one opposing coach valued this Palatine senior. But if catching this was strength, hitting certainly didn't hamper his aggressive style.

McSweeney rattled the diamond for a fat .400 average off 22 hits. His power was endorsed by four doubles and three home runs for a robust .636 slugging percentage. The Pirates rode McSweeney's bat to an 8-9 record in the North Division of the Mid-Suburban League.

MIKE LEDNA

Buffalo Grove

Mike Ledna, the sure-handed Buffalo Grove shortstop, was a key figure in the Bison's drive to the Mid-Suburban League title. He batted .354 in the conference and his seven stolen bases was among the league leaders.

Ledna is a veteran of the All-Area team as he also earned a spot on the select roster last year. His impressive statistics and field leadership made him one of only three unanimous choices on the 1977 all-conference team.

RICK HEREDIA

Wheeling

Wheeling's Rick Heredia was a mainstay at second base. At the plate, he batted .333 in Mid-Suburban League games, a figure that was second to only Bill Knuth on the Wildcat team. He was also a co-leader with Knuth in runs scored with 21.

Heredia's slugging percentage of .704 was fourth best in conference play as he collected 33 total bases in 54 at-bats. His fine season earned him a spot on the all-conference team.

LARRY DAHL

Forest View

Forest View's Larry Dahl served double duty on the Falcon squad this spring, playing the infield and pitching. Both places he accumulated some impressive statistics, including the Mid-Suburban League leadership in home runs with five.

Dahl had a .346 batting average, and he drove in 14 runs to rank him in a tie for seventh in the category. As a hurler, he was 5-1. His 41 strikeouts was eighth best in the league. Larry was a two-time all-conference selection.

BOB ZUCCARINI

Maine West

Maine West's Bob Zuccarini enjoyed his finest baseball season ever this year. The senior third baseman batted .388. He also drew six intentional walks, a rarity in high school baseball.

His post season honors include being named the Warriors' most valuable player, making the Central Suburban League South Division All-Conference team, and playing in the Senior All-Star game at Peoria.

This is the second year Zuccarini has made the Herald's all-area team and been named the Warriors' MVP.

BOB TOTTEN

Conant

Conant's do-everything co-captain led the Mid-Suburban League in slugging average with a whopping .733 with five doubles, three triples and a homer among his 19 base hits. He was the league's third-leading batter with a .422 percentage. The Cougar senior, who converted from shortstop to the outfield at the season's start, also bore a heavy part of the Conant pitching burden, working 30 innings and posting a 2-1 record. Totten, an outstanding guard in basketball as well, will attend Illinois State University in the fall.

BILL KNUTH

Wheeling

The Wildcats' Bill Knuth led his team with a .393 batting average in Mid-Suburban League games. That mark was sixth best in the conference. His 21 runs in league play was tops among MSL players.

As a key outfielder in the Wildcats 12-5 conference season, Knuth had a slugging percentage of .607, with 34 total bases in 56 at-bats. These figures led to Knuth's unanimous selection to the all-conference squad.

Collectors club plans last mini-convention

The Chicagoland Sports Collectors Association will hold its last mini-convention meeting on July 9 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Hillside Holiday Inn.

About 60 members will trade, buy and sell baseball cards, yearbooks, programs, bats, balls and other sports collectables. If you have any of these or other things of interest, bring them to the meeting to trade or sell.

Those wanting to join the association should contact George Miller at 925-2468. The Association has 396 current members.

Nordbrook sits...and waits

SHEDDING LIGHT on last year's national American Legion tourney runnerup will be eight light standards circling Recreation Park. The Arlington Heights legion team will debut under the artificials Thursday.

Tim Nordbrook will be on the White Sox bench as usual tonight when the Minnesota Twins open a four-game series at Comiskey Park. And the chances are the 28-year-old infielder won't play, also as usual.

The Sox obtained Nordbrook in the free agent re-entry draft over the winter and thought enough of him to give him a two-year, no-cut contract. But the contract hasn't helped him get into a game.

Nordbrook hasn't seen action, save for a pinch running assignment several weeks ago, in the six weeks. He's Batted only 15 times this season (3-for-10, five walks) in a handful of games. Unfortunately, that's nothing new for Nordbrook, who in two previous full seasons in the majors, has batted only 64 times.

"THREE WEEKS ago Roland Hemond (Sox vice-president) came and asked if I would release them from the part in my contract which says they can't send me to the minors," said Nordbrook, fresh from a hard pre-game workout. "That's when I stopped asking questions. "I don't think they have me in mind unless somebody gets hurt."

Nordbrook knew the competition would be tough when he signed with the Sox. "I could count heads. I knew they had Alan (Bannister). I knew they had Kevin (Bell) and Jack (Brohamer)." But he was also used to plenty of competition.

He played for 1½ years at Baltimore behind Brooks Robinson, Doug DeCinces, Mark Belanger and Bobby Grich. Last season he was traded to California but chose to become a free agent at the end of the season.

Six weeks of not playing does things to the mind. It shatters confidence. It breaks spirit. It ruins timing. Nordbrook is working hard, though when or if his chance comes.

Byline report

Bob Gallas

"IF I DO GET in there they won't be able to get me out. They haven't seen a good shortstop here yet," he said. "Bucky (Dent) didn't have the range and Alan (Bannister) has had 20 errors."

Nordbrook had 100 hits in 100 games in the minors with Stockton in 1971 for a .237 betting average. He duplicated that average in 1974 when he was with Rochester in Triple A. He received the Rawlings Silver Glove award as the best defensive shortstop in the minor leagues in 1974, so his confidence has some foundation. But he still is looking for a chance to prove himself in the major leagues.

Meanwhile, he tries to keep in shape, working with weights, running and taking batting practice, but it's not the same as game competition.

"He'd like to stay with the Sox, but can't see them keeping him around next year if they can get something for him in a trade.

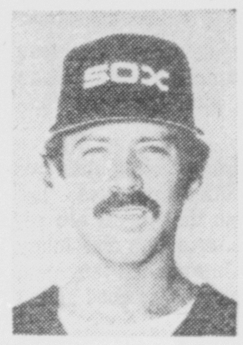
"THEY (SOX) are trapped this year. But I can't see the same thing happening next year."

Nordbrook, as a free agent, was bound to the team and could not be traded or released prior to the June 15 trading deadline, although he had given his OK to a trade if one could be worked out.

"I would like to stay. This is a great bunch of guys here. The difference between here and Baltimore is like night and day.

"In Baltimore, it came down to one big hit a game. Here, we have those hits in almost every inning. Hitting is contagious. It started with Larry Doby (Sox coach) in spring training. Richie (Zisk) picked it up and so on."

ONE THING bothers Nordbrook almost as much as not playing — the fact that he could be hurting the team by not agreeing to go to the minors so another player could join the team. "It hurts because I want to help the team in any way. But if I stay in the big leagues to the end of my contract I have my four years in and qualify for a pension. What if I agree to go down and then get hurt?



Tim Nordbrook

Hemond says he thinks Nordbrook may get some playing time now that Kevin Bell is on the disabled list and Nordbrook is hoping that's true. Meanwhile, he has to endure the good-natured jokes of his teammates who refer to him as a member of the "Dirt Squad" or "Never Nordbrook."

"I can wait. I was in a similar situation in 1974 (at Rochester). There was a shortstop ahead of me with a flashy arm and speed on the bases. It took me half a season to get in there.

"But when I got in, they never got me out of there again."

Recreation Park spotlights American Legion baseball

by DON FRISKE

Last summer's national prestige for the Arlington Heights American Legion baseball team may not be the only reason for the recent renovations going on at Recreation Park.

But it sure didn't hurt.

"It probably created a little more enthusiasm for people to see it as a good thing," Lloyd Meyer said, referring to the lighting system that went up this week. "I'm sure last year's finish gave the park district an added tool to work with."

MEYER, WHO coached his team to a second-place finish in last year's national tournament, is looking forward to playing under the lights at the team's home location.

The decision to put in the lights, which was voted on once before, finally passed on a recent referendum. The job was completed Wednesday after 1½ months of work.

The first task for Lou Veneziano and his electronics crew was to pour the foundation for the lights. After trenching was completed, the cables were laid.

Once the eight poles were delivered, the lights were framed on the ground. The light cages had been assembled earlier by Veneziano in his shop.

FOUR POLES now line the outfield fence at Rec Park. Those four, along with two more next to the dugouts, have 12 bulbs each of 1,000 watts, which are nestled inside huge silver cones.

Two more poles along the foul lines have 22 lights apiece. These lights will also be used for a football field.

Meyer plans to open under the lights with two games Thursday, one against Tattler Post and the other against Elmhurst.

"I think this will help all of the programs," Meyer said. "It's not just beneficial to my team, and I don't want anyone to think that, even though we'll probably use the field more than anyone."

HE ADDED THAT the park district wants the field to be used seven nights a week.

"For our games, the lights provide a more convenient time for people to get out," Meyer said. "That's been the experience of the Elmhurst Legion team. A field with lights has really helped their program."

The quoted figure for the job was $89,000, and the lights will cost $6.50 an hour to be in use. But Meyer said the teams using the field will pay for that.

Along with the lights, a bigger set of permanent bleachers has been ordered. It will seat 400 people. certain areas of the playing field have also been re-sodded.

Big Ten objects to Challenge Bowl

Big Ten Commissioner Wayne Duke says his conference will provide no support for a game next January in which Big Ten senior football players compete against seniors from the Pacific Eight conference.

Announcement of the Challenge Bowl game, scheduled Jan. 14 in Seattle's Kingdome, was made Tuesday.

"The game will professionalize the student athlete since winners will receive $1,500 and losers $1,200, which will result in loss or reduction of the student athlete's scholarship at his school," Duke said.

"IT WILL mean a loss of class time and often results in the student athlete not returning to classes to complete his education.

Duke said Executive Director Wiles Halleck of the Pacific Eight has also objected to the game.

"This matter was reviewed by the joint group at the annual May meetings," Duke said, "and in accordance with their direction, I communicated to the sponsors of the Challenge Bowl that the Big Ten conference does not endorse this game in any form and will not provide support for such activity."

DUKE SAID however that neither the Big Ten nor Pacific Eight could prevent the seniors from playing.

"They play in the senior bowl and that's the same thing," he said.

"The endless proliferation of college and high school all-star football and basketball games remains a constant problem for all of intercollegiate and interscholastic athletics and some positive actions need be undertaken by college and high school agencies to curtail such activities," he said.

Say, Mr. Kauffman, what about the Sox and Twins?

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI)—Kansas City Royals' owner Ewing Kauffman says the California Angels are a better team than his defending American League West champions — but put an asterisk, please, after the word "better."

"They're probably better than we are right now," Kauffman says, "but that doesn't mean the Angels are going to win it. If Amos Otis and Johny Mayberry were hitting like they can, I'd say we're every bit as good as the Angels.

"I haven't worried much about the race because we've stayed within two games of California and Texas thus far. I'm not going to get panicky. If we had dropped off by five or six games, I'd have gotten worried. But as long as we can stay close to California and Texas, there's nb need to worry."

WHILE THE Angels and Rangers were improving their teams at great expense in the free agent extravaganza last winter, the Royals were abstaining. While California and Texas were dealing for starting pitchers to beat the trading deadline, the Royals were again abstaining.

California bolstered its starting rotation with 11th hour deals to acquire Ken Brett and Gary Nolan while Texas picked up Dock Ellis.

"Everyone talks about how great California's pitching is," says Kauffman. "Their pitching is Frank Tanana. Sure, Nolan Ryan's got a good fastball and will win 18 games — but he'll also lose 16. That's a two game difference.

"AND I'M not so sure Ken Brett is any better than Andy Hassler and Nolan — well, we were offered him but we weren't going to give up two of our best young prospects and money as well.

"I still think we're going to beat out California for this thing. We've got a better manager, a better attitude and a happier team. There's got to be some animosity in California by some of the guys who didn't get the big money but are hitting better than the free agents who did."

Kauffman admitted his team has weaknesses and said, win or lose, the Royals will be active during the coming offseason.

"IF I HAD a magic wand," he says, "I'd give us one or two starting pitchers and a power hitter. But I don't have a magic wand. Things don't come that easy. We'll enter the free agent pool this year and if we find someone who can help us, we'll sign him.

"But I'm not going to give a guy a million dollars if he isn't any better than somebody we already have. I don't think we need to make changes as much as we need to make additions to improve ourselves.

"The greatest thing that could happen would be if New York and California didn't win their divisions. That would show people that you can't keep giving millions of dollars to ball players. Economically, it isn't feasible."

Court House to hold special ladies' mixer

The Court House racquetball club in Schaumburg will hold a special ladies' mixer July 15 from 9:30 to 11:30 in the morning.

Bonnie Korytowski, the club's teaching pro, will offer 30-minute beginner and advanced beginner lessons. There will also be an open-play challenge court competition.

The fee is $4 for club members, $6 for a member and her guest, including free child care service. For more information, call 882-4636.

A Briton's view of United States soccer

(Editor's Note: Gerard Loughran, international editor of United Press International, formerly was based in Europe and has written about soccer for many years. In the following article he gives a Briton's view of the game as it is played in the United States.)

by GERARD LOUGHRAN

NEW YORK (UPI) — The problem about watching soccer in the United States is trying to keep your eye on the ball. There's so much else going on.

It's not just 22 players making magic — or misery — for 90 minutes and then everybody going home. The American approach demands the game be "sold" to the public. If you suspect you're watching rubbish, you must be persuaded otherwise. Batteries of electronic weapons are used to wage this hyping operation.

The pro football Giants stadium, a forest of concrete in a barren New Jersey wasteland, also is the home of America's most famous soccer club, the New York Cosmos — grazing ground of Pele, Chinaglia and now Beckenbauer.

AT A RECENT game, the Cosmos met the Chicago Sting and lost 2-1. Not that you would know it from the barrage of cheer-leading directed at the 20,000 spectators.

At regular intervals, cavalry bugle calls of ear-splitting intensity shattered the Sunday quiet while the word "C-H-A-A-A-R-G-E" flashed back and forth on two gigantic electronic scoreboards. Corner kicks were signaled with the words "Corner kick" in the form of a corner — apparently for fans who thought they might be at a baseball game.

Near-misses were greeted by a bank of goggling electronic eyes and the caption "Did you see that?" If the Cosmos were under pressure, "D-E-E-E-F-E-N-S-E" slogans would exhort them to redoubled efforts. Visitors' goals were greeted with the picture of a cartoon character looking distinctly suicidal. A home goal would transport him to rapturous happiness.

When nothing particular was happening, the scoreboard flashed "Go Cosmos" at the dazzled and deafened spectators.

FOR NEAR-SIGHTED fans who could not recognize their favorite players or read the names on their backs, a commentator obligingly chanted out the nomenclature as each man received the ball.

At the start of the game each player ran on separately through an honor guard of schoolboys as his name was announced over loudspeakers — Pele got the biggest cheer — and at halftime, the Deer Park High School Marching Band in gray and purple uniforms led by 28 fetching majorettes entertained the crowd to what is usually called "A Medley of Old-Tyme Favorites," including oddly a few bars of "God Save the Queen."

Just to ensure there wasn't a dull moment, a gentleman dressed as a rabbit and brandishing a carrot pranced along the touchline.

The game was preceded by a couple of school kids' matches, which brought out cheering mums in full measure.

BUT RAZZAMATAZ apart, there is much to commend the U.S. style of presenting soccer to the public. Above all, you are meant to be comfortable and enjoy it.

The Giants stadium alone is a revelation to any European fan who has stood under the rain on gritty terraces, fueled at halftime by a pork pie and dishwater tea or coffee.

At the New Jersey complex, escalators carry spectators to lower or middle tiers — the top tier is not opened since the average gate comes nowhere near filling the stadium's 76,500 seats, most of which are under cover.

Dotted liberally around the ground are food stands where fans can get anything the average person would want to munch on over 90 minutes, including frankfurters (75 cents), chocolates, sandwiches, ice cream and all kinds of beverages. The food shops are spotlessly clean, manned by uniformed waiters — one of whom was politely told by an official to put on his hat while serving food.

STADIUM OFFICIALS, many of them zipping about in compact battery-driven cars, likewise are all uniformed in handsome blue and red jackets and trousers.

Blue-uniformed Pinkerton guards provide security at key points.

Lavatories sparkle. They also have wash-basins and paper towels. There are iced-water drinking fountains all around the promenade areas. Special kiosks sell Cosmos memorabilia, and 100-page, five-color glossy programs — a dollar apiece — tell you more than you ever want to know about soccer in America, including "A Glossary of Soccer Terms" and "Condensed Rules of the Game."

The pampered fan, lolling in his red vinyl seat, can call over attendants whenever he is peckish or wants to respond to ringing cries of "Ice Cold Beer" — 75 cents or $1.25 depending on the size of the cardboard cup.

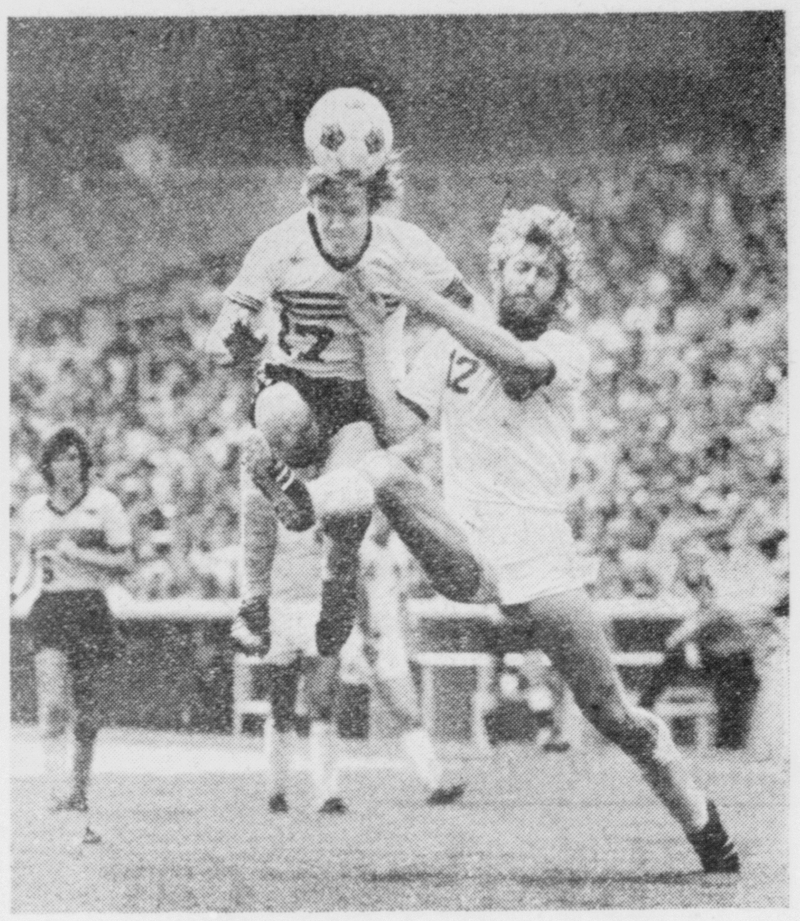
BUS SERVICES run to the stadium from points in New York and New Jersey — the Manhattanite pays $1.50 round trip for the 20-minute journey. The buses move off as each one fills up.

Tickets for the game cost $4 - $12. A $4 seat gives an excellent view.

There are no moats nor cages at U.S. grounds because violence has not been a problem here, but security officials looked distinctly worried at the Cosmos-Sting game and escorted the referee from the pitch.

One spectator, shouting "referee, you're gonna wind up in a ditch tonight," eventually was arrested for throwing an object at him after the game.

An English girl commented: I do hope soccer isn't going to go the way it has in Britain. I eventually gave up going to matches there, but there seems to be the start of a hooligan element here now."



SOCCER in the United States tends to pamper the fan, according to British observer Gerald Loughran. And there also aren't many brawls.

LINCOLN VERSAILLES, a four-door sedan, is strictly luxury American with styling similarities to a smaller Lincoln Continental or more luxurious Mercury Monarch.

Versailles offers American styling

by DOYLE K. GETTER

Do not expect many European styling or ride characteristics in the recently introduced "international size" Lincoln Versailles, a four-door sedan. It is strictly luxury American.

It would be more accurate to think of the Versailles as a smaller Lincoln Continental or a more luxurious Mercury Monarch. There are styling similarities that can remind one of either car.

Still, despite the fact that the Versailles has evolved from the basic Monarch body, the finished product reflects more of the exacting careful assembly and quality control of the Continental.

ONLY 200.9 INCHES long on a short 109.9 inch wheelbase, the Versailles does not match the more controlled cushion-like ride of the much heavier and 233 inch long Continental, which is built on a 127.2 inch wheelbase.

Careful suspension turning, however, and special shock absorbers with double rubber mountings along with other engineering and sound-absorbing techniques developed for the new car, have given the Versailles as quiet and as smooth a ride on normal roads as any other short-wheelbase car I have driven.

That's where the excellence of the Versailles is, in its careful adherence to traditional American expectations of what a luxury car should be, and built as much as possible into a smaller package.

THE FIRST American car with a basecoat/clearcoat paint finish, the Versailles receives seven paint applications, the final two being clear coats of acrylic enamel, giving the body an extra-high luster.

The interior, fully carpeted and leather trimmed, had dual front bucket seats, trimmed in soft leather in the test car, separated by a console and floor shifter.

Some of the standard equipment included in the $11,500 base price were a two-barrel 351 cubic inch V-8 engine with automatic transmission, air conditioning, four powered disc brakes, powered driver's seat, power windows, illuminated entry system, two illuminated vanity mirrors, AM-FM stereo radio, forged aluminum wheels and Michelin white sidewall radial tires.

THE POWER steering is quick in response but transmits little road feel to the driver. On the other hand, road shocks are not transmitted, either.

With the 351 engine in the test car — the only engine available except in California — I averaged 15.3 miles per gallon in freeway and city driving and 18.6 miles per gallon on the highway at 55 miles an hour.

The car would accelerate from zero to 50 miles an hour in 8.3 seconds and from 30 to 50 in 4.9 seconds.

The only options on the test car — power door locks, quadrosonic tape player, speed control, rear window defroster and bucket seats — added $905 to the base price.

Carbon buildup

Why does car keep running?

Doyle K. Getter

Your auto and you

Auto Column: How can you keep an engine from running after turning off the ignition switch? It happens often in my 1962 four-cylinder Tempest with 100,000 plus miles and occasionally in my '72 Audi 100LS.

FOSTER RAVEN,
Kihei, Hawaii.

Mr. Raven: In an engine as old as your Tempest, you probably have heavy carbon buildup. The cause of engine run-on in such an engine is often due to red hot carbon particles resting on heavy carbon deposit in a very hot engine. A carbon solvent of the type you pour through the carburetor often helps. There are many brands. I have had good results with Cleans, which Chevrolet dealers carry.

Auto Column: I recently received as a gift a complete oil change of synthetic oil, including a new filter. How safe is this product? Can I put this oil in my 1973 Impala?

MRS. D. DUNCAN
Peoria, Ill.

Mrs. Duncan: I think you can use it safely, particularly because you will use it for only one oil change. The brand you mentioned in your letter is rated for Service SE, which your engine requires. General Motors has been studying synthetic oils for some time but so far has neither endorsed them or opposed them.

Auto Column: For the past month, I have noticed that the rear end of my 1974 Chevrolet Malibu is sagging when it is parked on a level surface. Are there any shock absorbers, other than air shocks, that will restore my car to its original height without replacing the rear springs?

IRA TRAGER
Lynbrook, N.Y.

Mr. Trager: Air shocks are about the only thing you can go to but your car would still bottom out on bad bumps. Instead of replacing the rear springs, why don't you just strengthen them with some spacer shims?

Auto Column: My 1972 Chevy Nova with the 307 engine starts fine but when I drive a little while, it doesn't take the gas right away. It runs good on fast idle when cold but as soon as it comes off fast idle, it doesn't take the gas until the engine warms up.

MR. G. A. M.
West Springfield, Mass.

Mr. G.A.M.: The problem is in your carburetor and choke. You are getting very little choke action after the engine comes off fast idle. The engine runs well when warm because you don't need the choke then.

Auto Column: On the return home from a recent trip south, we noticed a strom smell of raw gas during the last 800 miles of the trip, mainly while driving on the highway. Also during the trip, whenever we stopped, we experienced stalling until we got rolling again. We have a '76 Ford Granada with the 250 cubic inch engine.

WILLIAM CURTO
Youngstown, N.Y.

Mr. Curto: There is a normal amount of venting within a carburetor and none of it should be to the outside unless one of the vent hoses might have come off or cracked during the trip. Have all of the vent connections and hoses checked.

Auto Column: Could low manifold vacuum be the cause of poor engine and transmission performance on my 1975 Chevrolet Nova with the six cylinder 250 cubic inch engine? Through experimentation, I have noticed that performance is much better when the EGR vacuum line is disconnected and plugged. The engine also hesitates on moderate acceleration yet the carberutor, timing, ignition and accelerator pump all have been checked out as OK.

R. E. Moore
Peoria, Ill.

Mr. Moore: I think you have diagnosed your problem correctly. A leaking EGR valve could account for all of your troubles. Ask your dealer to check the valve.

Auto Column: I have a 1976 Chevrolet truck with the 454 engine. When starting a cold engine, I hear a knocking noise that goes away as the engine warms up. I've been told there's nothing wrong. The truck has about 10,000 miles on. What is your opinion?

CLIFF W.
Silver Springs, Fla.

Mr. Cliff W.: That's probably lifter chatter. The oil passage in one of the lifters may be partly plugged. When the engine begins to warm and the oil thins, it lubricates normally. Unless it gets worse, I wouldn't worry about it. You might try a can of upper engine cleaner.

Lead saves West's hide

Jose Le Dentu, one of the best players in France, is the hero of today's hand. Not that he might not have been the goat. His takeout double of South's one-heart opening caught his partner with plenty of nothing. So East passed to let Le Dentu get out of his own trouble. His one-spade bid didn't get him out, but South came through with some needed help and decided to try three notrump.

One spade would probably have gone down 800, but three notrump would have made against any defense except that Le Dentu came up with — one of those one in a million leads.

He put the queen of diamonds on the table. You can't blame South for winning with the king and leading a heart toward dummy. Le Dentu took his king and led a second diamond. Dummy's 10 lost to East's jack. East led his jack of spades and there was no way to keep the defense from collecting two spades, one diamond, one heart, one club and 100 points.

Ask Andy

Mohole dig died for lack of funding

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1977 Yearbook of Science and the Future to Darrell Gordon, 13, of Winston-Salem, N.C., for his question:

WHATEVER HAPPENED TO THE MOHOLE PROJECT?

Scientists have determined that our earth is divided into four parts: the outer crust, the mantle, the outer core and the inner core. The thickness of the crust varies from 5 miles under the oceans to about 20 miles under the continents. It is believed that within the deepest part of the crust the earth's temperature may be 1,600 degrees Fahrenheit.

Some years back scientists agreed that it would be valuable to have some samples taken directly from the earth's mantle. A government-financed project was established for just such an experiment. The operation was called Mohole.

There's a boundary between the earth's crust and the mantle called the Mohorovicic discontinuity. The name has been shortened to Moho and the hole that was to be drilled was called mohole.

Plans were made to set up a drilling platform located in the ocean, since the earth's crust here would be at its thinnest. The project got as far as drilling a number of test holes. But, unfortunately, the fine plans to be able to study the composition, radioactivity and temperature of the mantle were not to be realized.

In 1966 the ambitious scientific project ground to a halt. Congress refused to provide additional money which was necessary if the operation was to continue. High costs of the project itself frightened many members of Congress since high budgets also had to be met for our space program and the war in Vietnam.

And so the Mohole project was over. It had become a scientific dream that never reached reality. Perhaps someday the work can be resumed.

We know that the earth's mantle is solid rock and that it goes down about 1,800 miles. Without actually having a hole drilled into it, we also know that the mantle is made of silicon, oxygen, aluminum, iron and magnesium. While the temperature in the area where it meets the crust is 1,600 degrees Fahrenheit, scientists believe it increases to about 4,000 degrees where the mantle meets the outer core.

Scientists speculate that the earth's outer crust is about 1,400 miles thick and that it is made of melted iron and nickel. Temperatures here probably increase to about 9,000 degrees Fahrenheit. The inner core of the earth is 800 miles thick and probably consists of solid iron and nickel.

Andy sends a Denoyer-Geppert World Globe to Lisa Renski, 12, of Peoria, Ill., for her question:

WHAT ARE GOOSEBUMPS?

They can be called goose pimples, goose skin, goosebumps or goose flesh. We've all had the sensation at one time or another; it's a rough condition of the skin that can be caused by either cold weather or fear or a special feeling of excitement.

It is easy to guess where the name came from if you've ever lived on a farm where a goose was occasionally selected for a holiday menu. If you've ever seen the skin of a plucked goose ready for the kitchen, you know that it isn't too different from the way your skin looks when you're hit by a cold draft and you aren't wearing a sweater.

If we told you the scientific name for the condition, would you remember it? Hardly anybody does. The word is horripilation.

Do you have a question to Ask Andy? Send it on a post card with your name, age and complete address to Ask Andy in care of The Herald, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. Entries are open to boys and girls from 7 to 17.

is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

King Richard to reign at the faire

The King's warriors clash at the Renaissance Faire.

The royal couple stroll down Michigan Avenue.

by GENIE CAMPBELL

Ten months out of the year, Richard Shapiro is a high-pressured concert promoter who works hard to corner the entertainment market in his hometown of Minneapolis, Minn.

July and August he works hard, too — playing King Richard. His wife is Queen Bonnie. Together they reign in costumed splendor over their kingdom, the annual King Richard's Renaissance Faire, which opens Saturday for six weekends on a wooded, secluded site just north of Chicago.

The common denominator is Greathall Corp., Shapiro's company which produces both the slick, explosive, one-night concert engagements and the peaceful interlude of 16th century Merry Olde England recaptured during the faire.

SIX YEARS AGO the Shapiros visted a Renaissance fair in another state and their reaction was the same — "Why didn't we think of that?"

"It was the nicest day — cool, crisp with a breeze. It made me forget everything," said Bonnie, yards of skirt bellowing everywhere as she tried to settle into an office chair.

The Shapiros sought out the next largest metropolitan area — which just happened to be Chicago — walked their feet off at art fairs lining up appropriate artisans (glass blowers, weavers, potters and woodcutters) and performers to match (mimes, court jestors and flute players, to name just a few), and opened King Richard's rendition that very next year.

A tornado wiped out one weekend. The over-all attendance was less than they had hoped.

Yet, now in its fifth year, the faire has grown from just three weekends to six, 100 acres of land have been purchased by Greathall in order to construct a permanent Renaissance village, and the number of entertainers has multiplied to 200. Even psychic Irene Hughes recognizes a good thing. She's appearing every weekend, too.

SHAPIRO, 31, is delighted with the progress. He doesn't mince words. Even dressed in purple tights and royal robes, he remains true to his profession.

"I want to make people happy and I want to make money. And I don't want to do either without the other. I'm not wealthy and alturistic enough to put on a show that won't make money. I also won't do a show that I don't think is entertaining just for the money. I would have been a great star, only I recognized early I had no talent. So I moved into the production end of it."

But King Richard, Queen Bonnie and a dozen or so attendants, all in costume, were star struck of sorts when they walked into Marshall Field's one time and were formally beckoned over to the royal candy counter.

"I started picking out one of these, two of those, four of another," King Richard recounts the story. "Then she told me the candy was $40 a pound" — fit for a king maybe, but not one who makes a living by just pretending to be one.

"I PUT BACK two of these, three of those, one of another kind. I sald all the money was tied up in my costume."

But the king and queen won't go hungry at the faire. There's plenty to eat for under $1 and for the first time a 10-course feast will be served every Saturday and Sunday for 100 persons. Again, however, modern restrictions thwart authenticity. Pewter plates won't pass sanitation inspection. Disposal dishes will have to suffice.

There's a lot of glory to playing royalty, but hardly much comfort. It's hot under 60 pounds of robes. Queen Bonnie threw out her steel corset after only one wearing. "I got such severe pains in the stomach."

Yet, away from the hubbub, carried back centuries, King Richard and Queen Bonnie are in their element.

"It's a time tunnel, an escape. You have to experience it yourself to even know what I'm talking about," said Shapiro.

This summer for the first time, his majesty has assigned a different theme for each weekend. And the king is being very

Do-it-yourself photo lab for shutterbugs

Click. It's February, 1977.

The picture consists of four Roselle businessmen/photography hobbyists who have an idea. They are forming a business — Images, Inc. — where people can develop, print and mount their own color pictures.

Click. Jump to May. Amateur photographers are stepping into 1252 Remington Rd., Schaumburg, to look over what sounds too good to be true.

THEY SEE SIX darkrooms, enthusiastic photography technicians and more than $10,000 of equipment. For a membership fee of $25 a year, photographers are entitled to use of the equipment, paper and film at an additional cost, a darkroom at $3 an hour, free help and a processing technique which ranges from under $1 for 5 by 7-inch or 8 by 10-inch photos to $5.50 for 20 by 24-inch pictures.

Members are not required to mix chemicals or mess with bleaches, water baths and driers.

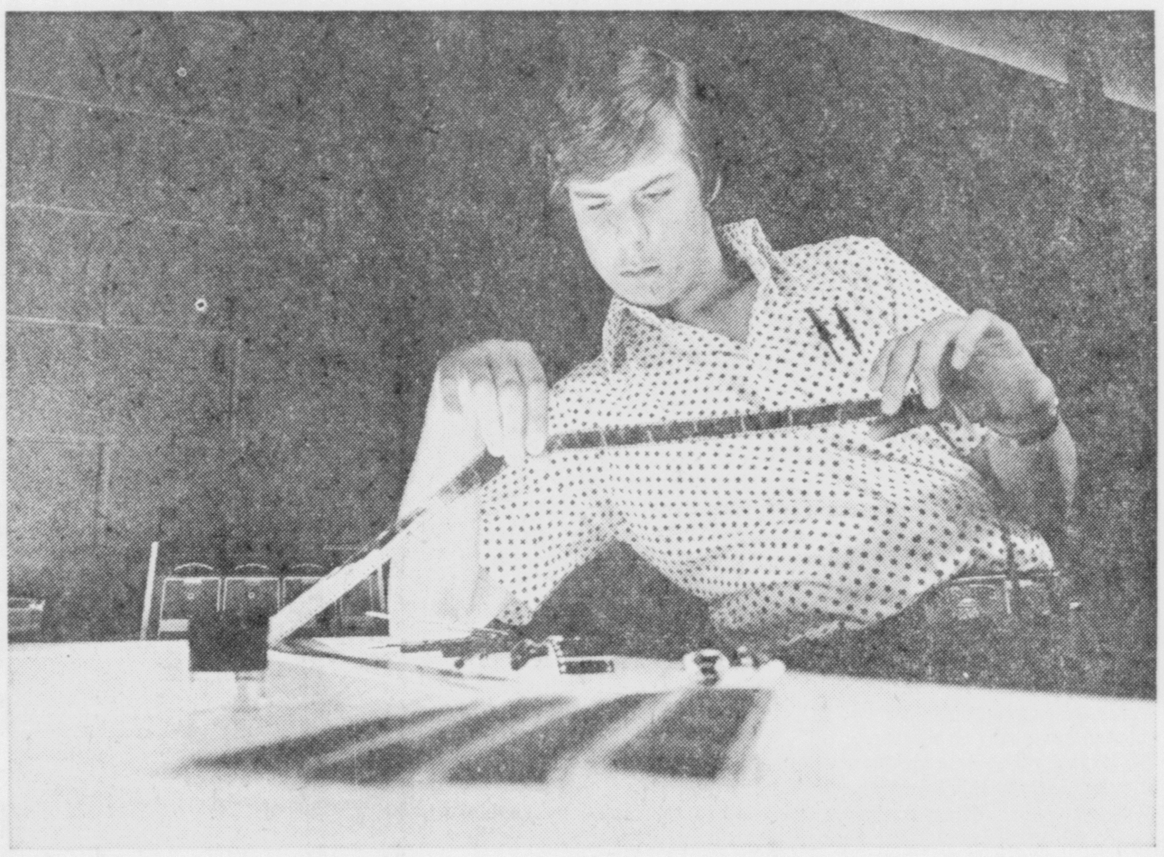
Click. It's June and the membership is climbing steadily . . . past 30, over 50 and approaching 100. An average of three new members join each day. Plans are being made for photography courses and contests — and maybe a similar setup closer to the city?

"I THINK THE future is rosy," said Rennie Waxlax, pilot by profession and promoter of Images, Inc., by interest. "I see this idea like that of portable calculators. People will be demanding similar setups like ours all over the country."

The idea for Images arose from Portland, Ore., where a color processing lab is open to amateurs. A black and white laboratory, The Darkroom, is operating in Chicago.

"For years all the photography magazines talked about how hard color-processing is to do at home," said Waxlax. "But with our equipment, there's no mess, no drudgery. And the only variable that can go wrong is what the member does in the darkroom. We've taken the idea of the Portland operation and improved on it."

IMAGES HAS TAKEN a complicated process and made it very simple said Don Bartley, who handles the business functions for Images, Inc. Instead of water baths, critical temperature regulation and chemical mixtures, an expensive Hope processor turns exposed paper into color prints — neatly, accurately and in only 10 minutes.



Images member Jeff Borker, Palatine, checks his negatives.

With relatively good expertise in the darkroom, any Image member can produce a custom-printed 8 by 10-inch photo for about $2, including time in the darkroom, paper and processing. A commercial outfit may charge anything from $15 to $30 for the same results.

OBVIOUSLY, the Image setup appeals to semi-professional photographers who occasionally work at weddings or are commissioned for portraits, but who don't have the money to purchase expensive, sensitive equipment for processing.

Images, however, is also appreciated by run-of-the-mill amateurs.

Click. Newlyweds Debbie and Gary Mainerich, Mount Prospect, are printing their own wedding and honeymoon photos in their spare time and are enjoying every minute of it.

"We could never afford the kind of equipment they have at Images," explained Debbie. "And even if we could, where would we put it in our apartment?"

SHE CHUCKLED: "I used to hate photography. It was Gary who always had a camera in his hands. But now I really enjoy it. I like printing the pictures and seeing the projects through from start to finish. And both Gary and I are learning things about photography which make us better at taking pictures. In fact, I'm surprised at myself. Now it's me who's always wanting to go out to play photographer."

Though she admits that the bill for five continuous hours of darkroom mistakes adds up before the perfect print is made, she expects the cost to decrease with improved skill. "Once it took 10 tries to get a picture to come out right," she sighed. "But it's fun."

"PICTURES ARE so personal to begin with, and when you can develop and print them yourself, they just become more so," she added.

Evening of two one-acts

Two one-act plays will be presented by Pentangle Productions for three weekends at Limelight Theatre, 1165 Tower Rd., Schaumburg. Opening Saturday are "The Dumb Waiter" by Harold Pinter and "The Zoo Story" by Edward Albee.

Play dates are July 2, 3, 9, 10, 16 and 17 at 8 p.m. Tickets are $3.50 for adults, $3 senior citizens, and $2.50 with purchase of Act II '77 season ticket. 884-0137.

Frontier Days fun

Music and art are highlights of the Frontier Days festival in Arlington Heights this holiday weekend.

Artists and craftsmen will show their works at Recreation Park, Miner street, Saturday starting at noon, Sunday from 1 p.m. and Monday from 11 a.m.

Musical entertainment will fill the stage afternoons and evenings. Tonight Ron Ford performs original compositions, followed by a country/rock concert by Palm. Saturday afternoon features Jimmy James Banjo Masters and Country Chords Chapter of Sweet Adelines. Sing Out Palatine entertains Saturday evening.

Sunday evening the Lutheran Home Kitchen Band and Choir get equal time with a folk duo, Bob Gand and Lana Rae. July 4th young violinists and cellists will give a concert, and the Arlingtones close the celebration Monday evening.

'Finian's Rainbow'

"Finian's Rainbow," the Broadway musical produced jointly by Music On Stage and Palatine Park District, will be presented tonight and Saturday at Cutting Hall, Palatine.

Tickets are $3.50 adults, $2.50 students and senior citizens, tonight; $4 all seats Saturday. Information 991-0333.

MARCIA HAYDEE AND Richard Cragun are scheduled to appear in four of eight performances of the Stuttgart Ballet, which comes to the Arie Crown Theatre July 12-17. Among them are "Romeo and Juliet," shown above, "Eugene Onegin" and "Sleeping Beauty." The lively young company bears the stamp of its founder, the late John Cranko, in its acrobatic lifts and dramatic staging. Ticket information is available through 791-6000.

James Levine, music director of the Ravinia Festival, opens the gala 42nd season Saturday, 8:45 p.m., with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, Symphony Chorus and guest soloists in a performance of Gustav Mahler's Symphony No. 2, "The Resurrection."

The symphonic tour-de-force draws upon the massed forces of an augmented orchestra, 200-voice choir, vocal soloists, and off-stage brass ensemble. This will be Levine's second Ravinia performance of the Symphony No. 2, which he also conducted for his Festival debut in 1971 when he appeared as a last-minute substitute for Eugene Ormandy.

Two all-Tchaikovsky programs are scheduled Sunday. At 6 p.m. Preview I will feature the Trio in A minor, Op. 50, with Samuel Magad is concertmaster and Miller is principal cellist of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra.

Schenly also will appear on the second Tchaikovsky program at 7:30 p.m. in the Pavilion, playing the Piano Concerto No. 1 in B-flat minor. Other works on the concert, conducted by Levine, are the Romeo and Juliet Fantasy-Overture and the Symphony No. 4 in F minor.

"Welcome Back" John Sebastian headlines the Tuesday Folk-Pop Fest at 7 p.m. Bob Gibson will be master of ceremonies for the four-hour concert, which also spotlights singer-songwriters Sylvia Tyson, Jim Post, Ed Holstein, Don Lange, Sally Fingerette, Mick Scott and Paul Geremia.

A SPECIAL RECORDING preview Wednesday offers several of the works that will be performed on Ravinia's four-record album, "Music from Ravinia." The album, a first for the Festival, will be in collaboration with RCA Red Seal Records. Music on the concert program includes J. S. Bach's "Wedding Cantata" No. 202, Stravinsky's Suite from "Histoire du Soldat," and Mozart's Piano Quintet in E-flat Major, K. 452.

The second of Ravina's five Previews is scheduled for Thursday, 7 p.m., and will be devoted to music by the Festival's featured composers. On the program are Joseph Haydn's String Quartet in G Major, O. 77, No. 1 and Bela Bartok's Sonata for Two Pianos and Percussion. Artists include the Chicago Symphony String Quartet, with Victor Aitay and Edgar Muenzer, violinists; Milton Preves, violist; Frank Miller, cellist; Andre-Michel Schub and Paul Schenly, pianists; and Donald Koss and Gordon Peters, percussionists.

Andre Watts, pianist, will be soloist at the 8:30 concert, performing the Franck Symphonic Variations for Piano and Orchestra, and Liszt's Totentanz. James Levine opens the program with Schubert's Symphony no. 9 in C Major, "The Great."

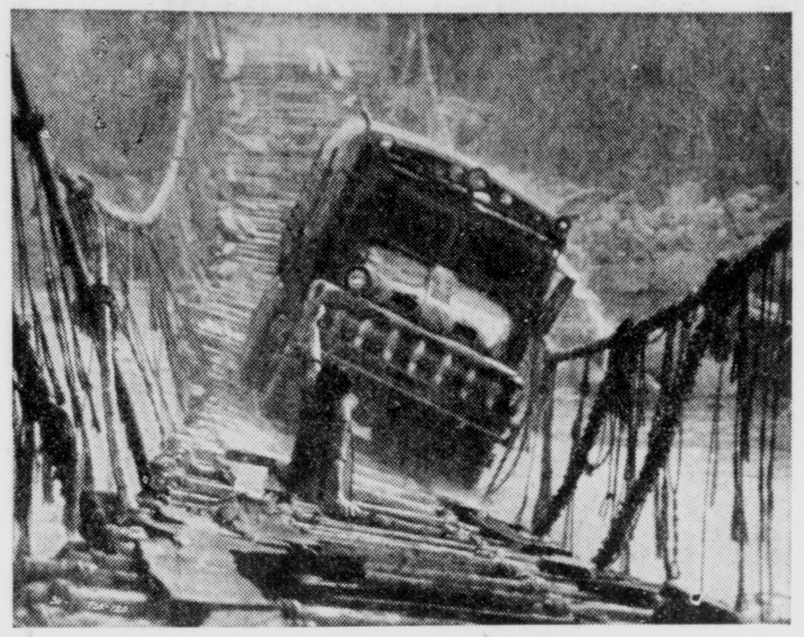
Superb camera work makes film



KASSEM (AMIDOU) cries out as the nitro-loaded truck driven by Victor (Bruno Cremer) appears perilously close to tipping over in a scene from "Sorcerer."

JACQUELINE BISSET, left, learned how to scuba dive in filming "The Deep," along with the rest of the cast that included Robert Shaw, above, an island recluse who comes to the aid of Bisset and boyfriend, Nick Nolte.

by GENIE CAMPBELL

Review ★★★

If William Friedkin had spent just a fraction as much time tying up the loose ends to the story line for "Sorcerer" as he did on the precise editing and artful camera work, the noted director would have assured himself another solid hit.

He is methodical and meticulous. This is only Friedkin's second picture since "The French Connection" swept five Academy Awards including Best Picture and Best Director in 1971. In between was "The Exorcist." It was nominated for 10.

But if the title, "Sorcerer," appears misleading, it's actually only the beginning. Some facts which might help to explain the premise behind the film are left out entirely.

The "Sorcerer" is not a movie about mysticism or black magic. However, a great deal of mystery shrouds each one of the four main characters. In addition, fate alone is the foreboder of doom throughout this very intense, suspenseful adventure.

Four complete strangers from different parts of the world are inadvertently thrown in a Godforsaken, filthy South American village where each has fled from his respective country to escape either loss of face of immediate death.

The squalor is unbearable. Yet the four are trapped. They need money to leave, the kind impossible to amass as members of an American oil refinery work crew.

So the four volunteer for a suicidal but lucrative job: driving a cargo of explosives, damaged and ready to blow at the slightest bump, across 200 miles of dense, jungle terrain. The explosives are needed to blast a section of the refinery that has already blown.

THE SECOND FILM to be based on George Arnaud's novel "The Wages of Fear," "Sorcerer's" screenplay is by Walon Green. Friedkin is purported to have spent three years on "Sorcerer" — 18 months of pre-production work, another 10 on location shooting and the rest editing the film for distribution.

Consequently the cinematography is brilliant, sometimes surrealistic, as in the scene in which one man's hallucinations and the end of the road emerge into a Salvador Dali-like montage.

Friedkin is a master of contrasts — a shot of a littered, dark alley breaking into a dusty, early morning, country scene, a blast of a gun echoing over a crowd. He excels in closeups — a butterfly on a screen, a rooster's head, details that would never be missed, but make a film so much more complete.

WHERE OTHER directors rely on music to build suspense, Friedkin plants it in the faces of his characters. You read what's happening or about to happen in their grimaces, blank stares and long glances of fear. Only then does the camera follow the action.

The one familiar face in "Sorcerer" belongs to Roy Scheider who played a narc in "French Connection."

A small-time gangster, a loser who bungles a heist, Scheider is forced to flee the United States after he learns a contract has been put out for his life.

Amidou, a Moroccan actor, plays an Arab Terrorist also running away from certain death in Palestine for underground activities.

BRUNO CREMER of France leaves his lovely wife and swank lifestyle for the backyards of South America rather than face the humiliation of being arrested and charged with embezzlement. He is a banker.

The fourth man, forever remains a mystery. He murders one man just to go along for the ride, for whatever reason we never learn.

The introduction for each character is fast and neatly packaged to avoid stealing from the ensuing, harrowing ride — around hairpin curves and suspended rope bridges where the swells of the river have eaten away many of the wooden ties.

Yet I don't understand why the explosives were stored in a shack way out in the middle of the jungle. And if the nitroglycerin was too damaged to move, why not truck in fresh powder. I guess I needed to know why the trip was really necessary.

IT IS ONLY when each appears home free that fate deals a joker from the bottom of the deck. A letdown of guard, a sign of emotion and their vulnerability is attacked.

"Sorcerer" is rated PG but I wouldn't recommend it for children. It is a grueling movie, one sprinkled intermittently with human disaster. And it leaves you somewhat exhausted and downtrodden at the end.

'The Deep'

The two items "The Deep" made a big deal of — Jacqueline Bisset in a wet T-shirt and underwater shooting — are both very good.

But moviegoers who think that just because Peter Benchley wrote both novels, "Jaws" and "The Deep" that the latter film will equal the thrill sensations of the first, will come away sorely disappointed.

The truth is, "The Deep" is dull — not only the story line, but the actors. Wouldn't you know, everything filmed underwater is beautiful, while everything above seems faked.

JACQUELINE BISSET and Nick Nolte play a young vacationing couple who, while diving off the shores of Bermuda, discover not only priceless jewels but thousands of small vials of morphine in the hold of a sunken World War II freighter.

Louis Gossett plays a mean Haitian who wants to sell the morphine on the black market and make a fortune for himself. Only if he wanted it so bad, why didn't he dive himself, instead of making a deal with Robert Shaw, an eccentric islander and expert in sunken treasures.

Shaw tries so hard to be an offbeat character, he ruins the character. But Bisset and Nolte hardly try at all, and Eli Wallach, Shaw's booze-guzzling Benedict Arnold, is a mess.

The best part of this movie is the underwater photography. And there are enough close calls, silly though they may seem, to keep the adventuresome happy. Besides, "The Deep" does have a happy ending, and that doesn't come along very often. Maybe that's why it also appears so unrealistic. Rating for "The Deep (PG): two stars.

Movie guide

Designed to help readers decide which movies they want to see, this guide includes a listing of movies currently playing in the Northwest suburban area plus capsule summaries and comments, based on reports of the Independent Film Journal, for selected films of interest to readers.

"Star Wars" — Director George Lucas (American Graffiti") pulled out all stops in mounting this space fantasy about intergalactic warfare, and the dazzling flimmaking, technical wizardry and rousing adventure make for one of the most spectacular entertainments of this or any other year. Not a heavy, heady "2001" trip, it aims to entertain, and the sky is the limit. (PG).

"Exorcist II: The Heretic" — Linda Blair, now a highschooler goes another round with Satan, who this time manifests himself as a giant locust. Pure trash. The sequel to "The Exorcist" also stars Louise Fletcher, Max von Sydow and Richard Burton. (R).

"The Other Side of Midnight" — Two women on different continents fall in love with the same man in a story of international romance and intrigue based on Sidney Sheldon's best selling novel. Features Susan Sarandon, John Beck and Marie-France Pisier. (R).

"Islands in the Stream" — Hemingway's posthumously-published novel about a secluded artist whose emotional isolation is shattered when his three sons arrive for a visit has been given emotional treatment in an old-fashioned drama that starts brilliantly but dissipates into too many tangets to be fully satisfying. George C. Scott is superb as the semi-autobiographical hero. (PG).

"Rocky" — Sylvester Stallone wrote the script and stars as the title character in this small, unpretentious and genuinely involving story of a local clubhouse prizefighter who gets a chance-of-a-lifetime shot at the world heavyweight title and finds love and self-respect along the way. (PG).

"3 Women" — Sissy Spacek, Shelley Duvall and Janice Rule are the stars of Robert Altman's latest, a psychological teaser that may be about an exchange of personalities or the female psyche or messed up male-female relationships. Then again it may not. It looks striking and some of the acting is fine, but the script is as arrid as its desert locale. Who it was made for is anyone's guess, and this languid, ambiguous tale seems bound for much critical attention. (PG).

Free concerts at Old Orchard

Old Orchard will be singing another tune when the Chicago Orchestra opens the summer concert series Tuesday 9:15 p.m.

In the past the orchestra, which is solely staffed by members of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, has presented a classical program of symphonic music. Tuesday the baton of Arnold Brostoff animates the evening's tempo with a selection of familiar and famed melodies.

A pair of marches, Verdi's "Grand March" from the opera "Aida," and Saint-Saens' "March Militaire Francais," sound the opening of this musical event. It also features the "William Tell Overture" and a cornucopia of international and periodic themes from Verdi's subtle harmonies and imaginative orchestration to Scott Joplin's renowned ragtime in "The Sting."

Upcoming concerts in the Old Orchard series include the World's Greatest Jazz Band on the evening of July 11, The Glenn Miller Orchestra the evening of July 18, and Wayne King and His Orchestra the evening of July 25. All concerts begin at 9:15 under the gazebo located southeast of Marshall Field's. Old Orchard is located at Skokie Boulevard and Golf Road. Further information: 673-6800.

Weak role for Barbara Eden

by LAURA SCHMALBACH

It makes sense that Barbara Eden plays the title role in Noel Coward's "Blithe Spirit," a comedy about a mischievous blonde who comes back from "the other side" to torment her former husband and his new wife. She's a natural for the part.

After all, Miss Eden's five-year stint in "I Dream of Jeannie" gave her plenty of practice popping in and out of rooms and wreaking havoc on mortals.

But unfortunately, a giggly, attractive Barbara Eden can't carry the lackluster production at Marriott's Lincolnshire Theater, and the show winds up generating more subdued smiles than outright laughs.

MUCH OF THE ho-hum atmosphere can be attributed to the play itself. First performed in London in 1941, "Blithe Spirit" just can't sustain its punch 36 years later — and in an era when seances and visits from the dead are old hat, it needs all the punch it can get.

The play revolves around Charles Condomine (Roger Mueller), a well-to-do author who invites psychic Madame Arcati (Jane MacIver) to perform a seance as part of his research on a new book.

Review

Condomine, his wife Ruth (Concetta Tomei) and their friends, Dr. and Mrs. Bradman (Art Kassul and Jo Morrison), look on the session as a bit of a joke. But the last laugh's on them when Charles' former wife Elvira makes an appearance after a seven-year hiatus in the hereafter.

OF COURSE, her visit causes plenty of complications — Elvira is visible only to Charles, leaving a bewildered Ruth to assume her husband has gone mad. Elvira enjoys captivating her husband again, but begins to tire of the game when she discovers her return visit is a one-way proposition.

The rest of "Blithe Spirit" chronicles Charles attempts to retrun his former wife to the hereafter, and Elvira's efforts to get rid of Ruth. The plot takes an interesting turn when long-suffering Ruth shoulders more troubles than she bargained for.

Lincolnshire staged another dated comedy recently, but "Accent on Youth" transcended the cliches with the virtuoso lead performance of Ricardo Montalbon. Miss Eden also gives a good effort, and her seductive negligee undoubtedly piques the fancy of many men in the audience. But this role just isn't meaty enough to give her talents much of a workout, and it shows.

MOST OF THE other actors do well with their parts. Mueller is acceptable as Elvira's frazzled ex-husband, and Kassul makes the most of his small role as the family doctor. Miss MacIver gets the evening's biggest laughs as the delightfully unconventional Madame Arcati, and despite some uneveness Miss Tomei makes a convincing Ruth.

In the final analysis, perhaps "Blithe Spirit" just needs a technical shot in the arm. Much of "I Dream of Jeannie's" appeal was television's unique ability to whisk the star in and out of bottles and living rooms. At Lincolnshire, we can watch Miss Eden approaching the stage and then plainly walking, not popping, into a room. Jeannie was a lot more convincing.

"Blithe Spirit" is playing at Lincolnshire through July.

Mob's fans are the young

The Mob, a seven-man group with roots in Chicago, comes on like gangbusters with a repertoire that is decidedly frenetic. From Joe Tex to the Bee Gees' "Nights on Broadway," the music is loud and brassy — no Barry Manilow softies or barbershop medleys with this bunch currently performing at the Navarone Restaurant in Elk Grove Village.

But if The Mob's musical style disappoints soft rock fans, it is just what the largely teen-age and young-twenties crowd enjoys. Jammed three or four deep at the bar on a recent Friday night, the young audience obviously appreciated the large number of disco-type selections, which gave them a chance to strut their stuff on the dance floor.

Night out

DIRECTING The Mob's Blood, Sweat and Tears sound is "Big Al" Huerrara, the lead singer and sax-handler. Another standout is trombonist and guitarist Michael Sistak, who joins Jimmy Soul in a "Dueling Banjos" type of arrangement on Sistak's original song, "Gemini Lady."

Rounding out The Mob is Gary Bielbier on keyboards and sax, drummer Joe Farroh, bass-player Eric Collins, and Jim Ryan on the keyboards and moog synthesizer.

Flashing red lights and gangster suits notwithstanding, The Mob provides an enjoyable couple of hours if you enjoy that kind of brassy style. But if you're looking for variety, better luck next time.

The Mob will be appearing at the Navarone through the first week in July.

—Laura Schmalbach

Liza Minnelli

LIZA MINNELLI and Barry Nelson will appear together at the Shubert Theatre beginning Monday in the new musical "Shine It On."

The play about a young performer who must reconcile her drive for fame with her personal life will be in Chicago only through July 16.

George Furth, author of "Company," wrote "Shine It On" especially for Minnelli. John Kander and Fred Ebb, who also did the score for "Cabaret," wrote the lyrics and misic. Director is Martin Scorsese.

Shirley Knight stars in the world premiere of John Guare's "The Landscape of the Body" opening Thursday and playing through July 24 at Academy Festival Theatre, Barat College, in Lake Forest.

THE PLAY IS presented in cooperation with Joseph Papp's New York Festival and will open at the Public Theatre in New York this fall. Directing the production is John Pasquin who staged the off-Broadway production of "Moonchildren."

Knight recently appeared in "Kennedy's Children" in New York and Los Angeles, for which she received a Tony award. She also was in the television film "Twenty-One Hours at Munich."

Mary Ann Chinn is replacing Lesley Ann Warren in "Vanities," which is continuing to run through the summer at Drury Lane Theatre/Water Tower Place. And Elizabeth Farley replaces Elizabeth Ashley in the same production through July 16. During this period, Ashley is filming a movie.

King Richard's faire

generous in awarding huge purses.

THE MIDDLE KINGDOM Grand Tourney is this Saturday through Monday. The King's warriors will defend the crown. In addition to these staged battles, regularly scheduled medieval martial arts skirmishes will continue throughout the three days.

A $1000 purse will go to the winner of a one-mile cross-country horse race July 9-10. The public is invited to participate. The race is limited to quarter horses and a $25 fee is required. Already 26 persons have entered. It's not too late to sign up. But riders must be in costume.

A sand castle competition is scheduled July 16-17. The builder of the best Gothic through baroque style castle will receive a $200 purse. Construction begins Saturday with the final judging on Sunday.

Robin Hood and his band of merry men arrive on the scene July 23-24 to host ballad singing, eating and log contests. On Sunday the king's foresters will challenge Robin's men to a tug-of-war. Women who have felt they were born centuries too late can enter the Fair Maid Marion's Fairest of the Faire Contest.

DURING THE FIFTH weekend of the faire, July 30-31, a decathlon will be open to the public featuring such events as javelin, cross-country running, wrestling and a stone throw.

A human chess game and boar hound (Great Dane) show are scheduled for Aug. 6-7, the final weekend of the faire.

Hours are 11:30 a.m. - 6:30 p.m. Admission is $4 for adults; $1 for children 5-12; children under 5 admitted free.

To reach the grounds, drive north on Interstate 94 (the Tri-State Tollway), exit at Russell Road, follow signs for almost a mile to the site. Further information and specific times for scheduled events are available through 689-2800.

FREE CONCERT FROM CHICAGO

JULY 2, 7PM PALATINE PARK PALATINE
Ressurection Band, from the streets of Chicago to a network of audiences across the nation. No place is too big or too small for the message they dynamically communicate. On stage, the familiar gulf of separation between performers and audiences is washed away with lead guitarist Glenn Kaiser's insight into his listener's thoughts and moods. He is bold in what he says, immediately establishing a rapport. You may not exactly agree, but you know he's hitting between the eyes with truth. You may even get angry except he escapes offending you just in time with that grin, that twinkle in his eye and that story he begins telling about a time in his life, a story that will be pieced together throughout the course of the evening. His versatility of voice from broken rasp to quality pitched harmony turns his lyrics into more than words . . . it is a feeling — you are familiar with . . . it becomes your life he is singing about . . .

Joan Baez less political, aims at pure entertaining

by BRUCE MEYER

DISCovering rock

"I've been shopping at Saks and Bonwit Teller since I was 17," says Joan Baez, her eyes flashing with humor. "But I didn't want people to know that for years, because I was hanging on to the image of myself that they had made for me."

For most of her 18 years as a professional singer, Baez has been known at least as well for her pacifist-cum-radical politics as for her pure, delicate soprano.

Now, she is tearing down a dated persona — and chipping away at the hard-eyed rigidity of her own fans.

The product of a home on the move — she attended some 15 schools before completing high school — Baez grew up an outsider, "basically a skinny Mexican . . . an oddity" who "sang because they accepted me when I sang."

Still a teen-ager, she rapidly became one of the major folk singers of the pre-Beatles '60s. As she tells it now, her image was created by the times and her own politicized following.

"ALL OF A sudden I was a big deal," she says. "I don't think there was any way, in my little mind, to have done anything except project the image that they had given me. And, you know, it's a gracious image — I was a Madonna, for God's sake. I wasn't going to turn that down."

But the war is gone and the firebrand generation that grew up with it has diffused. The counter-culture that gave Joan Baez her image has dwindled, almost to nothing. Everyone told her it was time for a change and she saw it herself — so she began to loosen up.

There are fewer protest songs on her records now, less rhetoric on stage. Where once she was intense and often sharp with an audience that failed to give her total attention, she now dances a bit and even tells an occasional joke.

Much the same can be said of her most recent albums, particularly the latest collection, "Blowin' Away" (Portrait PR-34697), which contains not a single, clear protest song. It is, in fact, a nicely balanced collection of tunes, half Baez compositions, ranging from the rich emotional understatement of Steve Winwood's "Many A Mile To Freedom" to the tongue-in-cheek petulance of "Time Rag," an indictment of insensitive journalists.

THE ALBUM'S best include "Miracles," a tribute to Stevie Wonder that — like much of Wonder's own work — manages to be light and nightclubby while conveying a message. And there's the delicious melancholy of "Yellow Coat," a Steve Goodman song about a love that slipped away.

"A Heartfelt Line Or Two" is an exuberant thanks to the real people and friends show business folk often find so difficult to reach. There's even a smoky rendition of the old Julie London hit, "Cry Me A River."

It's a good record — clean and easy on the ears but not sterile — and Baez has made it clear that she can be as good an entertainer as she was a political symbol.

She's desperately in need of a better road band and she needs some radio airplay. But those things will come, and her most difficult task will be convincing those who remain largely devoted to the Madonna of old.

They may not yet realize it, but the times have changed — again.

Plentiful, elegant menu a connoisseur's delight

Bill o' fare

The menu at the Navarone includes two special cocktail offerings — The Executive "for the aggressive man who wants to get down to business" and The Secretary "for the woman who wants to get ahead."

Annoying? Perhaps. But if you're not turned off by the sexist humor, stick around — you'll be in for a delicious meal.

The Navarone, on Higgins Road in Elk Grove Village, offers a large selection of steaks and seafood. The specialties are served with a relish tray, French onion or soup du jour, salad, baked potao and dessert, and range from $7.95 for a ladies cut of prime rib and the Chicken Kiev to $22.95 for the Chateaubriand for two.

Featuring:
The Navarone

ALSO OFFERED are six seafood entrees, from stuffed Colorado rainbow trout almondine, $6.95, to sauteed whole dover sole with almonds, $8.95, Lamb chops aficionados can choose from two choices, broiled or seasoned Grecian style.

My friend and I started our dinner with the lazy Susan relish tray, an interesting combination which included a variety of selections from the standard radishes and celery to marinated herring and a delicious cucumber salad. I also ordered the special Caesar salad, $1, which was worth the extra tab. An Athenian salad is also available for $2.

My entree was the Chicken Kiev, served with wild rice. The meat was extremely tender, and the accompanying cream sauce was delicious.

My friend chose the Steak Diane, $9.95, a sirloin steak over wild rice, covered with the Navarone's own sauce of burgundy wine, shallots, garlic and seasonings.

FOR "JUST plain steak" lovers, the Navarone offers five different cuts of beef, from chopped sirloin topped with Roquefort cheese, $6.50, to The King's Choice, $10.50, a New York Cut, boneless strip steak.

Although we were too full for anything above and beyond the sherbet included with our meal, a baked Alaska for two, $3.95, looked delicious a few tables over. Other special desserts include strawberry shortcake coupe, $1.75, and brandied ice with vanilla ice cream, $2.75.

While the food dominates at the Navarone, the atmosphere is befitting the restaurant's steep prices. A large chandelier provides an elegant touch, and booths lining the walls offer privacy.

The Navarone is open for both lunch and dinner.

Masque and Staff awards high school senior $500

Tom Duncan, a '77 graduate of Elk Grove High School, is this year's Masque and Staff, Inc. scholarship winner.

Each year the Elk Grove community theater group presents a $500 scholarship to a senior who has been involved in drama and speech. Tom received his award at the annual drama banquet from Shirley Johnson, founder of M&S.

He has participated in 21 productions during his four years at Elk Grove High. At the recent banquet he received the best actor award and the Grenny, which is the all-around, best achievement in drama award.

TOM WILL ATTEND the University of Illinois, Urbana, in fall, planning to major in journalism and specialize in dramatic criticism.

Masque & Staff recently made another award, one which goes annually to Elk Grove Library for use in enlarging its drama and speech section. In keeping with rising costs, M&S increased its donation this year from $100 to $150.

The check was presented to Janet Steiner, librarian, by Bob Johnson, president of M&S.

Star comedy writers have a gem

LOS ANGELES — Tom Patchett and Jay Tarses will make a homely married couple the subject of their latest writing effort this fall in the new comedy "We've Got Each Other."

Patchett and Tarses have written for the Carol Burnett and Bob Newhart shows and this season will contribute scripts for "The Tony Randall Show." They are, in the world of television writing, an absolute smash.

For that reason, "We've Got Each Other," to air Saturdays on CBS Channel 2, at 8:30 p.m., will be one of the brightest new comedy offerings this season. The show will offer a real ego boost for the millions of people in America who are not glamorous and seldom represented on television.

"THE PREMISE of the show is that this ordinary-looking couple isn't glamorous on the outside, but has a lot of beauty and love on the inside," said Tarses. "They are surrounded by Farrah Fawcett-Majors types and Lee Majors types who are beautiful on the outside, but unhappy on the inside."

Judy and Stuart Hibbard may be ordinary. But they are not boring. The actors who portray them are refreshing and the eccentric characters who surround them keep the pace of the show hopping.

One of the big advantages the show has going for it is the innocent and realistic approach it takes toward portraying a married, childless couple in their early thirties.

For instance, Judy (played by Beverly Archer) and Stuart (Oliver Clark) are often seen discussing the day's events and problems while sitting in bed in their pajamas.

OLIVER CLARK AND BEVERLY ARCHER STAR IN "WE'VE GOT EACH OTHER"

TOO OFTEN IN THE past, the bedroom has been off limits in comedies or has been treated in a very superficial manner. Puritan ethics always dictated the use of twin beds and the couple was filmed standing and talking in their bedroom as opposed to lying around in bed.

But, the Hibbards use their bedroom in the lighthearted manner most married couples do: as a comfortable spot of their own where they discuss their most important concerns and feelings. The half-hour comedy, however, is hardly immersed in deep thought.

In the premiere episode of the show, Stuart, a mail-order gadget salesman, wears a luminous ankle watch to bed and tests a fog-horn that is attached to the couple's alarm clock for instant awakening.

He also has attached a similar device to their toaster which gives a harrowing three-second warning before the toast pops up.

JUDY IS LOST AND clumsy in the kitchen while Stuart enjoys exercising his culinary talents. This is not a pitch for woman's liberation, the writers said, "that is just the way things are in many households."

Stuart works at home while Judy is a photographer in a studio where her boss, Damon Jerome (by Tom Poston) is the kind of guy who spends most of his time bouncing off the walls. The best photographer in the business, Damon can't seem to cope with too much else in life.

There is an antagonistic model working for the studio named Dee Dee (Joan Van Ark) who constantly gives Judy a hard time. There also is a perfectly handsome pair of neighbors, Barbie and Ken, who continue to be a source of anxiety for our ordinary-looking hero and heroine.

"I'm feeling uglier every second of this interview," quipped Clark, who appeared on "The Bob Newhart Show" last season as Mr. Herd, one of Dr. Hartley's patients.

Ms. Archer, originally from Oak Park, Ill., enjoyed her first television exposure last season as the neurotic daughter on the short-lived "Nancy Walker Show."

"THIS ROLE IS MORE difficult and, I think, more interesting because the character is more believable. In Nancy's show, I just came in long enough to do a scene, say a few lines, get a few laughs and leave. I'm dealing with a whole person as Judy and I'm in nearly every scene," Ms. Archer said.

The Hibbards' marriage is not the traditional television type with hearts and flowers. Judy and Stuart spoof the honeymoon image of television lovers during the opening credits by running in slow motion toward each other across a field of flowers.

He's overweight and she's underweight. They've been married four years and, although the sparkle is gone, the shine is still around.

There are details in this show that will spark genuine laughter. Stuart gets into an elevator carrying a large plant. The leaves get stuck in the elevator door and are seen sliding down along the outside as the elevator descends.

Stuart is prodded by Judy to do morning exercises, which he fakes with loud huffing and puffing and hand slapping while she's out of the bedroom.

It looks like this latest product of Grant Tinker's Mary Tyler Moore Enterprises will provide some of the most pleasant, inoffensive comedy this fall — and that will truly be refreshing.

TV NOTE:

ABC has taken another dramatic programming step, opening the fall television season with "Washington: Behind Closed Doors," Sept. 6-11. Two hours of the 12-hour drama will be aired each night. Based on John Ehrlichman's novel, "The Company," it is a powerful story of people and politics with events resembling the Watergate era.

TV HIGHLIGHTS:

• Friday: "Hawaii," the film based on James A. Michener's bestseller about a cultural clash between New England missionaries and the islanders, airs at 7 p.m. on Channel 2; "The Quinns" is a made-for-TV movie about four generations of a New York, Irish family at 7 p.m. on Channel 7, the final episode of "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman" airs at 10 p.m. on Channel 32; Helen Reddy hosts the fourth anniversary "Midnight Special" at midnight on Channel 5, featuring Neil Sedaka, Alice Cooper and members of the Monty Python troupe.

• Saturday: Robert Redford plays "The Great Waldo Pepper," a daredevil, barn-storming pilot of the 1920's at 8 p.m. on Channel 5; "Mutiny on the Bounty," with Marlon Brando brilliantly portraying Fletcher Christian, airs at 10:30 p.m. on Channel 9; "Kup's Show" at 10:30 p.m. on Channel 11 gathers together the country's top sports commissioners, including baseball's Bowie Kuhn and pro football' Pete Rozelle.

• Sunday: "A "National Geographic" special at 6:30 p.m. on Channel 9 chronicles Dr. Louis B. Leakey's 40-year search for the ancestors of man; "Sleuth" at 8 p.m. on Channel 7 is the 1972 film adaptation of Anthony Shaffer's play starring Michael Caine and Laurence Olivier, the only actors in this taut and exciting three-hour performance.

• This weekend's television sports events include The American Derby horse race Saturday at 5 p.m. on Channel 2 and the French Grand Prix auto race Sunday at 3 p.m. on Channel 2. A complete listing of television sports events can be found in Saturday's Herald sports section.

TV looks back at the U.S. Bicentennial celebrations

If you thought you had escaped the tall ships and the Bicentennial brouhaha of our 200th Independence Day last year, check the television listings this weekend.

They'll all be there — the reruns of special series episodes that tied in with the big Fourth of July celebration, highlights of the nonstop coverage of the Bicentennial and even rebroadcasts of patriotic specials.

Saturday;

• "The Bob Newhart Show," 7:30 p.m. on Channel 2. The Hartleys' plans to celebrate the Bicentennial fizzle out when Emily accidentally locks herself and Bob in their basement storage locker.

Sunday:

• "Great Performances," 7 p.m. on Channel 11. A concert of American music with Leonard Bernstein conducting the New York Philaharmonic in George Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue" and "An American in Paris," Aaron Copland's "A Lincoln Portrait" and John Philip Sousa's "Stars and Stripes Forever."

• "Lawrence Welk," 9 p.m. on Channel 9. A musical tribute to America includes "Teach the World to Sing," "The Impossible Dream" and "Love in a Home."

Monday:

• "Lee Phillip," noon on Channel 2. The Sounds of Freedom, a musical group from Brigham Young University, Salt Lake City.

• "1776," 3:3; p.m. on Channel 7. Musical about the drafting and signing of the Declaration of Independence.

• "Our Happiest Birthday," 7p.m. on Channel 2. Recap of highlights from the Bicentennial celebration including the sailing of the Tall Ships up New York's Hudson River, fireworks displays in New York and Washington, Arthur Fiedler conducting the Boston Esplanade Orchestra and reenactments of the Battle of Gettysburg.

• "They Said it With Music," 8 p.m. on Channel 2. A star-studded special shown last year that features newsreels, cartoons and colorful sets and Jason Robards, Bernadette Peters, Tony Randall, Jean Stapleton and Flip Wilson singing and dancing n a Yankee Doodle Dandy sort of way.

• "Be Glad Then America," 8 p.m. on Channel 11. A review of the preparations for the Bicentennial opera of the same name.

• "Legacy: The Year of the Bicentennial," 9 p.m. on channel 11. Bicentennial highlights.

• "Goodbye America," 10:30 p.m. on Channel 11. A dramatization of the May 1776 debate between American sympathizers and the loyal Tories of King George III.

• "Celebrating a Century," midnight on Hcannel 11. A recreation of the 1876 Philadelphia Exposition honoring the nation's Centennial.

JASON ROBARDS and Bernadette Peters are among the many stars who perform in "They Said It With Music: Yankee Doodle to Ragtime," a two-hour musical salute to America Monday at 8 p.m. on Channel 2.

The doctor says

Trichinosis down, but still problem

Nineteen days ago, I ate some undercooked pork at a party. It was ground sausage meat stuffed into mushroom caps and cooked in the oven about 30 minutes. The sausage was dark brown on top and I didn't notice it was pink on the inside until I had eaten some. I am concerned about trichinosis.

Is trichinosis a dangerous disease? In this day and age should I be concerned? If so, what would the symptoms be? Within what time period? What tests can be utilized to determine if one has the disease?

If trichinosis is present, what procedures are available to rid the body of this parasite?

Unfortunately, "in this day and age" trichinosis is still a problem and everyone needs to be concerned about it. About 30 years ago you could find the cysts of trichinosis in the diaphragm of more than 16 per cent of the people who were examined by autopsy. Now the figure is down to about 4 per cent.

The main cause is from eating underdone pork. To protect yourself from trichinosis you need to be sure that the pork has been cooked to a temperature of 60 degrees C (140 degrees F for 30 minutes for each pound of pork — or until all parts of the meat held this temperature for a least 30 minutes). The pork should be well done and never pink — except for the natural pink color of ham. If pork is frozen to minus 15 degrees C (-59 degrees F) for 20 days, that will also kill the cysts that cause the disease.

Proper smoking and pickling of pork products will destroy trichinosis, but you must be careful about home-prepared items or those that have not been inspected. You can also get trichinosis from eating hamburger. The beef may be ground in the same grinder used to grind sausage or sausage may be added to the hamburger. The only way to completely safeguard yourself from this is to grind your own hamburger — which you do from lean cuts to avoid fat as well — or cook your hamburger very well.

THERE IS NO way to inspect or test pigs to be sure they do not have trichinosis and the safe approach is to assume they do. Prevention of trichinosis in pigs — by not feeding them raw garbage among other things — has helped immeasurably to decrease the incidence of trichinosis. New York used to have a lot of it because of garbaged-fed pigs.

The symptoms may begin within two days — nausea, diarrhea, abdominal pain — similar to food poisoning. Invasion of the muscles begins in about a week and may take six weeks. Fever, swelling of the eyes and muscle pain is common. Inflammation of the heart muscle may also occur. The diagnosis is made by blood tests and particularly the use of muscle biopsy techniques. The muscle is examined under a microscope to find the trichinosis.

Yes, it is a dangerous disease. About 5 per cent of those who have it die in spite of treatment. If the nervous system is involved, the death rate is about twice that high. If a person has trichinosis, there are good medicines that your doctor can use, but there is little you can do for yourself. Your best bet is prevention.

Della Ann Magno— W. Richard Archer

Burlington, Iowa, where the groom is employed by an accounting firm and the bride is special education teacher in nearby Freeport, Ill., is the new home for Mr. and Mrs. W. Richard Archer.

The new Mrs. Archer is the former Della Ann Magno, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Magno, Schaumburg. A 1970 graduate of Conant High, Della was graduated in 1974 from Western Illinois University. Her bridegroom, son of Mrs. Goldene White, Rockton, Ill., is also a '74 graduate of Western Illinois.

The couple married June 4 in St. Marcelline Church, Schaumburg. Della chose a rainbow color scheme for the 1:30 double ring service. Her sister, Debbie Kross of Schaumburg, matron of honor, was in orange, the maids in mint green, pink, lilac and blue. Their gowns were topped with floral print capes.

MAIDS WERE THE bride's sister, Donna, and a cousin from DeKalb, Diane Magno, along with Sandra Walsh, Carpentersville, and Nancy Parker, Mount Prospect.

Della chose a candlelight organza gown with chantilly lace bodice. A chantilly headpiece held her lace-edged fingertip veil, and she carried a nosegay of rainbow daisies, peach roses and miniature yellow carnations with ivory baby's breath. Her maids each carried a long-stemmed white rose with baby's breath and ribbons to match their gowns. The matron of honor carried three long-stemmed roses matching her gown.

Stephanie Laird, 5, was flower girl wearing a yellow gown made by the bride. Her floral cape matched the matron of honor's. Stephanie's father, Stephen, Burlington, was best man, and groomsmen were Ron Davies, Maywood Park, Jim Dhom, South Beloit, Dick Hill, Rockton, and Joe Magno, the bride's brother.

Ushers were the bride's brother-in-law, Robert Kross, and the groom's brothers, Steven and Stuart White.

A dinner reception for 150 guests was held at Mr. Duke's in Wood Dale after which the newlyweds honeymooned a week in Colorado.

The Cadet Chapel at the U.S. Air Force Academy in Colorado was the setting June 4 for the 4 p.m. double ring wedding of Victoria L. Larson and Lt. Joseph James Connery Jr.

A graduate of Prospect High and the Air Force Academy, the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. Connery, Arlington Heights. The bride, a '77 graduate of Colorado University, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Loren E. Larson, Denver, Colo. After a two-week honeymoon in California the newlyweds will be residing in Ogden, Utah, where the groom is stationed at Hill Air Force Base.

THERESA DeROSE, Denver, was maid of honor for the military wedding, and bridesmaids were Shelley Springer, Denver, and Sara Hurlock, Fort Morgan, Colo., both Alpha Omicron Pi sorority sisters of the bride, and Robin Hauck, Colorado Springs. All wore aqua mint knit gowns with white, chiffon handkerchief capes bordered in aqua mint. They carried aqua-tipped white carnations, daisies and baby's breath.

Victoria chose a gown of candlelight satin and lace highlighted with pearls. A repeat of the lace motifs trimmed the skirt and her chapel train. A full-length mantilla of tulle and imported lace, and a bouquet of white roses, stephanotis and lily of the valley completed her bridal ensemble.

Best man was Lt. Charles Hale, Rapidan, Va., and ushers were the groom's brother, Thomas, the bride's brother, Loren, and Steve McGuire, Mount Prospect.

The reception was held in the academy's officers' club.

Nancy Neuendank— James T. Rife

Nancy Ann Neuendank and her bridegroom, James Talcott Rife, newlyweds of May 28, have returned from a honeymoon in the Virgin Islands and are both back at work at Mass Feeding Corp. in Elk Grove Village.

Daughter of former Des Plaines area residents Mr. and Mrs. William H. Neuendank, now of Bourbonnais, Ill., Nancy and Jim, son of Mrs. Gladys Rife, Mount Vernon, Iowa, were married in good Shepherd Lutheran Church, Des Plaines. The 4:30 p.m. double ring service was followed by a reception for 150 guests in the Camelot Restaurant, Des Plaines.

NANCY CHOSE Elaine Kelly of British Columbia, Canada, as her maid of honor, and her cousins, Karen Papierski, Niles, and Wendy Albrecht, Libertyville, as bridesmaids. Jan Hoffman, Niles, was also a bridesmaid. Flower girl was Nancy's 3-year-old niece and godchild, Laura Neuendank, Bourbonnais, and ring bearer was a 5-year-old nephew of the groom, Aaron Thompson, Mount Vernon.

Best man was Donald Piercy, Des Plaines, and ushers were Larry Collins, Chicago; Ted Williams, Larue, Ohio; Tom Sprengelmeyer, Skokie; Greg Stevens, Palos Heights; and Kurt Reder, Des Plaines.

A '74 graduate of Elk Grove High, Nancy and Jim, who studied at Upper Iowa College, are residing in an Elk Grove apartment.

Riverview Homemakers will gather for picnic

Riverview Homemakers will hold a backyard picnic and meeting Friday, July 8, beginning at 11 a.m., at the home of Mrs. Jo Andre, of Des Plaines. Each member is to bring a sandwich and a folding chair.

In case of rain, the picnic will be held at Mrs. Francis Lamaritata's home in Norridge. Information, 299-4265.

Hostesses for the day will be Mrs. Jo Andre, Mrs. Francis Lamaritata, Mrs. Virginia Pukovnik and Mrs. Trudy Suderow. Games are planned for the afternoon.

Mulches apply beauty, practicality

by JIM NAWOJ
of Klehm Nursery

Mulches help prevent weed growth by blocking out light, guard against moisture evaporation from the soil and add a beauty of their own to the complete landscape design.

Before mulches are applied, the use of a preemergent herbicide is recommended to prevent the germination of weed seeds. One of the most effective materials is Preen (Treflan). It is best applied early in the spring when weed growth has not started. If landscaping is completed after weeds have germinated, carefully remove existing weeds before applying Preen. Remove all roots since only growth from seed is prevented.

Another weed-control method involves the use of a black plastic film laid directly on the soil surface. Make sure a black color plastic is used since light must be blocked out to prevent weed growth. Clear plastic creates a greenhouse effect and weeds will abound.

Plastic materials are not recommended within the drip zone of desirable plants because they keep out the air and moisture vital to the root systems of plants. They also cause shallow-surface rooting which may result in the rapid drying of tender plant roots. Keep black plastic away from plant drip zones if used in planted areas. In subsequent years, punch holes in the plastic as the drip zone enlarges with plant's growth.

Border edging keeps mulch in its place — out of lawn or walkway and prevents lawn grasses from creeping underground into the planted beds. One of the finest materials for eding is Pla-Border. It is a vinyl strip that will not chip, rust or rot. It has a built-in frost lip at its base which keeps the border from rising during alternate freezing and thawing cycles. Besides being functional as a border, it also makes a beautiful accent line between the lawn and the mulched area.

Once border material and weed retardants are em, oyed, mulching materials can be applied. There are two basic types of mulches — organic and stone. Organic mulches are made from natural materials that help condition the soil. When they break down, humus is added to the soil. These mulches are very natural and rustic looking for those who prefer a more naturalistic landscape accent.

Organic mulches include redwood bark chunks available in different sizes, pecan shells, cocoa bean hulls and peat moss. One of the most effective and beautiful organic mulches is Paygro, made from shredded hardwood. The thin strips of bark actually mesh together to prevent being blown away by the wind. Since organic mulches do decompose after a period of time, it is usually common practice to add a thin layer to the top of the beds every year to counteract the effects of weathering on the appearance of the mulch.

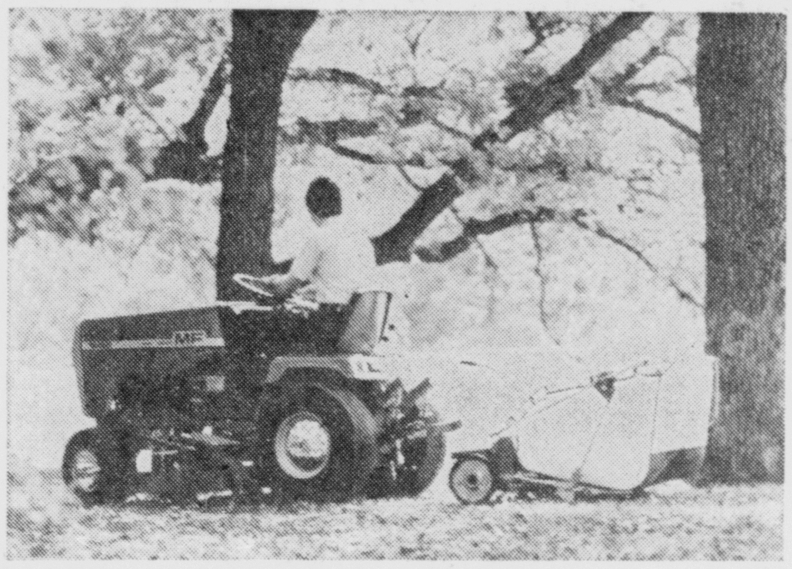
Stone mulches are permanent after application and require no maintenance. They come in all colors from pinks to reds to greens to a burnt-orange called "coral crush." Two of the more popular stone mulches are Wyoming White marble and Flowerock granules. Wyoming White comes from marble quarries in western United States. A pure white stone, it is harder in texture than white marble from other areas of the country and will keep its color longer without being soiled. When applying heavyweight stone like Wyoming White, allow for about 50 pounds per five square feet at one-inch deep.

Flowerock granules are a lightweight stone made from volcanic lava. Available in red or black and retaining a rustic appearance, it is one of the most popular stone mulches. Its light weight makes a little go a long way. Fifty-five pounds of flowerock will cover 12 square feet, two inches deep.



PULL-TYPE tools or implements can be used even when a mid-mounted or front-mounted tool also is attached to the tractor. This Massey-Ferguson tractor-mower was designed to pull other attachments. It adjusts to raise the mower so contact with the ground is avoided when pulling the sweeper.

Gardening grows easier with new aids

by ALLAN and SHEILA SWENSON

Gardening is growing easier every year. New aids are being developed that help us all plant seeds, grow strong, sturdy seedlings and extend our growing season.

Every year, we shop around to learn about the new products. Then we test these items to make sure they perform as well as claimed. That way, we can provide accurate appraisals of these aids and notes on their performance.

HERE ARE SOME helpful aids for starting seeds. The Early Start kit contains a 12 by 18 inch plastic drainage tray with two smaller seed sowing trays to nest in it. You get two large bags of planting mix, 30 round peat pots, stakes to label the varieties and a heating cable.

Bottom heat beneath trays of pots is helpful. It warms soil, encourages more rapid and uniform germination too. This technique is especially useful with hard-to-grow, tiny seeds. Once seedlings sprout, grow several inches, you can transfer them to individual larger peat pots, or into the garden if the weather is right.

ANOTHER TYPE was developed for professional nurseries. It is the Deep Root package. The five inch by eight inch long plastic packs are filled with planting formula. Each compartment is two and three quarter inches deep to let roots develop well.

Once plants get a firm root system, you simply pop out the seedling with root ball intact and plant it in your garden. The units are reusable.

Punch 'N' Grow kits and Seed 'N' Start kits also help get seeds sprouted well. The first type has seeds prepositioned and properly spaced. Just water, reverse the clear plastic top until seed germinates and then remove it.

WHEN PLANTS have several sets of true leaves, or are as tall as the directions advise, they can be transplanted into larger containers or set outside in the soil.

The other type has a fortified growing medium with a plastic top, too. This converts to a watering tray when seedlings are sprouted.

Many firms and stores offer seed tapes. This is especially useful for proper spacing of tiny seeds. The seeds are contained in water soluble tape. When watered in garden soil, the tape dissolves, letting seeds sprout. Be sure you plant exactly at the proper depth, so seeds can pop up and grow properly.

Try some of these aids this year. They are handy new growing experiences.

Prime roses with fertilizer

To keep roses in prime condition it is necessary to fertilize at regular intervals, especially after heavy-bloom periods, suggested James A. Fizzell, University of Illinois horticulturist in Cook County.

The warm spring has caused many roses to develop rapidly and early fertilizer applications already may be depleted. Flower production on most plants has been better than average.

INORDER TO KEEP the plants in prime condition all summer, it may be necessary to fertilize now.

A wide choice of fertilizers are available for summer use, said Fizzell. Many special-analysis fertilizers are available for roses. These usually contain fertilizer nutrient elements that work immediately, as well as slow-release materials that will supply nutrients for several weeks after application.

Many gardeners like to use soluble materials that are applied in water. This method of fertilization is especially helpful in maintaining even growth throughout the summer. It is also helpful in applying special fertilizers to correct specific deficiencies.

ORGANIC MATERIALS such as soybean meal, cottonseed meal, dried blood, processed sludge or fish meal can be used effectively. Amounts to use of these materials will vary. Usually large amounts of organic materials are needed to supply a sufficient amount of fertilizer nutrient elements. Regular use of organic materials is necessary to maintain maximum growth throughout the summer.

Fizzell offered some hints about fertilizing roses. Keep fertilizer materials off the flowers and foliage.

Fertilize after heavy rains. Fertilizer nutrient elements are often washed out of the soil with run-off water. Fertilizer applied to dry soils may injure root systems.

Use water with dry fertilizers to put the fertilizer nutrient elements in solution and make them available to the plant.

Follow the directions on the package. It is better to use small amounts more often than large amounts a few times during the growing season. Over-fertilization can cause root burning.

Stop fertilizing after mid-summer so the plants will harden off prior to the onset of winter.

WE'LL BEAT ANY LEGITIMATE QUOTE ON ANY COMPARABLE POOL . . . BUT NOBODY CAN BEAT PARAGON'S SERVICE AND REPUTATION.

Unlike the competition, Paragon ads never show the prices of our pools AND THERE'S GOOD REASON! Many pool dealers tend to be a little "less than honest" with their special price promotions. Usually, the package isn't as complete as the buyer expects . . . or the advertised special is "out of stock, but for a few dollars more . . ."

Well, we're too reputable to resort to that.

Paragon does promise this: Bring Us Any Legitimate Competitive Quotation On Any Comparable Pool We Sell, AND WE'LL BEAT THE PRICE! Yes, we can "beat it," but nobody can beat Paragon for service and reputation—we're the professional pool people. Before you buy a pool, let us say, "Beat It!"

The Accepted Influence in the Northwest Suburbs

LITTLE FREDDIE Garcia has become the star pupil in kiddie swim classes run by Greta Andersen, Olympic champion swimmer who won a gold medal in the 1948 Olympics. Freddie's mother, Mrs. Frederick Garcia, throws her son into the water so he can practice his backstroke.

THE IDEA OF being trophy trained doesn't please Freddie, however. He is sitting in the cup his instructor, Ms. Andersen, won for swimming the English Channel in 1954.

At 8 mos. old Freddie gets in the swim

by JACK V. FOX

LOS ALAMITOS, Calif. (UPI) — They cheered when baby Frederick Garcia III fell in a swimming pool. When he got out, his father held him head high and hurled him back in.

Freddie wasn't a battered child.

He was in the process of becoming the youngest person ever to pass a Red Cross beginner's level swimming exam.

FREDDIE IS only eight months old. Crying all the way, except when he was blowing bubbles, little Freddie proved this week that he can float, paddle about and general stave off drowning for a while, even if he can't walk or talk yet.

The infant displayed his aquatic skills at the swimming school of Greta Andersen, the Olympic champion who won a Gold Medal way back in 1948 and went on to claim dozens of distance records, including English Channel crossings both ways.

Miss Andersen said the red-haired infant is the youngest ever to pass the water safety beginner's test and the most promising among the several hundred children at her school.

ON A WALL is posted the admonition:

"All children three years and under MUST wear diapers and tight rubber pants to enter the pool."

Freddie's parents, Dr. Frederick Garcia Jr. and his wife, watched proudly from the sidelines along with reporters, photographers and television crews as Miss Andersen put her star pupil through his routine.

First Freddie floated on his stomach and blew bubbles in the water. Then he turned over on his back and floated, crying lustiiy. Miss Andersen put him on the side of the pool in a sitting position and he fell in on his face in what passed for a dive.

SHE DUNKED HIM a couple of times and he struggled to the surface and turned over on his back, which turned out to be his best feat. In that position he paddled about 15 feet.

As the piece de resistance, Dr. Garcia lifted the child up above his head and threw him into the pool from the side. Freddie surfaced, crying, and turned on his back.

Miss Andersen proclaimed that he had passed with flying colors and draped her Olympic Gold Medal around his neck.

A SPECTATOR wondered aloud what Greta would have done if Freddie flunked the test.

A school assistant, who shall remain nameless, said: "She probably would have drowned him."

"It's been the best thing in the world for him," beamed his mother. "It's good discipline and he's established a trustful relationship with another person."

Miss Andersen is unfazed by her pupils' bawling when they hit the water.

"Better they cry now than have the parents crying later," over a drowned child, she observed.

PRACTICING HIS backstroke, Freddie puts all his effort and concentration in staying afloat. The 8-month-old boy seems to have no great fear of water.

Love of flying lures Navy reservists

GRAND PRAIRIE, Tex. (UPI) — Lt. Cmdr. Harold Mize hit the runway at 150 miles an hour with a screech, a puff of smoke and a jolt that one wouldn't feel flying the friendly skies of commercial aviation.

One deep breath later he added power and roared back into the north Texas haze.

"That wasn't a very good one . . . about a No. 2 wire," he said, accelerating over the shallow, chocolate colored lake at the end of the pavement.

Mize was spending his time off from his job as a pilot for Braniff International Airlines practicing carrier landings at the land-locked Dallas Naval Air Station at least 1,000 miles from the nearest flattop.

HE IS A pilot in VF202, one of only four Naval Reserve fighter squadrons in the United States. One other, VF 201, also is in Dallas. The other two are in California, near San Diego.

Of the 17 pilots in the squadron, Mize is the only one who hasn't completed a tour in the Navy and at least one cruise with the fleet.

He did his five years of active duty at Lubbock, Tex., teaching would-be Air Force pilots how to fly.

The lack of sea duty puts Mize at a mild disadvantage, but not enough to kill his enthusiasm.

"That one was better," he said, throwing his F4N Phantom into a steep climb after another intentionally hard touch-and-go. "That was a No. 3 wire."

At midsummer, Mize will get a chance to practice landings on a real carrier — the USS Saratoga which will be cruising somewhere off the East Coast. It will be part of the four weeks annual training required of Mize and other pilots in the squadron.

ALL TOLD, flying on their days off and during the annual active duty period, the men of Squadron 202 each will log about 140 hours in the cockpit of the F-4, almost as much as the average fleet pilot.

Frequently called "weekend warriors," the reservists all are veteran pilots who fly for the sheer love of flying despite the chance they may be yanked away from their families, their homes and their jobs in case of a national emergency.

Their job is to provide a combat-ready backup force if the country is involved in a war. Or, as the Navy puts it, "to conduct flight and ground training operations to achieve and maintain maximum mobilization readiness."

"That means if the whistle is ever blown they have to jump out of their suits and into their uniforms," said Lt. Cmdr. Bob Eichorn, who is winding up a tour with Squadron 202 before transfering to the command staff college in Norfolk, Va.

Eichorn, a regular Navy pilot, said the Dallas-based reserve squadron always does well when thrown into competition with the active duty pilots in spite of the handicaps — mainly, not being able to fly the F4 as it was designed to be flown.

THE TWIN-ENGINE Phantom is capable of propelling its two-man crew at more than twice the speed of sound and to heights of 50,000 feet. The drawback is they also make a lot of noise, especially when they are used in maneuvers such as simulated carrier landings.

Whenever the pilots are practicing landings, Squadron 202 can count on a flood of complaints from homeowners near the base, Eichorn said.

Before swinging into the landing pattern, Mize took his F4 on a 400-mile, low level navigation run across northeast Texas.

Skimming along at what looked uncomfortably close to the tops of the east Texas pines, Mize said he was practicing a maneuver designed to help him get under enemy radar. However, regulations prohibited him from going below 500 feet.

"This wouldn't be nearly low enough in a combat situation," he said, his voice booming over the intercom. "What I'd need is to get down to real treetop level. I'd get down as low as I dared. That would make it harder for them to see me and harder for them to get to me."

At more than 400 miles per hour, the pines were a green blur.

HE BANKED SHARPLY left to dodge a flock of buzzards looking for a meal. "You have to watch them; they can tear out an engine," he said.

"It's kind of hard to see what's ahead from the back seat. This is what we do "It's time to change course," he said, righting the aircraft and breaking sharply to the northeast. Centrifugal force pushed downward. "That wasn't bad," he said "Only about 2½ G's. We normally pull a lot more than that on maneuvers. It could be much more in combat."

Mize, like many of the pilots in Squadron 202, is not a fan of the Phantom, which replaced the squadron's single-seat F8 Crusaders one year ago.

The F4 officially is described a fighter-bomber but some of the pilots said it can't compete with the latest Soviet-built MiGs as a fighter and it doesn't have the characteristics to make a first-rate bomber, either.

One thing the pilots of Squadron 202 don't mention when they talk about the F4 is that it is a two-man aircraft. The second man is not a pilot.

LISTED BY THE Navy as a Radar Intercept Officer (RIO, pronounced ree-oh) and unofficially as the Guy In Back some say they are discriminated against by the pilots, but not nearly as much in the reserves as in the fleet and not nearly as much by the younger pilots as by the older ones.

"I think your old-time reserves used to be a flying club, but that's not true anymore," said Lt. Steve Brainerd, an active duty RIO assigned to Squadron 202.

By training and personality, the RIOs are a different breed from the pilots.

"The pilot has a very aggressive personality; he's competing all the time. It's something we accept," said Brainerd, a soft-spoken 30-year-old chemistry graduate who flew 200 missions over North Vietnam in the back seat of a Phantom.

The squadron skipper, Cmdr. Max Gore, denied there was any discrimination.

"I've never had one come to me and say he was being disciminated against. If there is (any discrimination), it's in their mind. When I go on liberty, it doesn't matter whether they're pilots or RIOs. If I'm in a bar, it doesn't matter who's sitting next to me. I have three of them in important jobs so they can't be talking about discrimination jobwise."

OF THE 30 PILOTS and RIOs in the squadron, two dozen flew in combat in Vietnam. All the pilots still are in professional aviation, flying as crew members with commercial airlines. The RIOs, in contrast, practice a variety of occupations.

Lt. Bart Flaherty, a RIO, has a master's degree and is getting out of the reserves in a couple of months to become a foreign service officer. He lives in Washington and commutes to Dallas to fly in the back seat.

"I just about break even by the time I pay my air fare," he said.

Glenn Theriot commutes from his law practice in a small town across Lake Pontchartrain from New Orleans. "It beats sitting in Hammond (La.) every day," he said.

But they are generally bound by the common love for flying.

"I LIKE TO FLY," Brainerd said. "There's a thrill to it. I like that a hell of a lot better than selling drugs.

"Everyone who joins (the squadron) likes to fly," Eichorn said. "Maybe in the fleet a pilot has found out he doesn't but he can't do anything about it."

In addition to the two two-week active duty periods, each reserve pilot must attend 48 regular drills and 72 additional drills.

"Actually, it's about 20 weeks' work per year," Eichorn said, including the active duty.

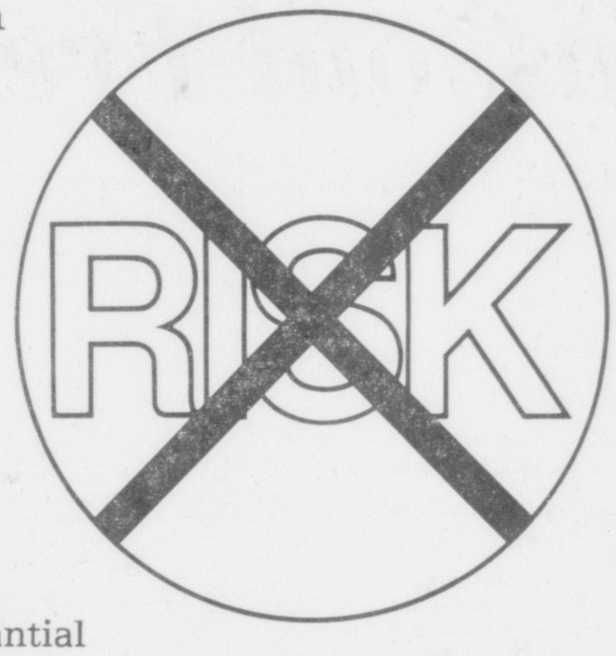
In return, the pilots and RIOs are paid about $7,000 a year.

"I would think they do it more for the flying than the money," Eichorn said.

TALMAN REPEALS A BASIC LAW OF ECONOMICS

It is a basic law of economics that return is a function of risk. The greater the risk, the greater the return.

But Talman's Certificates of Deposit repeal this law. Because in today's money marketplace they are one of the safest investments you can make, and still earn one of the best returns available.



For the person who has accrued funds from whatever source—the sale of a home or business, or just the accumulation of savings in a regular savings account—Talman's Certificates of Deposit offer an outstanding investment opportunity.

These Certificates of Deposit are among the highest yielding investments being offered today with returns from 6½% to 7¾%, dependent on maturity.* And they are among the most secure—insured up to $40,000 by an agency of the federal government and backed by Talman's substantial cash reserves and more than half a century of sound management.

For people who don't want the uncertainty of the stock market or other speculative forms of investment, but who want a good return combined with peace of mind and safety of their funds, Talman's Certificates of Deposit are unbeatable.

They are truly a fine investment, and we are proud to offer them.

Cars to have safety restraints by 1981

by EDWARD K. DeLONG

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Transportation Sec. Brock Adams ordered auto makers Thursday to put airbags or automatic seat belts on new luxury and full-size cars in late 1981 and on all models by the fall of 1983.

"We are determined that the car of the future shall be a socially responsible vehicle which combines the best our technology can offer in both safety and economy," Adams said in announcing his order.

He estimated the mandatory safety systems will save 9,000 lives or more a year by the mid-1980s, at an added consumer cost per vehicle of $25 to $100 for the new seat belt system or $100 to $300 for airbags.

THE AUTO INDUSTRY and consumer advocate Ralph Nader attacked the ruling.

Detroit called it a high-cost, second-best approach compared to laws requiring the use of existing seat belts.

Nader said Adams yielded to political pressure by imposing the new restraints starting in 1981 rather than 1980, and by applying the new requirements last to small, fuel-efficient cars.

The insurance industry said the new ruling will save lives, reduce injuries and hold down the rising cost of auto accidents.

Rep. Bud Shuster, R-Pa., chairman of the National Transportation Policy Study Commission, introduced a House resolution urging Congress to overturn Adams' order. Nader, however, predicted both the House and Senate would support the new requirements.

ADAMS' ORDER, which will go into effect unless Congress rejects it within 60 days, established a three-step schedule to phase in automatic devices able to save the lives of front-seat passengers at crash speeds of up to 30 miles per hour.

It called for either airbags or automatic seat belts to be standard equipment on new vehicles by:

• Sept. 1, 1981, for cars with wheelbases greater than 114 inches. An estimated 2.5 million 1982-model cars will fall into that category.

• Sept. 1, 1982, for cars with wheelbases greater than 100 inches. An estimated 5 million 1983-model intermediate and compact cars will fall into that group.

• Sept. 1, 1983, for all passenger cars, including 2.5 million 1984-model subcompacts and mini-size cars.

Adams said the ruling applies to foreign cars sold in the United States as well as to domestic models.

He said new small cars were given the longest to comply because it will be harder to fit them with the new systems. All cars would retain standard seat belts.

Adams said he has asked General Motors, Ford, Volkswagen, Toyota and Mercedes Benz to continue a voluntary program that would put some 500,000 vehicles with air bags or automatic seat belts on the road before 1981.

Except for Chrysler Corp., industry comments were devoid of the past criticism of the government's use of statistics telling how many lives could be saved by the passive restraint devices. They would require no action on the part of the driver or passengers to operate.

U. S. automakers apparently are saving their strongest efforts for Congress, which can overrule any decision on passive restraints within 60 days. It reserved that right in 1974 when it killed the buckle-up-before-you-drive ignition interlock system.

Volkswagen is the only automaker with automatic safety belt experience. It has installed the safety belts in 65,000 cars since 1975 and several industry sources said U. S. automakers would start crash programs to develop the low-cost systems for their cars.

Unlike airbags, which the government and auto industry agree will cost more than $100 to install and even more to repair, the VW safety belt that automatically stretches cross the drive and front-seat passenger when the front door is closed was never more than a $35 option.

Business briefs

Saudis, Emirates boost oil price 5%

Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates, who provide one-third of U. S. oil imports, will raise the price of their oil 5 per cent today, the Kuwait newspaper Al Hnba reported Thursday. The increase would bring an end to the price war among the 13 members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries with at least 11 of the members charging the same price for crude oil. The Kuwaiti report followed a public declaration Wednesday by nine of the other 11 OPEC members canceling a previous decision to implement a 5 per cent price hike of their own today. If the Saudis and Emirates now raised their current prices by 5 per cent, most of the OPEC nations would charge the same price for its oil at a rate 10 per cent above the 1976 prices.

Copper workers vote to strike

Unions representing 45,000 workers in the nation's copper industry Thursday voted to strike all of the major producers at midnight when current contracts expire. Representatives of the United Steelworkers and 25 other industry unions making up the National Nonferrous Industry Conference voted at an afternoon meeting to go on strike.

A spokesman said pickets would be set up at seven of the eight major copper producers in Arizona at midnight MST. The other producer, Magma Copper Co., will be struck when its contract expires at midnight Friday.

The unions held out for a 94-cent hike over a three-year contract, similar to recent settlements in the steel and aluminum industries. Copper workers average about $7.10 an hour under the expiring contracts.

Robert Hall closes nationwide

Robert Hall clothing stores were closed Thursday in the first day of an indefinite shutdown while company officials worked out plans to sell or liquidate the 364 outlets across the country. Some 5,000 Robert Hall employes were put out of work by the announcement Wednesday of the store closings. Managers remained on duty at stores Thursday to admit customers with receipts for clothes being altered or on lay-away. United Merchant and Manufacturers Inc., parent company of Robert Hall, said the closings were made to conduct a complete inventory of store stocks in line with its decision earlier this month to "phase out" the Robert Hall chain. Pilferage had become a growing problem at the Robert Hall outlets and was a major cause of the shutdown, according to trade sources quoted by Women's Wear Daily. The trade publication said the shutdown was aimed at halting the theft.

United Merchants officials have said repeatedly they wish to dispose of the Robert Hall stores as "going businesses," hoping to sell the outlets individually or in clusters. Three international unions representing Robert Hall workers protested the closings as a lockout and said they would file charges of labor law violations against United Merchants. A Robert Hall Village store is located at 2300 Higgins Road, Hoffman Estates.

No talks in burial vault strike

No new talks are scheduled between the striking Chicago area burial vault production workers and manufacturers, federal mediator Sam Mazza said Thursday. Delayed burials, caused by the shortage of burial vaults, are reported by area funeral homes. The strike by Teamsters Local 786 workers began June 8 against four major vault manufacturers in the Assn. of Burial Vault Manufacturers. The Forest Park-based American Wilbert Vault Corp., among the manufacturers affected by the work stoppage, has a plant at 165 River Rd., Des Plaines.

SEC urges competency standards

The Securities and Exchange Commission Thursday recommended competency standards for bank personnel who deal in securities matters similar to broker dealers. Although falling short of questioning the ability of bank officials who execute customer orders in securities markets, the SEC said they should be required to meet a minimum standard.

National Observer stops publication on Saturday

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dow Jones & Co. Thursday announced it was discontinuing publication of the National Observer, a weekly newspaper which has incurred heavy losses since its inception in 1965.

Warren H. Phillips, president and chief executive officer of Dow Jones, said the Observer will cease publication with the issue going to press Saturday.

"The long effort to make the Observer self-supporting has not succeeded and its future prospects do not give sufficient encouragement to continue the battle," Phillips said in a statement to the staff.

"The paper's deficit was reduced year after year from nearly $2 million in 1965 to $300,000 in 1974," he said. Since then, he said, losses "began to inch up again," despite a 70 per cent subscription renewal rate and a 25 per cent increase in advertising linage.

"Yet the outlook for the Observer's economic success is not at all promising," Phillips said.

The paper said it expects to lose $632,000 this year. The cumulative loss from late 1961 was $16.2 million, after taxes.

Circulation for the week ending June 25 was 401,933, compared with 429,652 a year ago.

The Observer has a staff of more than 80, including Edwin Roberts, winner of the pulitzer for a commentary.

Exactly what is that national debt?

Jane Bryant Quinn

Staying ahead

NEW YORK — Many Americans fear that the steadily rising national debt will someday, somehow, bankrupt us all. I hear this from you in letters and worried questions after speeches and seminars.

Almost $37.1 billion of your tax dollars last year went for interest on the national debt. That's $170 for every man, woman and child in the United States. Interest due on the debt has risen almost every year in modern times. As of last week, the size of the debt was a staggering $670 billion.

How will we ever pay off this money? Should we expect to? And what happens if we don't?

I PUT THESE questions to George Benston, professor of economics at the Graduate School of Management, University of Rochester.

"Looking at the debt alone," Benston says, "there's no danger in the fact that it goes up every year. As a nation we grow wealthier every year. Real economic growth, after inflation, is up 27 per cent in the past 10 years alone. All that increased wealth generates tax dollars to pay the interest on the growing debt."

The debt itself is not merely a ledger entry. It materializes in the form of Treasury and federal-agency bills, notes and bonds. When investors buy Treasury bills, they are taking a piece of the national debt. The interest they get from the government is recirculated into the economy, so nothing is lost.

"There's no reason for a nation ever to get out of debt," Benston says. He compares the country to a corporation that always has bonds outstanding. Bonds represent money owed. Some people cash in their bonds and others buy new ones. But as long as the corporation's value and earnings increase, so can its overall level of indebtedness.

"AS WE GROW richer, we are able to support a larger and larger debt," Benston says. From time to time the growth in America's wealth slows or declines briefly. But the long-term trend is always up.

Furthermore, if all this debt were eliminated, it would increase the gap between the rich and the poor in this country. Tax money would be taken from all the people and used to pay off the holders of Treasury bills and bonds.

The real problem, says Benston, is not the growing size of the debt itself but whether the borrowed money is being used productively. Productive use is for expenditures that might increase the nation's wealth, like dams, river clean-up projects, and urban development. This raises economic values, which raises tax receipts to help cover the debt. In effect, this kind of debt can eventually pay for itself.

On the other hand, it's dangerous to go into debt for current expenses, like higher farm price supports or welfare payments. These don't create future wealth. If we want these things from the government, we should tax ourselves currently to pay for them, Benston says.

Unfortunately, a lot of people (not just the poor) want favors from the government but don't want their taxes to go up. jSo the government borrows the money. If real wealth isn't there in the future to pay the interest, the government sponsors a little inflation. This creates the dollars needed for interest payments (although the dollars have less value).

In short, the national debt can go up and up without leading to a bust. But it can encourage inflation and, to the extent that government spending is less efficient than private spending, slower growth.

Farm price dip boosts Dow Jones

by FRANK W. SLUSSER

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks rose Thursday for the first time in four sessions in reaction to a 5 per cent drop in farm prices that indicated inflation may be easing.

But investors were disturbed by a Commerce Dept. report that factory orders were unchanged in May. The report gave further impetus to claims the economy might be slowing down.

President Carter's surprise decision to scrap the B1 bomber program entirely triggered a sharp loss in Rockwell International stock but caused little over-all damage to the market.

AGAINST THIS background, the Dow Jones Industrial Average, a 2.29-point loser Wednesday, gained 2.97 points to 916.30. In the three previous sessions the closely watched average had lost 16.37 points.

Despite Thursday's advance, the Dow gave up 88.35 points in the first half of the year. It slipped 2.83 points in the second quarter ended Thursday.

The New York Stock Exchange common stock index gained .20 to 55.10 and the average price of a common share increased by 12 cents. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index, containing some over-the-counter issues gained .37 to 100.48.

Advances topped declines, 845 to 547, among the 1,895 issues crossing the composite tape.

Big Board volume totaled 19,410,000 shares, up only slightly from the 19,000,000 traded Wednesday, the slowest session in more than three weeks.

Insurance costly, hard to obtain

by THAYER SIBLEY

A product liability insurance crisis is threatening the small business industry. Insurance for manufacturers has become expensive when it can be obtained, and in many instances where it can no longer be obtained, manufacturers are going without.

"We've had members go from paying about $3,000 to about $60,000 (for premiums) within the last year," says an attorney for a truck manufacturers' association based in Cincinnati, Ohio. "In many instances this increase absorbed the entire profit of the company for the previous year."

This lawyer cites changes in the law concerning product liability, with responsibility presently being shifted more and more to the manufacturer in case of accident, as being one reason for the mounting insurance rates.

NO LONGER ABLE to resort to the traditional defenses which place liability on those who are at fault, the manufacturer often finds himself in effect insuring all those using the product, including the consumer, regardless of the negligence of others involved.

So, insurance companies over the last 18 months, beginning to feel the impact of increased liabilities, have handled the burden by dramatically increasing their premiums or refusing to insure.

Manufacturers of trucks, machine tools, household equipment, safety equipment, pharmaceuticals, new medical devices, and chemical products are among those hardest hit.

(One Department of Commerce survey of manufacturers just released found the average cost of product liability insurance doubling between 1971 and 1975 and the number of claims rising six times from 3.5 to 13.9 per firm on average.)

THE EFFECT ON the consumer is that the manufacturer has diminished profits to reinvest in new products or in safety equipment, and in some cases is discontinuing certain products. Also, innovation in development is being inhibited it is charged.

The Product Liability Act of 1977, introduced to Congress on April 18 by Ronald A. Sarasin (R) of Connecticut, is intended to better balance the system of liability. The basic intent of the bill is to bring all of the parties together who have contributed to the damage and to assess damages against each one in accordance with the degree to which they were at fault.

The Sarasin bill is geared to set up a single national standard of law to promote unified justice in an area where confusion has set in because of conflicting state standards. It reflects the concern expressed in such publications as a 1977 survey report on product liability by the National Federation of Independent Business, and the booklet entitled "Product Liability — Proposed Amendments to State Statutes" drawn up by the National Association of Wholesaler Distributors.

Art merger eyes petrodollars

NEW YORK (UPI) — New York's oldest art gallery and Europe's major publicly owned art holding company are planning to merge to form a $40 million international art vending firm primarily aimed at the petrodollar market,

Armand Hammer, chairman of Occidental Petroleum Company of Los Angeles, said the "50-50" deal would transform the 131-year-old M. Knoedler & Co. of New York and Modarco of Geneva, Switzerland, into Knoedler-Modarco if a favorable tax arrangement can be worked out with U. S. tax officials. Hammer, who owns Knoedler, will be chairman and president of the new firm, probably the world's largest of its type.

"The merger will widen Knoedler's business in Europe, where we already have a gallery in London." The 78-year-old oilman and benefactor of the Los Angeles County Art Museum said at a press conference. "We foresee that a lot of oil money generated in the Middle East will eventually be invested in art. Right now petrodollars are going into real estate and stocks, but eventually it will be art."

Hammer said that Modarco was set up in 1971 by European investors to buy art and hold it for appreciation of value. He said Modarco never had been very active as an operating dealer but had suffered short term losses when the art market deteriorated in 1974 and 1975.

These losses, however, have been offset by the increased value of the firm's holdings, including paintings by Renoir, Dufy, Picasso, Gris, Leger, Soutine and Dekooning. He said the bulk of Modarco's inventory, valued at $20 million, soon would be brought to New York for an exhibition at Knoedler's elegant new gallery next to the Frick Museum.

Car operating costs jump 10% over 1975

It will cost the buyer of a 1977 car 10.3 per cent more to own and operate his new vehicle than it did two years ago, despite improved fuel economy, according to a study prepared for the Chicago Motor Club.

The study concludes it costs the average Illinois motorist 20.2 cents a mile to operate his car compared to 18.3 cents per mile in 1975.

Motorists who drive 10,000 miles a year can expect operating costs to jump to $2,019, a rise of nearly $200 in two years.

MOTOR CLUB STATISTICS are based on studies by Runzheimer and Co. for the American Automobile Assn.

The study identified increased fixed costs, particularly depreciation, as the major reason for the 10 per cent increase in operating costs. Fixed costs rose more than $250 in the two-year period, while variable costs such as gas, oil and maintenance were down slightly.

The per-mile figure was computed on a 5.8 cents a mile base for variable costs and a 14.4 cents a mile base for fixed costs. Data is based on a 1977, eight cylinder Chevrolet Chevelle with automatic transmission, power steering, power disc brakes and a radio.

Motorists who use air conditioning will add an estimated 0.2 cents a mile and 20 cents a day to their operating costs.

The study says motorists can expect a penny increase in per-mile operating costs for every 10 cent per gallon increase in the pump price of gasoline if the car delivers 10 miles per gallon. The increase will be only 0.5 cents if the car gets 20 miles per gallon.

The increased operating costs have boosted the cost of vacations by car. The study found average costs for two people have jumped 6 per cent since 1975 to $58 a day. This figure includes $26 a day for meals, $27 a day for lodging and $5 for gas and oil every 100 miles of travel. Computations were based on a car averaging 15 miles per gallon.

Vet's hot line helps farmers keep animals happy

by LeROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI) — It's too bad James Herriot did not have someone like Dr. Don Awe to fall back on in the 1930s.

The doctor could have been a great help to the youthful veterinarian in rural Yorkshire. But in that case Herriot would not have had to solve all those problems with animals by himself and he might never have felt like writing his wonderful books 'All Creatures Great and Small" and "All Things Bright and Beautiful."

Awe works for Cargill, Inc., the Minneapolis commodity handling and marketing firm, as animal health products manager for the Nutrena Feeds division. He has set up an unusual "hot line" service for veterinarians and their farmer customers to give quick information about what to do when cows, horses, sheep, poultry and swine come up with baffling miseries.

AWE, A VETERINARIAN specializing in large animals, conceived the idea two years ago after observing over a period of time that one of the secrets of success in any kind of farming or ranching involving livestock or poultry raised for the market is to keep the critters reasonably contented.

"Sometimes," he said, "it almost seems as if the animals are staging a revolt against conditions they don't like — getting sick in revenge on the farmers."

At any rate, Awe said, you cannot make money raising turkeys or chickens if they are always getting their feathers ruffled and dairy cows with chapped udders are not eager to give lots of milk. Overcrowded pigs with sore feet tend to fight each other, working off many pounds of valuable lard and bacon.

The Cargill toll-free hot line at the Animal Health Service Center in Omaha, Neb., is designed to produce quick solutions to just such problems. Weekdays from eight to five, livestock and poultry producers or veterinarians can call on a team of animal health specialists headed by Clarence Utley.

"Naturally, we don't provide telephone diagnosis," Awe said. "If a diagnosis has not yet been made we insist the farmer call in a local vet. But there's a lot of help we can give both the farmer and the vet after the diagnosis is made."

THE BUSY SEASONS for the hot line service are mid-February to May and late August through November, when farmers are either fattening their livestock or preparing to take them to market.

"So far we have been getting 150 to 200 calls a day during those months," from as far away as North Carolina, Texas and Mississippi," Utley said.

The hotline has gotten some very unusual calls — like the fellow who wanted to know where to find out how to relieve an itchy rash that was causing his white mouse to scratch. Utley, once he realized his caller was not pulling his leg, put him in touch with a lab that breeds the mice where he got the solution to the problem.

Then there was the western rancher who wanted to know where to find a tranquilizing dart gun for his herd of buffalo. He was afraid the bison might stampede and run away. Utley provided the name of a nearby store that handled tranquilizer guns big enough for the purpose.

Suburbs take new look at real estate tax

Northwest suburban communities will be taking a new look at the controversial real estate transfer tax now that the Illinois General Assembly has provided a way of enforcing the tax.

A bill awaiting Gov. James R. Thompson's signature would require the county to refuse to record deeds without proof of tax payment in home-rule communities that adopt the land sale tax.

Cook County currently provides this service to the City of Chicago, but has refused to do the same for the suburbs. This situation has prevented several communities, including Hoffman Estates and Arlington Heights, from considering adoption of the tax.

THE TAX WAS STUDIED two and three years ago in both communities as a new revenue source. Neither community decided on an amount for the tax or whether it would be levied against the buyer or seller of property.

Des Plaines also considered the tax, but rejected it in face of stiff opposition from local real estate brokers.

Spokesmen from both Arlington Heights and Hoffman Estates said they expect renewed discussion of the tax once the bill is signed into law. They said, however, a study of the tax does not guarantee adoption.

"We won't jump into anything," said Hoffman Estates Village Pres. Virginia M. Hayter. "Just because there is a bill that enables us to do it, doesn't mean we are going to pass it.'

MRS. HAYTER SAID she expects other towns to show interest in the tax and said the issue may be discussed at the Northwest Municipal Conference. The conference was one of the agencies pushing for passage of the legislation.

Arlington Heights finance director Ken Bonder said he expects the tax, to be reconsidered. "I think it would be to the benefit of the village if we did take another look," he said.

Des Plaines finance director Duane Blietz said he does not think Des Plaines will discuss the real estate transfer tax. Noting the city council rejected the tax in 1975, Blietz said "based on past action, Des Plaines probably will not review it."

Defiant ordinations the issue

Bishop may go before 'council'

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope Paul VI may place the case of rebellious French Archbishop Marcel Lefebvre before the Vatican department once known as the Inquisition, Vatican sources said Thursday.

They said the Pope may ask the Sacred Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith for an opinion on how to deal with the traditionalist archbishop, who defiantly ordained 14 priests at his Swiss seminary Wednesday in the beginning of the Roman Catholic Church's first 20th century schism.

THE FINAL DECISION — possibly excommunication, or a ruling that Lefebvre has excommunicated himself — would still rest with the Pope.

The Vatican kept officially silent Thursday about the ordinations by the suspended archbishop, who called the church of Rome a den of "thieves, wolves and mercenaries."

Pope Paul himself refrained from mentioning Lefebvre in his homily at a Mass in St. Peter's basilica Wednesday but reaffirmed his own authority as the successor to the Apostle Peter with the ancient dictum: "Where Peter is, there is the Church."

The Sacred Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith, the church's top watchdog body over faith and morals, is the successor to the body set up by Pope Paul III in 1542 under the name of Sacred Congregation of the Universal Inquisition.

THE INQUISITION was responsible for the burning at the stake of Philosopher Giordano Bruno and many other persons convicted of heresy and forced scientist Galileo Galilei to recant on his teaching that the earth revolves around the sun.

Pope St. Pius X, of whom Lefebvre is an ardent admirer, changed the Inquisition's name in 1908 to Supreme Sacred Congregation of the Holy Office and Paul VI gave it its present name.

Although no longer armed with powers to send heretics to the stake, the Congregation wields the Catholic Church's most powerful remaining weapon — excommunication, which bars an offender against church law from the seven sacraments and in the most severe cases enjoins individual Catholics from having any relations with him.

The only archbishop to be excommunicated in recent years was South Vietnam's Pierre Martin Ngo Dinh Thuc in 1976 for unlawful ordinations in Spain. Thuc, a brother of the late South Vietnamese President Ngo Dinh Diem and a traditionalist like Lefebvre, has since become reconciled with Rome.

The Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith's last two trials against church liberals ended without convictions. The case of Dutch theologian E. D. Schillebeckx was declared closed two years ago after he convinced the congregation that his doctrines were orthodox and the Rev. Hans Kueng, a Swiss theologian, was given a rebuke, but no sanctions, for his critical views about papal infallibility.

Parks to host swim benefit July 17

Pools from Northwest suburban park districts are among the more than 85 pools participating in the second annual Swim for Heart fund-raiser for the Chicago Heart Assn. July 17.

Swimmers in the benefit will get sponsors to pledge a specified amount of money for every lap swum during the one-hour event.

There is no age limit, but swimmers will be divided into two age groups. A 10-speed bicycle will be awarded to the swimmer in each age category at each pool who raises the most money.

EACH PARTICIPANT also will receive a patch for the event.

Last year, swimmers at 44 suburban park districts raised $109,000. This year's goal is $150,000, a Chicago Heart Assn. spokesman said.

"The Swim for Heart ties in recreation and physical fitness to help condition the heart and circulatory system while at the same time raising funds to fight heart and blood vessel diseases," said Bon Dunsmuir, president of the Suburban Park and Recreation Assn., sponsor of the event.

Swimmers are permitted to rest during the hour. A lap is considered 75 feet.

Persons interested in participating in the Swim for Heart can get information from any participating park district, including: Hoffman Estates, Palatine, Arlington Heights, Des Plaines, Elk Grove, Mount Prospect, Hanover Park, Buffalo Grove, Wheeling, Park Ridge, Schaumburg, Rolling Meadows and Northwest Special Recreation districts and the Buehler YMCA, Palatine There is no charge to enter.

200 years at the same location.

Maybe folks were a little skeptical about taking stock in America 200 years ago.

We were young. At war. With no experience.

And who knew if we'd ever pay back the money?

Well, 200 years have passed. And the U.S. government has always paid in full. To the penny.

Now that's not a bad record.

In fact, you might say we're now a pretty well-established outfit to do business with.

So join the Payroll Savings Plan and save with today's Bicentennial issue of Series E Savings Bonds. It's easy. It's automatic.

And it's safe. After 200 years, you know we're here to stay.

Now E Bonds pay 6% interest when held to maturity of 5 years (if % the first year). Lost, stolen or destroyed Bonds can be replaced if records are provided. When needed, Bonds can be cashed at your bank. Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.

Take stock in America.
